GRAND JURY TO INQUIRE INTO $175,000 COAL FRAUD

Basis of Investigation to Be Employe's Confession That Berry-Bergs Co., Swindled Customers.

OFFICER AND NINE OTHERS ARRESTED

Discharged Driver Describes Short-Weight System — City Department to Hunt for "Leak."

The grand jury will meet Thursday to investigate the confessions of employes of the Berry-Bergs Coal Co. that public institutions and individual customers have been systematically defrauded through short-weight coal deliveries, one employe estimating the frauds have approximated $175,000 in the last two and a half years.

Meanwhile City Commissioner of Weights and Measures Haley has asked that a thorough investigation be made to determine whether there was any "leak" between his office and the coal company. His request followed the statement of the company weigher yesterday that officers of the firm somehow learned when city inspectors were active and at such times suspended short-weight deliveries.

William O. Soell, president of the company, is being sought, as is his brother-in-law, Anthony C. Happe Jr., the vice president, who lives with him in Kirkwood. Soell's attorney promised to surrender him tomorrow, explaining his client was on a hunting trip in the Ozarks, miles away from a railroad.

Ten Persons Already Arrested.

Ten persons have already been arrested in connection with the alleged frauds. The latest to be booked by the police was John Faber, 26-year-old chauffeur formerly employed by the coal company, who was quoted by Chief of Detectives Kaiser last night as admitting he had hauled short-weight loads of coal to city institutions on many occasions.

Those who were arrested before Faber were, James W. Whelan, secretary-treasurer of the coal company; Oscar Happe, clerk, a brother of the vice president and brother-in-law of the president; Louis J. Mellick, yard manager and weigher; Dewey Neff, Henry Hicks, George de Braux, Charles Bettick, William Craft and Henry Harris, delivery men and helpers.

Whelan was released on $20,000 bond and Mellick and Oscar Happe on $5000 each. Bond for the minor employes was set at $1500 each.

The Berry-Bergs Coal Co., a $50,000 corporation, organized in 1903, has offices at 226 South Taylor avenue, and a yard at 4449 Clayton avenue. Soell, who bought the business in 1918 holds all but two of the shares of stock, Whelan and Anthony Happe each holding one share.

At the Circuit Attorney's office it was announced that minor employes of the company probably would be charged with conspiracy to defraud, punishable upon conviction by a year in jail or a $1000 fine, or both, and executives would be charged with obtaining money by false pretenses, punishable upon conviction, by two to five years' imprisonment.

Chance to Testify for State.

Indications are that some of the employes who have confessed participating in short-weight frauds, under orders from their superiors, will be given the opportunity to testify for the State and gain immunity for themselves. Such a procedure was following in a short-weight prosecution in 1921, with the result that Edwin F. Kleine, a coal dealer, and Milton Rosenheim, a city clerk, were convicted and served penitentiary sentences.

As told yesterday, the tip that resulted in the present expose came from Henry C. Schmieding, a former truck driver for the company, who suffered a delayed stroke of conscience after the firm, he said, had discharged him for failing to destroy tickets showing false weights. Schmieding's account of systematic frauds was corroborated by Mellick and several of the other employes.

Description of System.

The system, in brief, as described was this: Mellick, the weigher, who asserts he was acting under instructions from Soell and Whelan, would give the drivers two sets of tickets, one showing the

MAN, WHO SHOT WIFE, SAYS IT WAS ACCIDENT

Guy Mathis, 22, Arrested at Hospital Where He Had Taken Wounded Mate.

Mrs. Bertha Mathis, 37 years old, was shot through the chest and critically wounded early last night by her husband, Guy Mathis, 22, in the kitchen of her hotel in Prospect Hill, St. Louis County.

Mathis, insisting the shooting was accidental, said a revolver was discharged as he was cleaning it. An hour after the shooting he was arrested by police and deputy sheriffs of St. Louis County at the Westminster Hospital, 8612 Halls Ferry road, where he had taken his wife.

Police and county authorities began an investigation of his version of the shooting, upon information that he and his wife had been quarreling frequently since their marriage, last September. At city hospital, where he was examined, physicians said he had been drinking, but was not intoxicated.

The bullet penetrated Mrs. Mathis' chest near the heart and emerged at the right shoulder.

Mrs. Mathis' first husband, Irvin Rauth, who formerly owned the hotel, was killed in an automobile accident in North St. Louis last February.

MAN CONFESSES BURNING BANK TO HIDE $8000 THEFT

E. T. Henkel, Son of Nokomis, Ill., Pastor Admits Story of Holdup by Robbers Was Faked.

HELD IN DEFAULT OF $26,000 BOND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NOKOMIS, Ill., Jan. 14.—Enno T. Henkel, 28-year-old assistant cashier of the Farmers' National Bank, the narrator last Tuesday of a story of being slugged by two robbers who set fire to the bank building, tonight confessed that he had faked the robbery story and set the fire to cover embezzlements of $8000 in the last several years.

Henkel, who is 28 years old and the son of the Rev. Otto Henkel, pastor of Trinity Luthern Church of Nokomis, declared he had lost some of the money in imprudent investments and spent the rest injudiciously, and had decided to cover up his peculations by burning the bank records.

He had previously said that he was held up as he went to the ban kbuilding at 10:30 p. m. Tuesday to prepare the fire in the stove for the night. His two assailants, he related, failed to get into the strongbox, and finally set fire to the banks books and fled, leaving Henkel in the vault.

Henkel declared he liberated himself. He summoned the Fire Department, but when the fire was extinguished an hour later all the bank's books had been consumed. Bank and insurance company investigators were suspicious of Henkel's story, however, and questioned him closely, with the result that tonight he confessed his holdup story was untrue.

After he had completed his statement to prosecuting authorities Henkel was charged in warrants with grand larceny and arson and in default of $26,000 in bonds was lodged in the county jail at Hillsboro.

NEW HUNT FOR MRS. GRAYSON AND HER AIRPLANE "DAWN"

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Organization of a new search for the airplane "Dawn" and its party of four was ordered today by M. A. Mosle, friend of Mrs. Frances Grayson, who, with her pilot, navigator and motor expert, was lost on the first leg of a projected trans-Atlantic flight last Dec. 23.

Mosle wired $300 to Leonard Reid, his representative in St. Johns, N. F., following receipt of a cablegram from Reid which declared that all evidence and reports pointed to landing by the plane in an inaccessible valley near Heart's Delight.

Mosle was instrumental in organizing the original search for the plane, in which the dirigible "Los Angeles" and several airplanes participated. Those lost with Mrs. Grayson were Lieut. Oskar Omdahl, pilot; Brice Goldsborough, navigator, and Fred Koehler, motor expert. They disappeared while flying from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to Harbor Grace, N. F.

SURFACE OUTLOOK FOR CONGRESS AT HAVANA PLACID

U. S. Leadership Not Likely to Be Questioned in Pan-American Session That Will Open Tomorrow.

U. S. TO JUSTIFY NICARAGUAN POLICY

Charles E. Hughes Head of American Delegation Rests His Case on Treaty of 1923.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—The sixth International Conference of American States, meaning 21 republics of North, South and Central America, will open here Monday with every outward indication of harmony throughout its sessions. All cards appear to be stacked in favor of the effort of the American delegation to keep the conference what it has always been—a society for the exchange of information on such noninflammatory topics as trade and sanitation.

The United States is fortunate in the meeting place. Under the Machado administration, Cuba is probably more friendly to us than is any other Latin-American country. Havana, especially, is under North American influence. President Machado a few weeks ago passed word to Havana newspapers to refrain from criticism of American policy, and they have acceded to his wish.

It is fortunate for the United States, too, that the delegates from Nicaragua are men chosen by the Diaz Government. They will be apologists for, and not critics of, our intervention in that country.

Mexico's Attitude Conciliatory.

Still another important factor making for continued domination of the conference by the United States is the present conciliatory attitude of Mexico. That country, above all others, is in position to embarrass the American delegation headed by Charles Evans Hughes, but indications today are that it will continue to cultivate good relations with the United States Government by careful avoidance of hostile features. Such, at least, is the tenor of the published instructions issued by President Calles to his delegation.

The friendship of Brazil for the United States, the opposition of Chile to the proposed non-intervention formula, the fact that so many of the delegates are diplomats stationed at Washington—all these things weigh heavily against the success of any movement to call into question the motives of the United States in Latin America.

Stirrings Below the Surface.

Yet underneath the placid surface is an undercurrent of tense feeling. Latin-America regards this conference as a critical one in the history of our dealings with the countries south of the Rio Grande. One hears commonly expressed, the opinion that the conference must either develop into something more than a meeting for the exchange of pious platitudes or must die of inanition.

As seen by some observers, both North and South Americans, the real danger is not that there will be an outbreak against the United States at the conference, but that the Latin-American delegates will go away from it with the feeling that they have been steam rollered. It is feared, in other words, that our delegation will be too adroit, too slick, in its suppression of unwelcome topics. If the Latin delegates leave Havana with the impression that they have been overreached, there is certain to be a marked growth of Southern antipathy for "the colossus of the North."

Meantime Havana has hung out its flags for President Coolidge and all is merry as a wedding bell.

TOWN LIMITS HOME ELECTRIC DEVICES HINDERING RADIOS

Fairfield, Iowa, Law Forbids Use of Interfering Appliances Between Noon and Midnight.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRFIELD, Ia., Jan. 14.—Persons who use electrical devices to aid their daily activities in this city must have such work completed before noon each day. If washing machines and vacuum cleaners are operated after that hour and interfere with radio reception, the owner of the cause of the interference is liable to fine of not more than $100, or 30 days in jail. Beginning today, afternoons and evenings in Fairfield belong to radio devotees.

An ordinance forbidding the use of electrical appliances that interfere with radio between noon and midnight went into effect at noon. As the only exception, physicians will be permitted to use X-ray machines in cases of emergency.

The new ordinance, announced 10 days ago, became immediately popular in Fairfield, Mayor Harley Carter said. Copies of the ordinance have been requested from persons in Wisconsin, South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

"TREE OF AMITY" FOR HAVANA

Soil From American Nations to Support Good Will Symbol.

The sapling, called the "tree of amity" or "tree of fraternity," is intended to be symbolical of the ideals and friendship of the participant nations, its growth representing their growth.

STILL ON U. S. JUDGE'S FARM

Kentucky Jurist Makes Discovery While Questioning Defendant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 14.—To his astonishment, Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the Eastern Kentucky District learned last evening that a moonshine still had been operated on his own farm. The disclosure came when Edgar Lawson, tenant farmer, was found guilty by a jury in Judge Cochran's court of operating a still.

After evidence against Lawson had been offered, describing the location of the still destroyed by prohibition agents last summer, Judge Cochran questioned the defendant further and discovered that the farm where the still was found was owned by him and his son-in-law, Thomas Duke, and managed by tenants. Neither the prohibition agents nor the defendant were aware Judge Cochran owned the farm.

FOKKER TOOK OFF JUST BEFORE DAWN

Non-Stop Flight of Maj. L. M. Bourne Betters Record of Maj. E. H. Brainerd Several Weeks Ago.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 14.—Maj. Louis M. Bourne, United States Marine Corps, who hopped off from Miami, Fla., at 5:31 a. m., Eastern standard time, today for a nonstop flight to Managua, arrived here at 5:33 p. m., Central standard time.

Maj. Bourne and his two companions averaged approximately 100 miles an hour on the 1200-mile flight.

The three Marine Corps flyers made the second "line of duty" flight made necessary recently by war conditions in Nicaragua in a big Fokker monoplane, three-motored and radio equipped. Maj. Bourne was accompanied by Radia Officer J. F. Plachta and Mechanic B. F. Belcher.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 14.—Within an hour after the takeoff of the Marine flyers, just before dawn, Lieut. Plachta, radio officer, had flashed the ship's progress over Sombrero Light, 100 miles southward. At 10:03 a. m., Eastern standard time, he reported to the Tropical Radio [illegible]o. here that the plane was passing over the southwestern tip of Cuba and had nosed out over the Caribbean.

The tropical company talked with Maj. Bourne again at noon, learning that the Fokker was maintaining its 100-mile-an-hour speed. Maj. Bourne said he was near the mainland again, having pased over Cozumel, off Yucatan, and was setting a straight course for Tela.

It was at Tela that Maj. E. H. Brainerd, head of Marine aviation forces, was forced down by head winds and darkness on the first Marine corps flight to Managua recently.

Maj .Bourne's plane carried sufficient fuel for a 15-hour flight. Conditions at the take-off were favorable. The aviators' only extra equipment was three ordinary ship's life preservers.

EAST ALTON PAIR HELD AFTER ATTACK ON MAN

Partly Paralyzed Husband Says Wife's Friend Shot at Him.

William D. Harris, 60 years old, and Mrs. Dolly Gannon, 46 years old, of East Alton, were held yesterday, under warrants issued after an attempt had been made to shoot the woman's husband, Alfred, 66 years old, who is partly paralyzed.

Harris was taken to jail at Edwardsville and Mrs. Gannon is in the Alton jail.

The arrest of Harris last Tuesday followed the complaint of Gannon, who said Harris had fired at him with a shotgun. Gannon told police he was walking through a cornfield and heard a click, then a report and felt several pellets sting him in the scalp. He was not badly hurt.

The warrants against Harris and Mrs. Gannon are based on the report of an East Alton policeman, who says he heard Harris describing the circumstances of the shooting to a friend visiting him at the East Alton jail. Neither Harris nor Mrs. Gannon has made a statement. Both were employed at the Western Cartridge Co. plant in Alton.

DRAGGED BY LANDING PLANE

Stunt Flyer, Caught By Dangling Rope, Escapes Serious Injury.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Jan. 14.—Ducked in the ocean twice while he dangled from the landing gear of an airplane, then dragged 400 feet along the beach when the ship made a forced landing, Frank Hefling, stunt flyer, was little the worse tonight for his experience other than a sprained ankle. Several thousand persons witnessed the accident.

Hefling became entangled in the rope and was left dangling, unable to get back on a wing or into the cockpit. Raymond, in an effort to release Hefling without injuring him swung down over Clearwater Bay twice, ducking him in the water, but still he was unable to release himself. Raymond then brought the plane to a landing on the beach.

LEJEUNE REPORTED IN CORINTO HARBOR

Marine Reinforcements 48 Hours Ahead of Time— Rumors President Diaz Will Resign Persist.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Jan. 14.—Forty Nicaraguans were killed today by a Marine Corps airplane squadron that attacked El Chipote, stronghold of Gen. Augustino Sandino, former Liberal leader, the squadron's commander, Maj. Ross E. ("Rusty") Rowell, reported on returning tonight.

The aviators hid 5000 feet in the air behind clouds and dived when opportunity offered to drop bombs, fire machine guns, and even throw hand grenades. This is the first time hand grenades have been thrown from planes against the Nicaraguans.

The squadron left Managua early this morning for El Chipote, 5000 feet above sea level. El Chipote is nearly 20 miles northeast of Quilali, which marines recently captured from the rebel general in the costliest battle to them since they came to Nicaragua.

Threw Hand Grenades.

Waiting above drifting clouds, the planes would dart into clear atmosphere, circle low enough to discern Sandino's positions and drop bombs. They would then sweep lower and strafe the Nicaraguans with machine guns and hand grenades. These tactics were followed time and again with what the squadron considered satisfactorily disastrous results.

Sandino had two anti-aircraft guns which kept peppering away at the planes. He also directed severe rifle fire against the planes. One plane was struck twice by bullets which almost hit the pilot.

One observer said he saw eight rebels killed.

Maj. Rowell had some engine trouble and thought for a while he might have to land in enemy territory.

Lejeune at Corinto.

Marine headquarters was informed tonight that American warships bearing Major-General John A. Lejeune, Brigadier-General Logan Feland, and about 600 Marines were entering the port of Corinto. They had not been expected until Monday.

Insistent rumors that President Diaz will resign because of ill health are prevalent. Elected by the Nicaraguan Congress after the intervention of American Marines, Diaz has been chief executive since last November. He was president also from 1911 to 1917 and inaugurated Nicaragua's new currency and the National Bank.

Brother Urged Diaz to Resign.

Gen. Carman Diaz, brother of the president, told the Associated Press he had requested his brother to resign. The president has been a victim of malarial fever for some time and his family considers the strain of the coming election, in addition to the present strain brought about by the presence of American Marines and pressure of political problems too great for him.

If Diaz should resign Gen. Bartolome Viquez, first designate Senator, would become president. Viquez now is Nicaraguan consul in New Orleans.

The new law giving Gen. Frank McCoy dictatorial powers at the coming election has been adopted by the Senate, but is meeting with opposition in the Chamber of Deputies. Some of the Deputies assert that it is unconstitutional.

WILBUR DEFEATED ON TIME LIMIT IN BUILDING NAVY

House Committee Votes for Completion in Eight Years, Instead of at No Definite Date.

TAKES NO CHANCE ON "PAPER FLEET"

Refuses 15 to 1 to Grant President Permission to Suspend Construction at Any Time.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur's recommendation that no definite date be set for completion of the administration's $740,000,000 new warship construction program was rejected today by an overwhelming vote by the House Naval Committee.

The committee also rejected another proposal by Wilbur that the President be empowered to suspend the proposed construction either in part or in whole at any time he may deem it advisable.

Fifteen members voted against Wilbur on the first proposal with one, McClintic (Dem.), Oklahoma, recording himself as present. The Secretary's second request was rejected 15 to 1, McClintic voting to support Wilbur.

No "Paper Fleet."

Immediately after the meeting four Republican members, Chairman Butler, Britten of Illinois, Darrow of Pennsylvania and Andrew of Massachusetts, interpreted the committee's action as a positive expression in favor of "actual iron and steel" ships instead of a possible "paper fleet."

Butler explained that a majority of the committee felt that in any new warship construction bill it might report to the House, a specific time for completion should be provided. Otherwise, he said, there would be no assurance to the country that all or any of the vessels would ever be launched.

Cites Previous Fiasco.

"If we had only a straight authorization for the vessels, they might never be constructed," the committee chairman continued. "What the committee decided to do today was to provide that this fleet shall be built by mechanics and not by paper makers."

The chairman recalled that last session the Budget Bureau failed to recommend funds to start construction on the last three of the eight cruisers authorized in 1924, and that funds for these ships were provided by Congress in spite of the budget recommendations.

"We want to prevent a repetition of that occurrence," he declared.

McClintic said after the meeting that Secretary Wilbur in presenting the program had declared it was in harmony with President Coolidge's fiscal plans and that he did not believe the Secretary would have requested the omission of the date of completion if the President had not so desired.

"Slap in Face" for Coolidge.

"To refuse this request would look like a slap in the face," he said. "In the event of another disarmament conference it would be impossible for the President to hold up the building even though he might consider it advisable. I don't think he would have asked authority to put the brakes on construction unless he felt that he should have that power."

The motion to provide for a definite date of completion was offered by Darrow. It follows: "It is the sense of this committee that the new construction program shall provide for a five-year program to be completed in eight years, stating the maximum number of ships to be undertaken each year, and the maximum cost of the same and following the principle of the five-year aviation program adopted by Congress last year."

It is the committee's plan to take up next week the advisability of approving the 25 cruisers, five aircraft carriers, nine destroyer leaders and 32 submarines proposed in the administration's program.

All Placid on Surface for Pan-American Congress

however, as seems likely, the weather is fine, the Memphis will carry the party, escorted by seven destroyers to the anchorage of the battleship Texas, eight miles off shore. The party will then be transferred to the Texas and will complete the trip to Havana on that vessel. No salutes will be fired by the warships because it will be Sunday when the President goes aboard.

Up early to say goodbye to Secretary Davis of the Labor Department who left the train at Jacksonville, Fla., Mr. Coolidge was soon at his table in the dining car to eat a breakfast of fruits with rice cakes and honey.

Today brought the party into the sunshine and warm weather of Florida, where large crowds of people were on hand at every station to wave a welcome to President and Mrs. Coolidge.

The train stopped at Jacksonville and New Smyrna and passed slowly through other cities. At Miami a halt was made for a short automobile tour of the city. Crowds lined the 10-mile route followed by the presidential party.

Announcement of Policy.

The American delegation to the Pan-American Congress will seek to establish there a spirit of good will in which to solve common problems of the new world, free from all suspicion of aggressiveness and dictation. The American delegation will stand squarely on the policy which the Washington Government has professed for many years, claiming no special privileges and desirous of imposing no selfish aims.

In addition it is stated authoritatively that the delegation, headed by Charles Evans Hughes, is prepared to face any repercussion from the recent American policy in Nicaragua, which involved the sending of Marines. The viewpoint of the Washington government, it was made known, will be presented upon the double consideration that the trouble in the Central American republic denotes no quarrel with the Nicaraguan government, and upon the United States policy of encouraging stable and constitutional regimes in the Carribbean.

Facing Nicaraguan Question.

American obligations under the 1923 five-power treaty, it was stated, precluded indifference on the part of the United States to events in Nicaragua. It will be Hughes' attitude that this treaty—which binds the signatory governments not to recognize any administration which came into power by a coup d'etat unless acted upon favorably by the Washington government—otherwise would be virtually without weight.

Acting on the belief that the attitude of the American delegation should be neither one of aloofness nor one of aggression, Hughes and his associates are prepared to fall in willingly with any program the Cuban Government may have arranged for the congress.

It is the expectation of the American delegation that the conference will be harmonious and constructive and free from local and partisan considerations.

After a conference today with President Coolidge on the train, Hughes expressed his good will toward the Mexican people and declared that recent developments in Mexico had pointed the way to a satisfactory solution of the questions at issue between that country and the United States.

Cuban President Says Congress Can't Judge Nicaraguan Question.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—Gen. Gerardo Machado, President of the Cuban Republic, said today that it was not within the province of the Pan-American Conference to assume the role of a tribunal to judge the Nicaraguan problem or the general policy of the United States with respect to intervention in small states, as the Congress has no such rights. It would be dangerous, he said, to establish such a precedent.

"Resolutions of an International Congress are without efficacy, if they lack the support of all the members," he said. "These are my opinions, and they are based on the instructions the Cuban delegation has received.

"I desire to regard the Monroe Doctrine as representing the noble action of a Prseident of the United States who prevented the reconquest of America at the time of the holy alliance. The Monroe Doctrine was, and ought to remain, the common defensive policy for the territorial integrity of America. The Monroe Doctrine is not only compatible with the sovereignty of America below the Rio Grande, but is a document giving the greatest force to that right.

"Cuba's membership in the League of Nations does not influence Cuba's adherence to the Pan-American Union."

Without exception conference delegates who have been interviewed look to President Coolidge to make vital pronouncements in his address to the conference. They expressed the belief that he would bring an important message which might bind more closely the bonds of sympathy throughout the Western world.

He said special instructions would be sent to the Colombian delegation later, but declined to discuss the nature of the instructions.

VAULT PREPARED IN ABBEY FOR THOMAS HARDY'S ASHES

Three Simultaneous Services Monday; Separate Interment for Novelist's Heart.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Westminster Abbey echoed tonight to the unwonted sounds of a dozen masons and other workers preparing by dim lamps, according to ancient custom in secrecy, a narrow vault in the floor of the poets' corner for the reception of the ashes of Thomas Hardy. The body of the noted novelist was cremated this afternoon at Woking with brief and simple ceremony.

Sir James M. Barrie and two intimate friends were the only witnesses. They conveyed the urn with the ashes to London, where it reposed tonight above the altar in St. Faith Chapel, opening off poets' corner. Here, lighted by candles, it will remain until Monday's ceremony.

A temporary platform is being erected around the vault. It will be covered with mauve, with white piping, to accommodate the mourners and clergy at the funeral, when the urn will be deposited in the vault and covered with a stone bearing a simple inscription.

There will be three simultaneous services on Monday afternoon—one a tthe Abbey, another at the interment of the novelist's heart at St. Insford, and a memorial service at St. Peter's, Dorchester.

HOUSTON TO BUILD 25,000-SEAT HALL FOR DEMOCRATS

Temporary Auditorium to Be Erected for National Convention at Cost of $100,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The suggestion of Gov. Smith of New York for an early draft of a tentative Democratic platform is to be considered by the committee on arrangements for the June convention at its next meeting, to be held at Houston in April.

In disclosing this plan today, Chairman Jesse H. Jones also announced that a temporary convention hall seating 25,000 will be erected in Houston at an approximate cost of $100,000. The present auditorium there seats only 6500.

Gov. Smith, in his letter, read at the Jackson day dinner, said he believed the Democrats had "erred in the past by waiting for the national convention to undertake the entire task of preparing a platform," and advocated a tentative declaration of party principles "at the earliest possible moment."

Opinions for and against the idea have been expressed by members of the National Committee here for a quadrennial meeting, and now the suggestion has been definitely tabled by the Arrangements Committee until April, when it will be taken up. Chairman Jones said, with many other proposals.

Jones, who lives in Houston, plans to consult with architects in New York tomorrow regarding specifications for the huge temporary convention structure. Word has been given by H. A. Halverton, Houston Land and Tax Commissioner, that the city will volunteer recently acquired public land known as Herman Square for a site. This tract is favored by Jones, since it is located within easy reach of downtown Houston, where the majority of delegates will be housed.

Houston's successful convention bid had no relation to the Democratic National Committee debt, said Jones, who added that this approximates $225,000, and is expected to be wiped out by contributions from wealthy Democrats.

Houston to Erect Temporary Auditorium for Convention.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 14.—Houston's proposed civic center, situated five blocks from the heart of the city, today was placed at the disposal of the committee on arrangements for the Democratic National Convention as the site for a temporary auditorium to be erected for the sessions. Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe, who offered the land, announced that as soon as Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the arrangements committee, returns to Houston, plans would be made to clear the plot of the small frame buildings which now occupy it. The property is more than a block in area.

The temporary auditorium will be three blocks from the city auditorium which the committee decided against using because of its limited seating capacity. A city park, covering a block, borders on the civic center property, which is contiguous to the public library. The site is away from the noise of heavy traffic and has the advantage of being so situated that no tall buildings will obstruct the usual summer gulf breezes.

It is within a couple of blocks of the main transportation lines and altogether is regarded as an ideal spot for convention purposes. The leading hotels are within easy walking distance. Business of the commercial telegraph companies has doubled here since the convention was awarded to Houston. Hundreds of telegrams have been received for hotel reservations and messages have poured in congratulating Jesse H. Jones on his success in bringing the convention here.

FARM PRICES LEVEL HIGHER

General Averages 10 Points Higher Than Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The general average of farm prices on Dec. 15 at 137 was the same as on Nov. 15, and 10 points higher than a year ago, the Department of Agriculture reported today, in its monthly summary of farm prices and business conditions. Most of the commodities included in the index showed moderate price increases, but were offset by a decline in the prices of cotton and hogs, the report said.

With the exception of wheat, hay, potatoes, hogs, eggs and chickens, it said, most of the commodities are above last year's prices. The report predicted that the level of farm prices on Jan. 15 would not be materially different from that of the past three months. Although stating that business conditions in general during December appeared to have shown no material change from those of November, the report said production and freight distribution ended the year at levels considerably below last year.

LINDBERGH TAKES TO PANAMA WILDS FOR A SHORT REST

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 14.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh started the only holiday he has had since he left Washington for Mexico City by going today to Boquete, near David, about 200 miles from Panama City, where he will spend several days hunting and fishing while the Spirit of St. Louis is overhauled for the flight to Caracas, Venezuela, in the next four or five days.

Lindbergh left here in an army pursuit plane with Lieut. Douglas and Lieut. Parker, who were flying similar machines, at 9:30 o'clock this morning. They landed at David two hours later and immediately went by motor car to Chiriqui. From there they went by railroad to Boquete.

They are now staying at Joe Wright's hotel, operated by a native of Texas, former employe of the Panama Canal. Here the flyer will be able to get in his hunting, some swimming and the rest he needs after his arduous program of flying and receptions through Central America.

Army aviators returning from Boquete, said that Americans there had received the famous flyer with great enthusiasm. His coming was a complete surprise to them.

Near Boquete is supposed to reside the last of the descendants of the philosopher, Emmanuel Kant.

Plenty of Game in Bush.

There are big coffee plantations in the region and in the bush tapirs and mountain lions and deer provide excellent hunting. There are also Central America tigers, ducks and wild turkeys. It is always cool there. The men who accompanied Lindbergh frequently hunt in the region.

A story is related today of how at a municipal reception yesterday Lindbergh was prevailed upon to drink a glass of champagne in response to a toast. At first he attempted to get by with merely sipping the champagne, but finally complied when he was urged to drink the entire glass.

Meanwhile the French trans-Atlantic flyers, Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, spent a busy day rendering courtesies at the De Lesseps, Bolivar and Firemen's monuments in Panama and the American Legion tablet at Balboa, visiting the ruins of old Panama and reviewing the Thirty-Third Infantry.

French Flyers Visit Fort.

Then they went by train to Fort Clayton, where they called on Brigadier Graves, commander of the Panama Department of the Army, and Col. Harry Burgess, Acting Governor of the Canal Zone. They had lunch with Col. Burgess and afterward were escorted to the Pedro Miguel Locks, watching the traffic.

In the afternoon they were guests of honor at a reception aboard the French cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, at Balboa, and in the evening at another reception at the Union Club. Everywhere they are received with oviations and their animation has captivated the hearts of Panama, which sees the Latin heroes as contrasting with the reserve of Lindbergh. The Frenchmen are expected to remain here sveral days.

Costes and Lebrix today passed through the streets hardly noticed and quenched their thirst in a sidewalk cafe, unbothered by the crowd. They are admired on every hand, however, for their frankness, democrary and readiness to laugh. They go through the city eyeing every one with genuine curiosity, laughing and chatting.

DIPLOMATIC MISSION TO NATIONS OF WORLD IS PROPOSED FOR LINDBERGH

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

A DIPLOMATIC mission made to order for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was proposed in a resolution today by Senator McKellar (Dem.) of Tennessee.

He suggested that such a mission be created to invite the nations of the world to a conference here in 1928 for the codification of international law. The invitation would be sent by an airplane "driven by a practical aeronautical navigator well known to the cities of the world who has made a successful non-stop flight across the Atlantic Ocean." The "mission" would receive $25,000 and expenses.

Sandino's Brother to Address New York Protest Meeting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The announcement that Socrates Sandino, younger brother of Gen. Augustino Sandino, leader of the Nicaraguan forces, is in New York and will make his first public address in this country, at a protest mass meeting of Sandino sympathizers at Irving Plaza Hall, Irving Pace, tomorrow afternoon, has aroused the indignation of the American Legion. This afternoon, Sidney G. Gumpertz, commander of the S. Rankin Drew Post of the Legion, West 42d street, wrote to Secretary of Labor John J. Davis asking that the right of the younger Sandino to be in this country be examined with a view to deporting him for attacking the American Government.

In his letter Gumpertz links Sandino with Communism.

Socrates Sandino it is said has been living quietly at No. 107 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, for several months, working as a machinist.

The paraders were dispersed by mounted police three times before the demonstration ended. In their final effort, police used their clubs on those who refused to move on.

CALLS TALE OF ESCAPE FROM REBELS FICTION

Mexican General Challenges American's Story of Killing Four Captors With Bottle.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 14.—The story of Lyman F. Barber, American engineer, that he had escaped from a rebel band by killing four guards with a rum bottle, was challenged today by Gen. Eulogio Ortiz, military commandant of the State of Mexico, who described Barber's account as "worthy of a Hollywood scenario."

Oritz asserts that after Barber's arrival in Mexico City, he stated active pursuit of the band which the American said had kidnapped him three weeks earlier. The General says he overtook the band and made several prisoners whose testimony did not support Barber's story.

Esteban Valenzuela, one of the prisoners, states that the whole rebel band was celebrating the festivity of a patron saint in a mountain village when Barber and three guards disappeared. Valenzuela asserts that Barber's "faithful servant Pedro," who, according to Barber, courageously assisted him in killing four rebel guards by striking them on the head with a rum bottle and some stones after getting them drunk, actually is one of the missing guards.

Gen. Ortiz says his investigation revealed that Barber had bribed three guards and quietly marched out of town unnoticed amidst the general festivity.

MORE TROOPS ORDERED TO 'OYSTER WAR' ZONE

Gov. Byrd Sends Two Militia Units to Mobjack Bay Region in Virginia.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14.—Two additional units of the Virginia National Guard will be ordered to proceed to Gloucester County to help preserve peace in the Mobjack Bay section, where illegal dredging is threatening an "oyster war," Gov. Harry F. Byrd said today.

The Governor was in conference with officers of the National Guard shortly before noon to decide what troops would be sent. Company K of the 183rd Infantry at Norfolk was ordered out into yesterday.

Gov. Byrd later issued orders for Company C of Richmond and Company G of Petersburg, units of the 183rd Infantry, to join Company K at Mobjack Bay. Maj. W. W. Poindexter of the 183rd Infantry was placed in command.

In addition to ordering out the three companies, with a strength of approximately 160 men, Gov. Byrd telegraphed Sheriff Hall, of Gloucester County, to appoint deputies to assist the troops in preserving peace and order.

No trouble has been experienced in the area since Wednesday night when the State patrol boat Katie was fired on and driven from Mobjack Bay by men who later, with approximately 15 boats, dredged oysters from leased grounds. Dredging at night is an offense itself, even on public rocks.

ST. LOUIS AIRPORT TO BE LIGHTED AND EQUIPPED AT ONCE

Lambert Field, Now the City's, to Be Put Under Supervision of Park Commissioner.

AIRPLANE RUNWAYS ARE TO BE INSTALLED

$1,000,000 Bond Proposal to Make Airdrome Lindbergh Memorial to Go to the Voters.

Lambert-St. Louis Field, now a municipal airport by virtue of an ordinance signed by Mayor Miller yesterday, is to be graded, lighted, drained and otherwise equipped as a first-class airdome within the next month, according to plans jointly shared by administration officials and representatives of flying interests at the field.

Mayor Miller announced the field would be under the supervision of Park Commissioner Pape and directed the Commissioner to confer with Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, owner of the field, about plans for its development.

Lambert is renting 176 acres of the field to the city for $1 for 18 months, and the remaining 76 acres—for which he recently paid $76,000—for $10,000. The latter amount, as is known, is applicable on the purchase of the field if the city decides to buy it, and returnable to the city if it does not. Lambert has agreed to sell the 76 acres for what he paid for the land, and the remaining 176 acres for only $60,000, less than half value.

During the past several months Lambert, who has spent thousands of dollars from his own funds in keeping up the field, has worked out plans for lighting and grading it and these, it is understood, will be presented to Commissioner Pape for his approval.

The airport ordinance appropriates a total of $50,000. After $10,000 has been spent for the lease of the 76-acre addition to the field, there will be $40,000 for lighting, grading and draining the field and installing runways. The lighting will cost between $6000 and $10,000.

Next November a $1,000,000 bond issue proposal for the permanent acquisition of the field as a memorial to Col. Lindbergh will be submitted to the voters with the sanction of Mayor Miller and the others who have backed the present airport ordinance. If the bond issue is passed it will permit enlargement of the field to 608 acres and its equipment as one of the finest airports in the world.

TOLL BRIDGE PROMOTERS WANT HIGHWAY CONNECTIONS

The proposed highway toll bridge over the Missouri River at the end of Olive Street road will not be erected unless the State Highway Commission guarantees construction of a road to connect it with highway No. 40, the St. Louis-Kansas City road, the St. Charles County Court has been told by an attorney for the promoters. The commission has announced it will build such a road, of broad concrete, if the proposed State bond issue passes.

The St. Charles County Court promised an answer by tomorrow to the request of the promoters, E. H. Elliot & Associates of Chicago, for a franchise in that county. Similar application has been made for the St. Louis County side, and it has been stipulated that excess earnings of the bridge would be devoted to retiring its securities so that eventually it would become free and under State ownership.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Directors of the American Zinc, Lead, & Smelting Co. have appropriated $700,000 for the current year to concentrate the spelter and sulphuric acid departments at the smelter in East St. Louis and the zinc and oxide department at the plant in Columbus, O.

No new financing will be required.

Customer Obtains Judgment Against East St. Louis Bar Man.

A judgment of $1200 against Milan Tatalovich, soft drink saloon proprietor of East St. Louis, was awarded to Michael Loes, also of East St. Louis, by a jury in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday. It was the second trial of Loes' suit, in which he asked for $10,000 damages for personal injury suffered in Tatalovich's saloon.

Loes testified that he and another man entered the saloon on May 11, 1925, and were preparing to purchase drinks when Tatalovich came in with a revolver and opened fire on him, wounding him in the head. Tatalovich's defense was that he fired in defense of his wife, who, he said, was being handled roughly by Loes.

GRANDMOTHER TO JAIL FOR SELLING LIQUOR

Roadhouse Keeper Unable to Pay $800 Fine for Second Offense.

Unable to pay an $800 fine for a second offense in the sale of liquor, Mrs. Daisy Wilkerson, 50 years old and a grandmother, went to jail yesterday to serve 30 days. She then may make a pauper's oath and be released.

She was fined by Federal Judge Faris, who on a previous occasion had fined her $400 for selling liquor. The liquor sales were at a roadhouse on the Lemay Ferry road called "The Cottage," which Mrs. Wilkerson operated until recently. Her attorney told Federal Judge Faris that she had sold the place and was living with her daughter and granddaughter at 5111 Rosa avenue.

Tom O'Mally, saloonkeeper of 408 South Second street, got a three months 'sentence, and Pompeo Maza, owner of a saloon at Olive Street road and Spring avenue, was sentenced to four months in jail when they pleaded guilty of the sale of liquor.

Fees Collected Total $158,331; Divorce Slump Reduces Receipts, Says Schmoll.

Circuit Clerk John Schmoll completed his report yesterday on the business transacted in the Circuit Court during the last year. The report, which is addressed to the Mayor and City Comptroller, shows that the Clerk's office collected in fees from all sources a total of $158,331.10, and after paying administration expenses there was left a surplus of $11,276.15 to be turned over to the City Treasurer. The largest item of expense consisted of salaries to the 70 employes in the Clerk's office amounting to $144,321.29 Schmoll's salary of $7500 a year also was included. Salaries for extra work amounted to $2358.66. The 16 Circuit Judges are paid by the city and State jointly, but $12,680.50 was collected by the Clerk to be applied on their salaries. They receive $8000 a year.

The surplus was about $1000 less than for the preceding year, due to the fact, Schmoll explained, that about 400 fewer divorce cases were tried. This loss caused a corresponding reduction in the amount of fees collected from divorce cases.

According to a record compiled by the Clerk 13,084 suits were filed in the Circuit Court last year. Of this number 3836 were divorce suits, 8500 damage suits and the remainder were suits in equity. No record was available showing the number of damage and equity suits tried in the same period but the amount fell far short of the actual number of suits filed.

Hyman Cohn of 946 Catalpa street was arrested and charged with felonious wounding and careless driving.

STATE LEADS SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF GIRL, 5

Michigan Governor Arrives on Scene and Offers $1000 Reward.

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 14.—Gov. Fred W. Green arrived here tonight and after reviewing the efforts so far of Chief of Police C. J. Scavarda of Flint and Sheriff Frank Green of Genesee County to find the slayer of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider, who was kidnaped and killed Thursday, ordered Oscar Olander, State Commissioner of Public Safety, to assume direction of the man hunt. Olander, it was said, will arrive here tomorrow morning.

The Sheriff and Police Chief were commended by the executive for their efforts in the investigation.

"This crime is so atrocious that for its perpetrator to remain at large not only would be a stain on the name of law enforcement and decency in the State, but would represent a menace to every citizen, father and mother or child," Gov. Green said.

Governor Stays at Flint.

He expressed the opinion that a definite leadership, co-relating the efforts of all law enforcement officials engaged in the search, would lend impetus to the hunt and make it more thorough as well as far-reaching. The Governor proposed to stay overnight and supervise the inauguration of the new order of things.

Late tonight a suspect, whose description, police said, tallied in many respects with that of the Mount Morris slayer, was taken into custody by Detroit police. The man, who gave his age as 57, could give no coherent account of his whereabouts the day of the slaying.

Another clew, which was said to have involved a Bay City resident, was investigated tonight, but, according to officials here, was without result. The suspect was said to have been cleared of suspicion when Archie Babon, Mount Morris farmer, who helped the slayer remove his car from from a mudhole, was unable to identify him.

Search Goes On Secretly.

Due to the frame of mind of citizens stirred to a high pitch by the kidnaping and murder, police tonight decided against giving out further information regarding the progress of the search for the slayer.

One man was severely beaten here today by fellow workers of Leslie Schneider, father of the slain child, when in discussing the case he is said to have made a remark which angered his attackers.

A detail of State police, assisted by local officers who searched a patch of woods north of here today, found a handkerchief which they said bore the initials "L. D." or "L. S." and which was similar to one found by Sheriff's officers near the scene of the slaying.

NEW ENDURANCE FLIGHT PLANNED BY CHAMBERLIN

Forced Down by Lack of Gasoline, Within Half Hour of World Record, He Will Try Again.

By the Associated Press.

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Undaunted by failure to establish a new record for duration flying, after a gruelling struggle for 51 hours 52 minutes and 24 seconds, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams tonight were planning to start their third joint attempt at dawn, Monday.

The flyers came down out of skies at 2:04 p. m., today, having taken off at 10:12 a. m., Thursday, in an effort to break the present world record of 52 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds, held by Risticz and Edzard of Germany, who won the honor by shuttling back and forth between Dessau and Leipzig.

Chamberlin had bettered by 40 minutes and 59 seconds the American record he made with Bert Acosta last April.

Chamberlin and Williams came within 30 minutes and 7 seconds of the world's record. In order to establish a new record, the rules require competitors to remain in the air one hour longer than the previous winners, so Chamberlin and Williams missed success by an hour and a half.

Make Plans for Third Trial.

They were hollow-eyed from fatigue and disappointed at their second defeat this week, but their fighting spirits, put to the test after long hours of sickness, cold and hunger, remained unshaken. Barely two hours after they were forced to land for lack of fuel, they were making plans for their third duration flight attempt instead of getting the sleep they had been looking forward to.

The flyers reached their decision in their rooms at a hotel in Garden City, where they had gone to get food and rest. Having made up their minds, they immediately donned their oil-smeared flying clothes again, motored to Mitchel Field and prepared to fly their monoplane to Curtiss Field, nearby, to have it reconditioned.

Land With Gasoline Tanks Empty.

The pilots landed with a "dead stick." They did not have even enough gasoline left in their tanks to taxi their plane from the far end of the field to the operations office, less than half a mile away.

Among the first to greet the aviators when they landed were Chamberlin's wife, and A. R. Martine, backer of the flight; G. M. Ballanca, designer of their plane, and Mitchel Field officers.

At their hotel the flyers said they had no appetite and did not want to eat much. However, Chamberlin asked for a glass of warm milk. Williams preferred hot coffee.

Chamberlin described how most of their supply of sandwiches had been ruined by the poisonous ethyl-gasoline, leaking from one of the gravity tanks in the wings; how the "terrible coffee" in their thermos bottles had made them sick; how they had endured intense cold when the heat pipe in their cabin, leading from the exhaust, had broken on their first night in the air.

Discover Leak During Night.

"I discovered the leaking tank when I turned on my flashlight to make an examination on Thursday night," Chamberlin said. "We refilled the tank just the same and used it for several hours. We each did two and three-hour watches. These little snatches of sleep and occasional drinks of water kept us going. When we tried to eat some of the sandwiches that survived the gasoline bath, they made us sick, just like the coffee, which was the most terrible stuff I ever tasted.

"This morning at 7:30, we forgot to eat. We were too busy trying to figure out how far we could go on the gas we had left. Since then, we had been using about five gallons of gas an hour. When we saw we might not make the grade, we chucked away our thermos bottles, a couple of dozen sandwiches and a box of flashlight batteries. They landed on some farm in Westbury, I think.

"That's all there is to it. We came down when our tanks went dry, and the stick died."

"He means," interrupted Williams with a smile, "that we came down when we ran out of conversation."

BRIGHT BLOOMS IN CONTRAST TO SMOKE-DAMAGED ONES

Primroses and "Alpine Violets" Displayed at Shaw's Garden With "Black Christmas" Plants.

Primroses and cyclamen, or "Alpine violets," make a pretty display, contrasting with smoke-damaged plants in the floral display house this week at Shaw's Garden.

Chinese primroses in white, pink and deep red make up a central circular bed. About them are four beds of the much smaller "fairy" primrose, with clusters of dainty lilac-tinted blossoms. Cyclamen in gleaming white and flaming red, with some shades in between, have the balcony, and at the foot of the steps is the exhibit of plants which suffered in the smoke pall of "black Christmas."

$175,000 COAL FRAUD INQUIRY BY GRAND JURY

honest weight, the other with a ton or more added. If the recipient of the coal was not suspicious, the driver was to get his signature to the false ticket and destroy the other. But, if the customer suspects short-weight, or city weight inspectors were on the job, then the ticket showing the honest weight was to be used, and the padded ticket destroyed.

At first Mellick permitted the drivers to destroy the tickets, but after he found Schmieding was saving the unused tickets in his pockets, Mellick insisted that tickets be destroyed in his office stove. A stack of tickets which Schmieding saved will be used as evidence, together with records of the coal company seized in a raid on its office Friday night, when the arrests began.

One of Schmieding's tickets, for example, showed an actual delivery of 7180 pounds of coal to the Courthouse on one occasion, whereas the driver obtained a receipt for 15,400 pounds. Another example shows purported delivery of 11,240 pounds of coal to the City Hospital, March 13, 1926, and actual delivery of 7240 pounds.

Short Weight for Police.

Mellick said only two places were excepted from short-weight deliveries—the City Hall, where there is a wagon scale, and the apartments at 6100 Pershing avenue, owned by Mayor Miller. Short-weight deliveries were made, he said, to police stations, fire engine houses, sub-postoffices, public schools and institutions like City Hospital, the Courthouse, the Infirmary and Municipal Lodging House, also to apartment houses, flats and dwellings.

There were "extenuating circumstances" for the company's methods, Mellick thought, because, he said, the company bid so low on some municipal contracts its legitimate profit was negligible and also because it had to pay for coal lost in transit from the mines.

As a reward for his "padding" services, Mellick said, his salary was raised to $200 a month from $125 and last Christmas the firm gave him a $200 bonus and paid a debt on his automobile. The company's drivers, he added, were paid 83 cents for each honest load of coal delivered, and $1 for the short-weight loads. The helpers who put the coal in basements were paid a certain amount for each ton of coal billed: If seven tons were billed, and only five tons actually delivered, they were paid as if they had put in seven tons.

Two Make Denials of Fraud.

The company also was generous with Secretary-Treasurer Whelan, paying him a $1000 Christmas bonus, as well as $350 monthly salary. Whelan denied knowledge of any fraud, and asserted employes who made statements implicating him were moved by animosity. Oscar Happe also denied complicity in the frauds.

Comptroller Nolte has suspended payments to the company for coal recently delivered. Three vouchers were about to be cashed when the disclosures were made.

The Better Business Bureau has established a special coal section to investigate complaints of short weights, substitution of inferior grades and misleading advertising.

TIME IS OUT OF JOINT, SAYS 'GENERAL' COXEY

"General" Jacob S. Coxey who, 34 years ago, led the famous "Coxey's army" of unemployed to Washington, was in St. Louis yesterday on the way to Oklahoma City where he will address a meeting of farmers Tuesday, telling them of modern "evils" which are working hardships on them.

Gen. Coxey, who has no idea where any members of his "army" now may be, expressed the opinion that conditions are worse now in the United States than they were in 1894 when his march took place.

"There's hardly anything can be done about it, though, for men seem to have lost the nerve they used to have," Gen. Coxey lamented. "Do you think any one could organize 1000 men and march them to Washington for any purpose at all now? Bah! They wouldn't even go across the street. They're all jazz mad these days. Pleasure—that's what's making people soft and namby-pamby."

Has Scheme for Loans.

The "general," who now is president and treasurer of the Coxey Silica Sand Co., of Massillon, O., is doing what he can to inform people of the advantages of a scheme he has, whereby municipalities or individuals could borrow money without paying interest, or without having their belongings or property seized should they default in payment of the principal.

"The wealth of the nation belongs to the people," Coxey said. "Then why shouldn't the Government lend money to cities and municipalities, without interest, the city in turn using the money for public improvements or to make loans to its residents for the erection of private buildings or homes? The money could be paid back to the Government at the rate of 4 per cent a year, say, without interest, and the saving to the people of this nation would be $7,000,000,000 a year, which now is paid out annually in interest charges.

"Then a family wouldn't be sold out of its home; a farmer wouldn't lose his farm and small industries, forced to borrow money, wouldn't be run for the money lenders, as is so often true, but would be run for the stockholders."

Gen. Coxey, who now is 74 years old, spends most of his time on the road selling the product of his company—a type of sand used largely by steel companies. Between times, he addresses meetings of organizations, mainly those of farmers, telling them his views of the money situation.

"I often think of the good old days when we were marching to Washington," Gen. Coxey reflected, his blue eyes twinkling as he ran a hand through a thatch of silver hair. "They were fine men in my 'army.' I remember that when 150 of them marched into Massillon from the Pacific Coast to meet me, I thought they would like a schooner of beer and made arrangements at a saloon accordingly. But all of them turned down the offer of a beer. They had pledged not to drink during the hike. Imagine anybody turning down an offer of a schooner of beer in these days of so-called prohibition!"

CHURCH SUES TWO INSURANCE FIRMS OVER LOSS IN TORNADO

Two tornado insurance policies representing $5000 are at issue in suits filed by the Hyde Park Congregational Church, Blair and Bremen avenues, growing out of its damages by the tornado last Sept. 29. One suit is against the Providence Washington Insurance Co. of Rhode Island, filed yesterday in the Circuit Court. The other is against a Chicago fire insurance company, filed at Carthage, Mo.

The question at issue concerns which of the companies is liable for payment. In the suit against the Rhode Island corporation, the amount sought is $4684.26, allowing for a payment of $315.75 Sept. 26 for a storm loss by the church last May. This payment was made when the policy in that company was cancelled and the company reinsured the church with the Chicago concern. However, the church, in order to preserve a technical point, prefers to have the payment credited on the later loss.

In the tornado the church property, valued at $40,000 suffered damages amounting to $18,911.97, the plaintiff states. No other storm insurance was carried by the church, consel asserted.

Both companies, it is alleged, deny liability, asserting the policies sued on were not in force.

TWO MAROONED ON ICE SIX DAYS, FIVE NIGHTS

Manager of Hog Station and Helper Caught on Drifting Garbarge Barge.

Marooned on a barge of garbage in the ice-filled Mississippi for six days and five nights, William F. Hartman, manager of a hog receiving station at the foot of Chouteau avenue, and his Negro helper, Ezekiel Wiley, are under care of physicians today, suffering from extended exposure.

The men went out on the barge Jan. 7 when it was held in the ice near Cliff Cave, 18 miles south of St. Louis. While they ewere aboard, the ice, which then filled the river, pushed the barge out near the center of the river, where the men were forced to remain until Thursday noon when another caprice of the ice pushed the barge close to shore, permitting them to walk in.

Unable to Reach Shore.

"We walked out on the ice to the barge to put some lines on it and make it fast to shore," Hartman related. "It had broken loose from moorings at the foot of Chouteau avenue the day before, loaded with garbage for the hogs which my company fattens on an island near Ste. Genevieve.

"As we were on the barge we heard a crunching of ice and the barge began moving out into the stream. We couldn't get off because large waterholes had appeared between in the ice. Night came on and the barge moved along by inches with us sitting out there under the stars, wondering if the craft would hold up against the pounding ice.

Managed to Start Fire.

"Sunday morning I found a piece of hatchet in the garbage and knocked some planks loose for a fire. That night it rained and Zeke and I sat around a small fire we managed to keep going, without shelter of any kind from the downpour.

"We had eaten nothing since Saturday morning and were hungry, chilled and miserable. I stood going without food until Monday noon and then dug into the garbage and found some bread. Both of us lived on bread we dug out until we were able to get off the barge Thursday about noon.

"Wednesday night Zeke and I took turns praying for deliverance for by then we thought we would never be saved. Our employers knew we were marooned, but they could not reach us and were as helpless as we were.

"My doctor has ordered me to the hospital because of the possibility I may contract pneumonia. Zeke's ears and hands were partly frozen and one of my toes has been numb since. And take it from me, if you hear any one criticizing the garbage we feed our hogs, you can tell them for Zeke and I both, that it isn't half bad."

Of Great Interest to Many

SINCE the fire which occurred in our building, 1004 Olive St., January 2nd, hundreds of persons have besieged us to ascertain whether or not an opportunity will be afforded them at a later date to procure at reduced prices instruments damaged in this fire, but in good condition.

Our stocks have now been moved to our new shops and a large corps of factory mechanics is busy going over all Pianos, Duo Art Reproducing Pianos, Radios, Phonographs and combination instruments. Whatever instruments are sound in every detail will be offered to the public at very reduced prices.

It is our intention to offer these instruments at prices that will astound St. Louis. But you must be patient; because work of this sort consumes much time and care.

Our present location, where we shall remain until our building is reconditioned is the Lucks-Orwig-Leroi Building at 1117-1119 Locust St. Complete new stocks are already on display of Steinway and other fine Pianos, R. C. A. Radiolas, Orthophonic Victrolas and Brunswick Panatropes.

The President of this company will be very glad to have you write him personally if you are interested in any of these instruments and it will be his pleasure to notify you two days in advance of the opening date of the sale so that you may be able to view these instruments at your leisure.

EVERYTHING DONE TO SAVE S-4 MEN, ADMIRAL SAYS

Brumby Assumes Responsibility for Conduct of Submarine Rescue Operations.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—Everything humanly possible was done to save the six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the submarine S-4, Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby testified today before the Naval Court of Inquiry investigating the S-4 disaster. He assumed full responsibility for the conduct of the rescue operations.

"The condition of the sea was such from the first," he said, "that diving would not have been undertaken at all except to try to save life."

Admiral Brumby said that he conferred continually with a staff of experienced salvage and submarine officers, and decisions then were made on every step of the rescue work. "But the final decision was mine and the responsibility was mine," the witness declared.

Reviews Rescue Operations.

Step by step Admiral Brumby reviewed the various operations from Dec. 18, when the rescue ship Falcon reached the scene of the collision, to Dec. 23, when attempts at rescue were given up and salvage operations begun. In view of the stormy weather prevailing, he said, nothing more could have been accomplished in that period.

Admiral Brumby said that a large number of suggestions had been received from civilians as to the rescue of the S-4 crew. "All have received consideration and not one could be used on the S-4," he said.

"One device brought to our notice may be used in future cases with submarines which are at the bottom with their compartments undamaged and crews alive. I believe that gadget might enable very material assistance to be sent down in such an event."

CHAUFFEUR, SHOT BY KEEPER OF ROOMING HOUSE, DIES

Mrs. Pearl Waggener, Rearrested, Tells Police They Quarreled Over Making Home Brew.

Shot in the chest last Monday in a quarrel over the making of home brew, Harry Forester, 37 years old, a chauffeur, died of his wound at city hospital yesterday. The shot was fired by Mrs. Pearl Waggener, 33, proprietor of a rooming house at 1154 North Leonard avenue, where Forester resided.

Mrs. Waggener was rearrested pending the Coroner's inquest. She told police she had asked Forester to stop making home brew and was telephoning her brother, asking him to come to the house and eject Forester, when the latter snatched the telephone and attempted to strike her. She said she shot him with his own revolver, which she picked up from a lounge.

SEIZED LIQUOR FOUND IN EX-DEPUTY'S GARAGE

Resigned Aid of Constable Said to Have Admitted Keeping Whisky.

Part of a quantity of whisky which Federal prohibition agents reported finding in a raid on a garage at Taylor and Bridgeton Station roads, St. Louis County, yesterday, was said to have been seized and kept by a former Deputy Constable of St. Ferdinand Township.

The garage was adjacent to the residence of John Hanson, who stated he resigned Dec. 1 as a Deputy Constable of that township and had formerly been a Deputy Sheriff. He admitted, according to Deputy Prohibition Administrator Dillon, having seized part of the liquor while acting as a law enforcement officer, and asserted that the rest belonged to a friend, whom he would not name.

The agents reported finding 135 gallons of whisky aging in charred barrels and four cases of whisky. They obtained a search warrant after an agent, in passing, had noted an odor of alcohol. Hanson was charged in a warrant with illegal possession of liquor, and released on $1000 bond.

AUTOMATIC SUBWAY IN LONDON

Trains Without Engineers Carry Mail 35 Miles an Hour.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—London now has an all-mechanical subway, in which neither engineers, conductors nor brakemen appear. The trains run between the Eastern District Postoffice and the Paddington Station, and carry only mail. The subway has been in course of construction since 1913, is six miles long, 80 feet underneath the ground and cost $7,500,000.

The trains are controlled by operators above ground, who follow the course of the trains by diagrams on which lights give them the position of the engines. Forty-five tons of mail can be carried an hour in each direction, at a speed of 35 miles an hour. The new subway is expected to save the postoffice $200,000 a year. During the war, work was discontinued on the subway, and the tunnel was used for the storing of the most valuable of British Museum exhibits.

BROOKS RECOMMENDS FOUR MORE STOP-AND-GO SIGNS

Automatic Signals Would be Installed at Total Cost of $5500.

Equipment of four more street intersections with four-corner automatic stop-and-go traffic signals at a total cost of $5500 was recommended by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks yesterday. Signals costing $1500 each would be installed at Page and Union boulevards, Kingshighway and Manchester avenue and Gravois and Jefferson avenues. At Seventh and Russell boulevards a signal costing $1000 would be provided.

Director Brooks also asked for an appropriation of $1200 for synchronizing the signals already in use on Russell at Jefferson and California avenues, on Newstead avenue at Washington and Delmar boulevards and on Waterman avenue at DeBaliviere and DeGiverville avenues.

HAWES' PRISON WARE BILL O K'D BY WOMEN

Board of Federated Clubs Favors Removing Goods From Interstate Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Hawes-Cooper bill, to take prison made wares out of interstate commerce, was indorsed today by the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Manufacturers, prison reform leaders and political supporters of the bill met with the women under the chairmanship of Miss Julia K Jaffray, a prison worker in New York Attorney-General Ottinger of New York said large quantities of prison-made goods manufactured in the prisons of states adjacent to New York were sold in the New York market, "despite the fact that none of our prison-made goods are sold on the open market"

Prison labor hits particularly the women workers and the blind in the industrial field, Miss Jaffray said

"The men in prisons are employed chiefly at garment-making and basket-weaving," she said, "and this is the product mainly of women and blind persons who are forced to be self-supporting"

1,250,000 ATTEND NEW YORK AUTO SHOW

Ford Independent Exhibit, Admission Free, Attracts 1,000,000 Persons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—A million and a quarter persons attended this week's national automobile show and the separate food industrial exhibit, ending tonight. New cars worth at least $2,000,000 were ordered. More than $850,000 was spent for newspaper and magazine advertising.

These estimates were made by various officers for the Associated Press.

A million persons were clocked at the gates of Madison Square Garden where the Ford Co. exhibited its products without charge. An average of more than 35,000 persons daily attended the national show at the Grand Central Palace, where there was an admission fee.

Official estimates of the sales will not be obtainable for some time, but it was said that $2,000,000 was a conservative guess.

Advertising authorities said the week's advertising in nine New York papers and four trade journals alone would total about $800,000. The nine newspapers printed 794,056 agate lines. One leading trade journal carried 264 pages of advertising at $500 a page.

Would Change Name of Park.

The Board of Club Presidents of the International Advertising Association will open a two-day convention at Hotel Statler tomorrow. More than 65 executives from advertising clubs throughout the United States and Canada are expected to attend the sessions, wich aim at a wider vision of club activities. Plans for the annual convention of the international association in Detroit next July will be discussed here.

Joseph E. Moorhead of Denver will preside. Harry T. Bussman, president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, is secretary.

Among the speakers at the first session tomorrow will be James O'Shaughnessy, New York, "Selling the Advertising Club to the National Advertiser"; Edward L. Greene, New York, "Co-ordinating Better Business Activities Through the Advertising Clubs"; Edward T. Hall, St. Louis, "Selling the Advertising Club to the Local Merchant."

George Burbach, advertising director of the Post-Dispatch, will speak Tuesday on the need for closer co-operation between advertising clubs and the Advertising Commission of which he is chairman. Miss Hazel Ludwig, St. Louis, president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs of the World, is scheduled to address the meeting Monday.

At the Advertising Club luncheon Tuesday C. K. Woodbridge, Detroit, and N. W. Barnes of the faculty of the University of Chicago will deliver addresses.

WARNS AGAINST FEE FOR INSURANCE REFUND

Gov. Baker Says State Department Will Protect All Policy Holders.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14.—A warning to fire insurance policy holders in Missouri not to enter into contracts with organizations or individuals to pay a fee for recovery of the 10-per-cent refund in premiums due them under a recent court order sustaining a rate reduction order, was issued today by Gov. Baker.

The Governor said the State Insurance Department would take action to insure payment of refunds to all policy holders entitled to them, as soon as the court mandate reached the department. He said he had learned that groups were being formed in the State to solicit claims from policy holders for collection, upon a 20-per-cent fee basis. There was no necessity of any policy holder paying some private individual a large fee when the Insurance Department would bring about a proper settlement.

Between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 in refunds are due policy holders under a 10-per-cent rate reduction order issued by the Insurance Department, effective Nov. 15, 1922. Policy holders were required to pay the old rates while the case was in litigation. The order affected 160 companies and applied to fire, lightning, hail and wind storm insurance.

The State Supreme Court upheld the reduction order and the companies appealed to the United States Supreme Court. The latter court, on Jan. 3 last, refused to pass upon the appeal, because no proper Federal question was presented, and this reinstated the Missouri Supreme Court decision.

The insurance companies have indicated that they will seek a rehearing of the United States Supreme Court ruling, which will result in some delay. If the rehearing is denied, there will be further delay while the mandate of the United States Supreme Court is being sent down to the State Supreme Court, and in turn certified to the Cole County Circuit Court and to the department, retracing the steps the case followed.

The Governor has instructed the Insurance Department to call upon the insurance companies for lists of policies written by them in Missouri since the date of the reduction order.

CAMPAIGN WELL STARTED, SAYS BILLY SUNDAY

Evangelist in Prayer Asserts He Feels Encouraged Over First Week of Meetings in St. Louis.

Billy Sunday, ending the first week of his seven weeks' revival at the Coliseum last night, thanked the Lord for a good start, and told the laymen's committee that his platform must be built higher. Some people in the farthest seats had gone out, indicating that they did not hear well, he said. The audience was estimated at more than 7000, many standing at the sides of the balcony. The canopy, which cuts off the 3000 gallery seats, probably will be removed soon.

"Well, Jesus," the evangelist said at the end of his discourse, "I've been in St. Louis a week. Last Saturday morning I got off the Alton train, in that private car that Mr. Thomas of the Burlington so kindly gave me, and the committee met me, and the newspaper men (thank You for them, Lord), and we had greetings and interviews, and since then we've been preaching You, Jesus. Thank You for the good friends, and for the delightful weather, and for the prayers and good resolves that have been made, and may we all go to church tomorrow morning and be back here in the afternoon and at night, and may many thousands come into the fold in these weeks. Amen, hallelujah, and good night!"

From Elisha to Jazz.

Sunday was at his best in his sermon on "The Moral Leper." His racing from side to side of the platform was not more rapid or frequent than his transitions from the days of the prophet Elisha, 900 years before Christ, to the present era of jazz and then back to the Book of Second Kings.

At times, perched perilously on the back of his frail chair, he was the old prophet of Israel, writing with a reed pen on parchment and unimpressed by the fact that a royal messenger waited outside his hut. Elisha himself, who was sensitive about his appearance, as some small boys once learned to their cost, might or might not have enjoyed the way in which Sunday stroked an imaginary long beard and dictated a message to "his royal nibs."

With many interruptions, and many prolonged modern parallels, he told the story of Naaman, the Syrian General, who was a leper, and who went into the land of Israel and to Elisha, and was told to dip himself seven times in the River Jordan. Graphically Sunday described the dipping process, holding his nose for the first plunge, and shaking water from his ears.. Then, after the cleansing of the leper, the return to Elisha was described, and the offer of gold, which the prophet refused, but which the servant Gehazi sought to accept for his own gain.

"Gehazi was the first grafter mentioned in the Bible, and he got his," said Sunday, relating the Bible narrative that the leprosy of Naaman "clave to Gehazi."

Vivid modern stories were interspersed — a circus performer crushed to death by a trained boa constrictor; a leader of men, brave in a crisis, who died in disgrace, "for he was a leper." The story of Ben Hur brought a story of the conversion of its author, Gen. Lew Wallace, and a qualified recommendation of three films on Bible themes—"Ben Hur," "Ten Commandments" and "The King of Kings." Sunday said he had not been in a theater in 30 years, but might decide to break his rule to view the last-named picture.

Bridge whist was depicted as "poker with a new name," and the boy taught to play it was shown as becoming "a blackleg gambler." Girls were urged to meet proposals of marriage not with a simpering "this is so sudden," but with the inquiry, "have you been as clean as you believe me to be?"

Gives His Idea of Angels.

A good deal was said about angels. They are without sex, without sin, and having once sinned, without forgiveness, according to Sunday's description, which appeared to be based partly on Scripture and partly on Milton's "Paradise Lost."

"God made hell for devils, not for man," the speaked shouted. "If you are fool enough to serve the devil, go to hell and do it!"

"If God could create Adam and Eve without parents," Sunday declared, "He could create Jesus, and if He could, He did. The question isn't, could a fish swallow Jonah? The question is, Could God make one big enough to swallow him? and if He could, He did, and that's all there is to it, you fool."

The address yesterday afternoon was on "The Secret of Failure," with a text from the prophet Jeremiah. Homer Hammontree, an able soloist and choir leader, officiated last night in place of Homer Rodeheaver and brought some fine harmonies from the choir in the rear balcony.

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Sunday will speak on "God's Grenadiers," and at 7:30 tonight on "Safety First in America."

Which One Murdered Margaret Odell?

The "Canary" Murder Case

By S. S. Van Dine, Author of "The Benson Murder Case," which recently appeared in the Post-Dispatch.

On the night of Sept. 10 someone murdered Margaret Odell, popularly known as the "Canary," in her apartment in West 71st street, New York. The case soon narrowed down to five suspects, of whom two were virtually eliminated from the start.

The murder, one of the most mysterious and baffling in New York police annals, finally was solved by Philo Vance, after the District Attorney had thrown up his hands in despair. Above you see Vance looking over the suspects. From left to right they are: the man-about-town, the doctor, the manufacturer, the crook, the importer.

Which one did it? Do you think that after reading the first few installments of THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE you can name the man who strangled Margaret Odell? If you can, you are a great deal cleverer than the average detective.

How did the murderer get in and out of the girl's apartment? What was the motive of the crime? How many people were in the apartment when the murder was committed? Why was the jewel case battered with a poker before being pried with a cold chisel? What did the finger prints on the table and door knob mean?

You will have to answer these questions before you can solve THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE. Be sure to read it, or you'll miss the biggest fiction treat in years.

Don't Be Fat

Thousands Astounded by This Wonderful Easy Treatment Which Often Takes Off Fat As Rapidly As a Pound a Day

No Tedious Exercise or Starvation Diet by This Remarkable Method

YOUR WEIGHT
Oh Joy! Fat all Gone! Down to 130 Pounds, Just What I Wanted!

Many a community throughout the United States has been oddly puzzled to see one or more of its members quickly reduce from a state of awkward obesity to normal weight with a trim youthful figure. In many cases, a change has come so rapidly, yet without any apparent reason, that the result has been the subject of common gossip. What have these men and women done? How did they accomplish this miracle and still manage to keep themselves in robust health?

The answer is given here. If you are overweight and if you seem unable to remedy the condition, do what these thousands of others have done. You will be amazed and delighted with the results.

A Sane, Sensible Way

From time to time numerous ridiculously strenuous exercises have been suggested as a means of reducing fat. Starvation diets have also had their brief day of popularity. But these methods were naturally doomed to failure for the reason that only the most determined willpower can withstand the hardships and deprivations they impose. Now, however, comes this sane, sensible treatment which adheres to all modern, scientific methods and yet accomplishes the most amazing results without either starvation, diet or exercises.

F. J. Kellogg's Rational Treatment for Obesity was formulated so that fat people could get rid of the useless tissue without either losing time from their leisure or going against a single inclination they might have toward food.

Through this remarkable method, excess fat is absorbed and eliminated by natural processes. And in so doing the skin, which has necessarily been stretched to cover the excess fat on face and body, does not shrink and shrivel, leaving wrinkles and unbecoming lines. It merely recedes naturally, so that to outward appearances the loss of 50 or even 100 pounds in very obese persons is apparent only in trimmer lines and more youthful appearance.

Health Excellent, Feeling Fine

Those who have tried the F. J. Kellogg Rational Treatment report their muscles splendidly firm, their health excellent and a feeling of freedom and well-being which they little dreamed was possible—especially by such a pleasant, convenient method.

No one—man or woman—need hesitate to use the F. J. Kellogg Treatment if their aim is to reduce. No tedious exercising with its resultant discomfort—no denying yourself the foods you crave and enjoy. Because of the surprising results obtained, and the fact that reduction of weight is in most cases permanent, this sane, simple treatment is fast supplanting all rigorous and unpleasant methods.

But do not take our word for it. Send for your free trial package, mailed in plain sealed wrapper. We want every fat person to test the F. J. Kellogg Treatment. That's what this coupon is for. Use it—Now!

SOME THINGS U. S. DRY AGENTS DID NOT KNOW

Civil Service Commission Publishes Test Flunked by 75 Pct. of Field Staff.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The "practical mental tests" which baffled three-fourths of the 2000 dry agents that faced the recent civil service elimination contest were revealed today. The questions ranged from what a man would do upon receipt of information that a fellow agent is "crooked" to what he would define as a "suspect" and why fingerprints aid the prohibition cause.

The tests disclosed today were "actual questions and problems" put to agents who took the examination on the first day. Those on the second and third days were "in every way comparable" to the first questions, the Civil Service Commission said, but were changed in form in order to prevent "cribbing."

All Attaches Given Tests.

Investigators, inspectors, stool pigeons and just ordinary agents were put through the paces under a congressional "efficiency" program putting the entire prohibition enforcement unit under the exactions of the civil service requiring a standard minimum acquaintance with the problem as well as the crusader's zeal, which is taken for granted.

The first two sheets of the examination contained three "practical questions," which the agents were allowed two hours to answer.

In a preliminary examination sheet the applicants were questioned regarding their experience, education and other qualifications. The total time allowed for answering the three sheets of questions was four hours. To pass the tests a rating of 60 per cent was required.

An Example of Questions.

Some of the problems on which 1500 agents "flunked" follows:

Assume that, as a prohibition officer, you and Agent Richard Roe have together purchased a pint of whisky from Polis, a bootlegger. At the time of this transaction Polis made a promise to meet both of you later for the purpose of placing you in touch with a wholesale dealer who can supply you with larger quantities at lower prices. At the time appointed for resumption of negotiations Polis meets you and Roe and informs you that he has been told, but is somewhat inclined to disbelieve, that the two of you are planning to trap him. Assume such facts as you may desire, not inconsistent with those given here, and state, in approximately 150 words, what, in your opinion, you and Roe should do under the circumstances.

Other Problems to Solve.

Assume that you are a prohibition officer working occasionally with Agents Jenkins and Thompson, both of whom you have known about six months. During the progress of an important investigation upon which all three of you are engaged, Agent Jenkins approaches you with the statement that Thompson is "crooked" and is negotiating regularly with violators of the national prohibition act. Assume such facts as you may desire, not inconsistent with those given here, and state, in approximately 150 words, what, in your opinion, you should do under the circumstances.

Suppose that you are a prohibition officer, write a report upon a case which it is assumed that you have investigated based upon the following letter of instructions from your district headquarters: "This office has received advices which indicate that town and county officials of Lewisville, the county seat of Garland County, in the southern part of the State, are cooperating with and affording protection to illicit liquor manufacturers and dealers in that territory. Investigate and report."

This report should consist of not less than 300 words and not more than 500 words, setting forth in an orderly and concise manner the progressive steps of your investigation, together with a statement of any circumstances which may be of value in forming a background to the investigation, making such recommendations as in your judgment are required by your findings. You may assume any facts that you desire not inconsistent with the facts stated in the message.

Scope of Mental Tests.

The mental tests required the applicants to pick from material furnished them the best answers to various questions. One of these questions read: "A number of pint bottles of whisky were found in the automobile of a man arrested for driving while in a state of intoxication. Which is the best indication that the man intended to distribute them?"

The applicant was required to pick the best answer to this question from the following: "Friends call frequently at his residence." "The bottles were wrapped separately and addressed to different persons at an athletic club." "Liquor of the same brand and label is possessed by another man in the same neighborhood." "The man owns stock in a soft drink manufacturing company which operates near his home." "He attempted to conceal the liquor."

Rail Wage Arguments Jan. 20.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Arguments to determine whether a recent arbitration award of a wage increase to 55,000 firemen and hostlers on Western railroads is legal will be heard in Federal court Jan. 20. The award of 30 cents a day more for passenger firemen and 35 cents for all others affects 55 roads. The arguments will be heard by District Judge Carpenter.

Eats Big Steak and Fried Onions-No Gas

"Every time I would eat something I felt just terrible. Gas from the stomach pressed on my heart. I couldn't get any rest at night. Nothing I used gave me even a little relief. But Adlerika was advised and I tried it. The very first dose removed the gas and relieved the pain over night. The good it has done me is almost unbelieveable. Now I eat fried pork, beefsteak and fried onions—in fact anything. I am not nervous any more and I can work fine. Adlerika has made me peppy and happy."—Mrs James Julian.

As gently and naturally as taking a drink of water, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowels, bringing quick relief from gas bloating, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation.

The very FIRST dose of Adlerika often brings out astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the intestinal canal. This poisonous matter may have been in the intestines a long time, causing gas, headache, sleeplessness and many other symptoms. A treatment of just a FEW weeks with Adlerika aften brings great permanent improvement in cases of so-called stomach trouble.

What Doctors Say

Dr. H. Louis Shoub, New York, states: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing action, tends to check the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. J. Lancaster, a physician of over a quarter century's experience, says: "In the treatment of gastro-intestinal disorders, Adlerika has no equal."

J. E. Puckett, writes: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. Carl Weschcke, graduate of Heidelberg University, Germany, first perfected Adlerika. It is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser known to science with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements.

Many physicians recognize Adlerika as the one dependable remedy for gas, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation. Unlike other medicines it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel.

Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika may bring out poisonous, gas-forming matter which you would never believe was in your system.

No matter what you have used for the bowels and stomach, Adlerika will surprise you.

ETS PLAN TICKET, EX-JUDGE PRIEST SAYS

either Hay Nor Hyde Acceptable to the Anti-Prohibitionists.

Former Federal Judge Henry S. iest, president of the Missouri ociation Against Prohibition, announced yesterday that the organization would put a platform and ticket in the field if neither the Republican nor Democratic parties in Missouri nominate for United States Senator an opponent of the eighteenth amendment.

The association, he added, has formed political organizations in 112 of the 114 counties in Missouri and has enlisted the co-operation of 50,000 members in rural Missouri.

Neither Charles M. Hay, dry Democrat, nor former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde, dry Republican, would be acceptable to the association as candidate for United States Senator, the statement said.

"The members of this association cannot support either Mr. Hay or Gov. Hyde," said Judge Priest. "The Democratic party from the time of Mr. Jefferson has over and over again declared its opposition to all sumptuary laws as an interference with the individual rights of the citizen. The Republican platforms up to and inclusive of 1892 declared 'The ultimate reliance of free popular government is the intelligence of the people and the maintenance of freedom among men.'"

"No man," the statement said further, "is a Democrat and no man a Republican who challenges these fundamental principles of our government, and no member of either party owes him the slightest allegiance."

REVISED RAIL FREIGHT RATES EFFECTIVE TODAY OPEN WAY TO MILLIONS IN NEW BUSINESS

St. Louis, Through I. C. C. Readjustment of Tariffs, Given Scale to Northeast Section Lower, in Many Instances, than From East.

The avenue to millions of dollars' worth of new business will be thrown open to St. Louis today when the railroads serving the southeastern portion of the United States will formally inaugurate a new schedule of freight rates on shipments to the territory south of the Ohio River, placing the Middle West on a parity with Eastern and Ohio River cities.

The new rates were drawn by the railroads in accordance with the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the now famous "Southern class rate investigation," in which sweeping changes were ordered in the basic freight rate structure of the Southeast and in the existing differentials in the rates between the various cities. The railroads recently announced that they would abide by the decision of the commission, and fixed today as the date on which the new rates would become effective.

The revised tariffs are of widespread importance to St. Louis, since existing rates on commodities shipped to the Southeast from this city will be reduced, while the spread in the rates between the Middle West and other points to the southeast will in many cases be lowered to St. Louis and increased to other cities, thus enabling St. Louis to compete on a more favorable basis with other centers for business in that section.

City's Position Improved.

As a result, St. Louis will be in a more advantageous position with reference to freight shipments to the Southeast than it has ever been before, an analysis of the rates made by the traffic department of the Chamber of Commerce, which was one of the foremost litigants in the case, reveals. The city not only will be provided with the benefit of a reduction of thousands of dollars in freight rates, but also of vastly more importance is the fact that it will be given an opportunity to increase tremendously the scope of its trade.

"The successful conclusion of this case marks a new day in the history of St. Louis," declared P. W. Coyle, traffic commissioner of the Chamber. "It is one of the most notable accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce, and indicates once again the value of this organization in serving the community's interests."

Inauguration of the new rates marks the successful termination of six years of persistent effort in the interest of the local market by the traffic bureau of the Chamber. It was on Feb. 6, 1922, when the Interstate Commerce Commission, acting upon its own motion, instituted the investigation, the primary purpose of which was to determine whether the rates and ratings were "unreasonable, or unduly prejudicial to or unduly preferential of particular localities, persons or descriptions of traffic." It also announced that it would not seek either to "add to or subtract from the aggregate revenue of the carriers, but rather to adopt a class rate structure which will be as simple as it can be made, with due regard for the public interest and free from any undue prejudice and which will serve the purposes that class rates ought to serve."

Established Mileage Scale.

The principal decision in the case was handed down by the Commission July 7, 1925, establishing a mileage scale as the fundamental basis for the rates. The rates within the southern territory are made upon this scale, while the rates between official and Southern territories which include the rates from and to St. Louis and other points north of the Ohio River, including Chicago, for example, were made by adding to the rates from and to the Ohio River crossings certain class rate differentials, based themselves on mileage, so that all rates from and to points north of the Ohio River and the Norfolk & Western Railway from Bristol, Tenn.-Va., to Norfolk, Va., with the exception of the Buffalo-Pittsburg zone, trunk line territory and the New England territory can be said to be on a mileage basis.

The rates from and to the Buffalo-Pittsburg zone, trunk line territory and New England territory were not held to a mileage scale because of certain detailed conditions, but instead were named as specific rates somewhat lower than if they were based on the scale mile for mile. These rates involve both all-rail and rail-and-water movements.

Analysis Discloses Benefits.

The great and far-reaching benefits that will accrue to St. Louis from the commission's decision are illustrated by the following analysis prepared by the Chamber's Traffic Department:

"The first-class rate from St. Louis to Memphis, which now is 80 cents lower than the rate from New York, will by virtue of the new tariffs be $1.05 under her Eastern competitor; to New Orleans where the difference in the first-class rate is 45 cents in favor of St. Louis, the advantage will be increased to 61 cents over New York; to Atlanta, Ga., where New York is now 6 cents under St. Louis, the first-class rate will be changed so as to place this city 18 cents under the Eastern point; to Jackson, Miss., where the St. Louis rtae is 54 cents lower than the rate from New York, the future difference between the two cities will be increased to 81 cents; to Birmingham, where St. Louis has an advantage of but 16½ cents over New York, this will be increased to 67 cents; to Montgomery, Ala., where the present rate is 14½ cents under New York, the new rate will be 43½ cents in favor of St. Louis; to Jacksonville, Fla., where New York has an advantage of 34½ cents, this will be reduced under the new tariffs to 23 cents; to Nashville, Tenn., where the rate from St. Louis is 73 cents below the New York tariff, the advantage will be increased to 88 cents in favor of St. Louis; and to Lexington, Ky., where the first-class rate from St. Louis is only 13½ cents lower than the rate from New York, this will be increased under the new tariffs to 54 cents.

Examples of New Tariff.

"The following representative instances indicate the improved relationship between St. Louis and the Southeast as compared with the rates from Ohio River cities: To Memphis, Tenn., New Orleans, La., and Jackson, Miss., where Louisville now is on an exact parity with St. Louis, under the new rates, this city will have a slight advantage of 14, 6 and 7 cents respectively over the Kentucky metropolis; to Memphis, on the other hand where St. Louis now is favored with a first-class rate of 13½ cents lower than Cincinnati, the differential will be increased to 33 cents; to Jackson, Miss., where the present rate is 13½ cents under Cincinnati, the new spread will be 22 cents; to Atlanta, Ga., where the rate from St. Louis now is 44 cents higher than from Louisville, this disadvantage will be decreased under the revised rates to 21 cents; to this point also the present rate from St. Louis is 44 cents higher than the same rate from Louisville, but under the tariffs this will be reduced to 24 cents.

"The new tariffs will also reduce the present advantage of 43 cents and 29 cents which Louisville and Cincinnati have over St. Louis on first-class rates to Birmingham, Ala., to 16 and 1 cents respectively. Likewise, the differential between St. Louis and Louisville and Cincinnati to Jacksonville, Fla., which is now 43 cents in favor of the latter two cities, will be reduced under the revised tariffs to 24 and 18 cents respectively. The present 35 cents spread in the rates which Louisville enjoys over St. Louis and the 12½ cent advantage which Cincinnati has over this city on shipments to Nashville, Tenn., will be lowered also to 24 and 2 cents respectively, while the 79 cents advantage which both the Ohio River cities have over St. Louis on shipments to Lexington, Ky., will in the future be 46 cents.

"As in all general readjustments of rates affecting entire territories, there will be advances and reductions in the rates, although in the present instance the reductions exceed the increases. This is shown by the fact that the first class rate from St. Louis to Atlanta under the revised tariffs will be reduced from $1.95 to $1.75 per 100 pounds; the $1.80 rate to Birmingham is lowered to $1.58 for 100 pounds; to Montgomery, Ala., it is reduced from $1.92 to $1.72; to Miami, Fla., from $3.14 to $2.87, and to Lexington, Ky., from $1.28½ to $1.18.

"On shipments to Memphis, Tenn., however, the first class rate will be increased from $1.22½ to $1.24 for 100 pounds, although the rates on other classes will be reduced; to Nashville, Tenn., the first class rate will be increased from $1.16 to $1.24 for 100 pounds, while the fifth class rate will be cut from 60½ to 56 cents. In this connection, also, it was noted that generally wherever the rates have been increased or reduced, the rates from other Midwestern territories have gone up or down relatively."

Prof. Harrell is a Virginian by birth. Graduate of leading Colleges. Instructor of Chemistry and known as an authority on Pharmaceutical and Physiological Chemistry.

Some of the results obtained from the Harrell Combined Treatment have been almost beyond belief—and have astonished even Prof. Harrell himself. Here are just a few extracts:

Mrs. S. Haas of 920 N. 18th St., Kansas City, writes—

"My husband is a barber and stands on his feet all day. He is very large and heavy and his muscles get quite lame. The medicine has done us both a world of good. We went to a dance last night and stepped around quite lively. We are very grateful to you."

Mr. S. I. Jackson of Huntington, Arkansas, writes—

"I cannot express my many thanks for your free treatment. Your medicine has done wonders for me. I have been suffering with Rheumatism for over 20 years and nothing has given me as much relief as your free treatment. Helped me so much I can now walk around my home, and even cross my legs, something I have not been able to do in some time."

Mr. Max Feig of 560 Beck St., New York, writes—

"Your Rheumatism treatment was received some time ago. I will say it is the best in all the world. I have been suffering from Rheumatism for many years and could not get relief. I have been to many physicians and they did not seem to help me one bit. But as soon as I started to take your treatment I felt as if I was a new person. It certainly did me a world of good. I wish to thank you ever so much, and I hope every one that suffers with Rheumatism knows of your treatment. It sure is good and I will tell all of my friends about it. I thank you again, wishing you the best of luck, I remain."

And read what Mrs. George Storey of Westboro, Missouri, reports—

"I am entirely well and am well satisfied with your treatment. I have suffered with Rheumatism more or less for 10 years. Sometimes I was in bed unable to move hands or feet. All the doctors failed to help me. But you have cured me. Print my letter wherever you please for I am willing and ready anytime to answer any letters who write me in regard of your treatment. Words are too small to express the great good your medicine did for me. Only ones like myself that are picked up from a bed of agony by your treatment will ever realize there could be such a wonderful medicine in the world. We people used to think there was no cure for Rheumatism, but I am here to tell the world it is all a mistake, that there is a cure if they will take your medicine as you say. Every Rheumatism sufferer I meet, I tell them about your treatment and I have already sent several patients to you. Wishing you the best of success, I am."

While Prof. Harrell would not feel justified in promising such rapid results to everyone in America who has Rheumatism, yet these cases like many thousands of others indicate the powers of this Combined Treatment.

"I find that only a short use of this Combination Treatment will chase away the pains of Rheumatism like the sun dries up the dew."—J. RANDOLPH HARRELL, Ph. G.—R. Ph.

And now I want to get my treatment into the hands of all those who suffer from Rheumatism, Gout, Sciatica, Neuritis or Neuralgia. So I have decided to send out 50,000 of these wonderful Combination Treatments entirely and absolutely FREE!

Just send your name and address, using the coupon if you wish, and I will send you a package of my treatment with all charges paid. You will have nothing to pay on it now or ever.

Prof. Harrell says:

"Several years ago I turned my attention to the serious study of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, Gout and Neuralgia.

I am convinced that the distress of Rheumatism can be quickly remedied and relieved and that there is no good reason for people dragging through life never free from rheumatic pains.

My studies finally led me to the firm conclusion that Rheumatism is usually caused by poor extrusion. That is, the organs of the body that SHOULD throw off the waste matter from the system were not working right. This causes the secretions and dead matter (sometimes called poisons) to start backing up and forming deposits, THEN you will probably contract Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis, Gout, or Neuralgia—and you will have pain and suffering.

So to successfully TREAT Rheumatism it is not only necessary that the kidneys, stomach and bowels be put into proper condition — it is also necessary to eliminate the waste and poisonous matter that has already collected.

I found it entirely impossible to combine the medicines I wished to use, so my treatment comes to you in two distinct forms, and it is the COMBINATION of the two that works such quick and lasting relief.

I am so sure that this Combined Treatment will bring you relief that I am willing to send it to you ENTIRELY FREE so you may test it out and tell your neighbors what it has done for you.

Those of you who have never been able to find relief—either temporary or reasonably permanent—be SURE to try the HARRELL COMBINED TREATMENT. The old stubborn cases are the very ones that I am most anxious to relieve.

Of course if you are just contracting Rheumatism (or any kindred diseases) then you MUST get busy AT ONCE and send for this treatment, so as to RID yourself of your trouble before it becomes FIXED in your system.

If you have been a sufferer from Rheumatism for some weeks or months or years, you will be amazed at the speed with which the Harrell Combined Treatment works.

Within just a few hours you will begin to notice the improvement and will soon find yourself free from pain and feeling fit and fine again.

Of course some very old and very stubborn cases do not yield quite so quickly—and occasionally I find a case that seems hopeless. But the great majority of cases will yield readily to my combined treatment, without delay or further trouble.

That is one of the remarkable points about the Harrell Treatment—the speed and certainty with which it works.

I hope you will feel every confidence in this treatment—there is no reason for you to be skeptical when I offer to send you a test treatment FREE! —and I hope you will understand that I believe this to be by far THE BEST general treatment for Rheumatic Suffering ever before worked out: I have spent years considering the treatment and I do not believe its equal can be found anywhere.

When you use the HARRELL Treatment, you are using the very LATEST and BEST and you are entitled to expect BEST RESULTS in the SHORTEST POSSIBLE TIME.

The treatment is SO easy to take. It is even pleasant. Some treatments that I have examined may bring relief from pain for a short while, but they are harmful to the stomach and really leave the patient in a worse condition than before.

I do not use a single narcotic or habit-forming drug. Neither do I have much faith in preparations to be rubbed on—such as liniments, balsams, etc. Any relief from the external applications must be VERY temporary. So I do not recommend them except in an occasional minor trouble such as sore muscles or sprains.

The HARRELL Treatment contains nothing harmful—no narcotics or temporary "pain killer." It is intended to eradicate the Rheumatic conditions from your system and to afford a reasonably PERMANENT relief.

The treatment I will send you will be different in appearance as well as in the combination of drugs from anythat you have ever seen or known before. Write for it today SURELY.

I am making it just as easy as possible for you to receive one of my COMBINED TREATMENTS.

All you need do is to write your name and address and send them to me. Use the coupon or a sheet of paper or even a post card.

But do not put off sending for the treatment. Even if you are feeling fairly well right now—remember that Rheumatism unless properly treated, has a habit of "coming back." So be ready for it next time and have one of my test treatments on hand. I do not expect this 50,000 lot of treatments to last long.

So write TODAY—RIGHT NOW. You will surely be interested in this remarkable treatment. In both its form and its results.

Municipal Opera, June 4

Committee Goes to New York Today to Pick New Cast For Season of 12 Weeks in Forest Park—Grace George Comes to Shubert in "The Road to Rome," While "Lulu Belle" Stays Over at American for Second Week.

THE tenth anniversary of the founding of Municipal Opera will be celebrated in a 12 weeks' season of opera productions at the open air theater in Forest Park, beginning Monday night, June 4, and continuing through Sunday night, Aug. 26, it was announced yesterday at the offices of the Municipal Theater Association. As in the past, performances will be given nightly with the initial presentation of each opera taking place on Monday night and the concluding showing the following Sunday night.

The advance work in connection with next summer's season will start tomorrow morning, when registration of local singers who wish to compete for places in the chorus will begin at the offices of the association in the Arcade Building. The cast committee of the association is leaving for New York this morning to engage the principals of the 1928 cast.

A NEW general stage director and a new musical director will lend their efforts to make the 1928 season an outstanding one in the history of the Municipal Association. The first-mentioned post will be filled by Alonzo Price, formerly a member of Arthur Hammerstein's producing organization and at present associated with Florenz Ziegfeld. Leon Rosebrook, who has wielded the baton for a number of America's foremost musical producers, is the new musical director.

Both Rosebrook and Price will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow morning to formulate preliminary plans for the chorus training school, which opens Monday night, Jan. 23, at the Jefferson Memorial. The school is open to all St. Louisans between the ages of 16 and 30 who register next week at the association's downtown offices and who later pass a satisfactory entrance examination. The sessions of the school will be held five nights weekly until the first of May, when the 100 members of the 1928 chorus will be chosen. Only those who attend the school regularly will be considered for places in the ensemble.

GRACE GEORGE comes to the Shubert tonight in "The Road to Rome," Robert E. Sherwood's comedy of ancient-Rome, told, in an old setting, in modern Broadwayese, something of the same manner as was suggested in the subtitles of the motion picture, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," seen here a week or so ago. "The Road to Rome" is still running in New York, with Jane Cowl as the star. Miss George created the role in the Chicago company which now comes to St. Louis.

In the play Sherwood, editor of Life, has departed from the beaten track and the result is said to be a work novel in its avoidance of conventions and boldly defiant in dealing with historic characters. The hero is Hannibal, that Carthaginian General who invaded and ravaged Italy during the second Punic war. It is his contact with some of the Romans, particularly with the wife of Fabius, played by Miss George, that furnished the incentive for talk and action.

In its ironical and satirical flings at the futility of war and in its assumption that woman is the aggressor in wooing man, the author does not describe a Roman atmosphere of the classic period. Instead, his characters speak in a very modern manner and in their frankness often are as bold as may be encountered in a Broadway show.

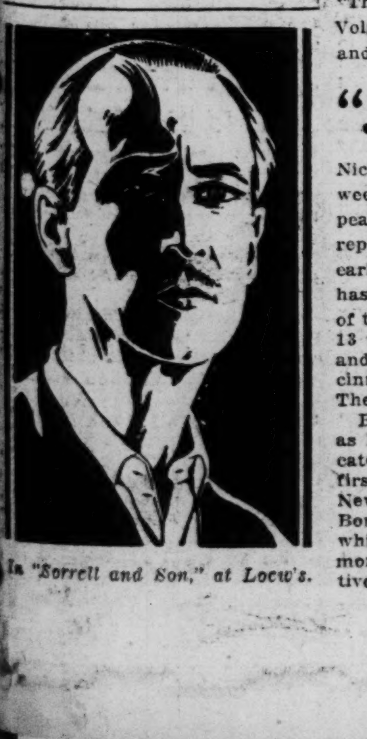
The role to be undertaken by Miss George is said to give plenty of scope for her delineative ability and for exercising the charm always associated with her characterizations. Supporting her in the performance are: McKay Morris as Hannibal, J. M. Kerrigan as Fabius, Edward H. Wever as Mago, Philip Foster as Cipio, Francis Compton as Hasdrubal, Evelyn Carrington as Fabia, and some 25 other players.

LENORE ULRIC, who, as might be expected, has been doing a tremendous business with the unsavory "Lulu Belle" at the American Theater, remains over for a second week with that exposition of life in the Negro underworld of New York. Perhaps with an idea of purifying the Market street playhouse, the motion picture of the life of Christ, "The King of Kings," comes back there for a return engagement next Sunday night.

Portraying the role of Martha in "The King of Kings" is Julia Faye, a fairly well known screen actress, who, although born in Virginia, spent a large part of her young life here in St. Louis, being a small child when her parents moved here. Julia was educated at private and public schools in St. Louis and later attended Illinois University, determined to become a teacher. She did, but the constant urgings of her friends provoked her to try and "make the movies." In 1915, Miss Faye arrived in Hollywood, and, although she had no previous experience on either stage or screen, her beauty attracted D. W. Griffith, who gave her a small role in "Don Quixote," opposite De Wolf Hopper. After that she played in Mack Sennett comedies, and later was the "Mariusha," the hoydenish little gypsy in Cecil B. De Mille's "The Volga Boatman."

Two years after her first screen appearance, Julia joined Paramount and played important parts in a score of pictures, among them being "Old Wives for New," "Saturday Night," "Nice People," "Forbidden Fruit," "Fool's Paradise," Adam's Rib," "The Golden Bed," "The Ten Commandments" and "Feet of Clay." Since Cecil B. DeMille's affiliation as an independent producer, Miss Faye has appeared in featured roles in "Hell's Highroad," "The Road to Yesterday," "The Volga Boatman," "Meet the Prince" and "The Yankee Clipper."

H. B. Warner



In "Sorrell and Son," at Loew's.

"JUST MARRIED," the honeymoon farce comedy by Adelaide Matthews and Anne Nichols, is at the Empress this week. Don Burroughs, who appeared as leading man with the repertoire company here during the early part of this season, and who has been with the Cincinnati unit of the National Players for the past 13 weeks, has returned to St. Louis and John Lorenz has gone to Cincinnati to take his place at the Cox Theater there.

Burroughs will be seen this week as Robert Adams, the very intoxicated young gentleman who, in the first scene of the play, boards a New York-bound steamer leaving Bordeaux, and in the second scene, which takes place the following morning, wakes up in a very attractive young woman's stateroom.

New York Day by Day

BY
O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

I FIND myself unable to read the writings of two recent authors. Yet they have swept into amazing popularity, so don't mind me. I refer to Will Durant and John Erskine. Their efforts seem to me a lot of twaddle. I have the feeling they try to be high brow in a sort of patronizing manner when it isn't at all necessary. They try to tell us things most of us already know in simple "baby talk." However, I think I chiefly resent that little tuft of whiskers on Will Durant's chin. I have seen them too often on doctors, professors and such, posing as something they were not.

As a matter of fact beards or Vandykes should be worn only by men who have won their way in the world and gone into retirement. Too many men have used whiskers to camouflage weakness and give them a standing they do not deserve.

New York has found a way to "bootleg" cooking. It is against the law to cook in non-housekeeping apartments. So an astute inventor has contrived a "Dinette." It is an electric stove, a pantry and a dining room rolled into one, but when folded up looks like an innocent console. It is the delight of frugal chorus girls who live in walkup non-cooking apartments.

The passing of Kid Griffo removed a familiar of Broadway. He was a great fighter in his day and made "important money" which went for high living. His ears were battered to a pulp, one was completely mushroomed and without an aural cavity. On warm days the Kid used to shadow box on the sidewalk in front of the Astor to the amusement of strangers who thought him daffy. Everybody was "Al" to him. George Cohan was Al Cohan. Sam Harris was Al Harris and so on. His last years were spent in a basement room provided by the wife of a prize fighter he had once befriended in a magnanimous way. His end was pitiful. He refused to beg and those who wanted to help him had to do it in a secretive way. I notice Tex Rickard provided for his funeral expenses and the newspapers were promptly notified. But it strikes me the Kid might have been made a little more comfortable during his last lean days when he was many times hungry. Still there would be no publicity in that.

One of the big advertising agencies employs a psychologist at a salary of $45,000 a year. It is his job to figure out angles that will interest every member of the family on an advertised product. For instance, he is said to be able to make wives buy garters for their husbands and husbands buy certain brands of lipstick for their wives, etc.

The deadhead ticket in a theater is known as a "skull." Good seats are known as "ducats" and bad seats as "bims." Speculators are known as "rats" or diggers." The commission paid box office men by agencies is called "ice." When a producer has got back his original investment in a production he is "off the nut." Seats reserved by the management are called "house seats." A "buy" is the regular quota of seats allotted to an agency. "Dumps" are tickets returned to the box office by an agency.

Because Edgar Allan Poe is to me the most romantic and lonely figure in American literary history, I have been entranced by reading "Israfel," a biography of his life in two volumes by Hervey Allen. No biography I ever read approached a subject with such a passion for detail as this.

The other night I met an Englishman who knows more than 100 verses of my favorite Cockney song, the chorus of which runs:

It's the syme the 'ole world over,
It's the poor what tykes the blyme,
It's the rich wot gets the gryvy—
Ayn't it all a bleedin' shyme.

On second thought, old songs are always worth repeating and here are a few of the Cockney verses I remember—but the chorus must be sung after each verse or the entire effect is lost:

She was just a parsons' daughter,
Pure and unstyned was 'er nyme;
First 'e wooed 'er, then 'e left 'er,
And the poor girl lost 'er nyme.

Look at 'im with all 'is 'orses
Drinkin' champygne in 'is club,
While the victim of 'is passions
Drinks 'er Guinness in a pub.

'Ear 'im in 'Ouse of Commons,
Mykin' laws to put down crime:
While the woman that 'e ruined
'Angs 'er 'ead in wicked shyme.

In their poor and 'umble dwelling,
Where'er grieving parents live,
Drinkin' champygne that she's sent 'em,
But they never can forgive.

The most satisfying actor to me on the screen is Conrad Nagel. He does what he has to do naturally and never appears to be "acting." William Winter used to say a man's private life was unconsciously reflected in public. That may be true of Mr. Nagel, for he bears the finest reputation in Hollywood.

Orpheum Seeks Bigger Home

Vaudevile Theater Said to Be Contemplating 5000-Seat House in Order to Put Up Better Fight Against Movies, Which Are Crowding Varieties Hard With Big Stage Shows—Fox Building Will Have Space for 7500, Counting Room Set Aside for the Standees.

By NIE

THERE are persistent rumors that the new Keith-Albee-Orpheum-Pathe combination is looking for a site for a new vaudeville theater downtown where a four or five thousand seat house can be erected to wage war upon the movie palaces which are making things tougher every day for the variety business. At the same time the makers of the film plays are realizing that the movie theaters are shoving their product into the background with the extensive stage shows but the house owners are paying little attention having determined to keep up the type of show which has proved popular —and expensive.

In the meantime work on the Fox Theater on Grand avenue is progressing and while Fox films will, of course, be shown there, the stage shows are expected to grow into greater prominence than ever. This new house is to be one of the largest in the country. With an auditorium dome eight stories high, with the largest clear span balcony in the world, with roof trusses that are the largest ever used in St. Louis, with an audience capacity, counting standing room, of 7500, with a summer refrigerating system of 600 tons capacity and the first broadcasting station in a St. Louis theater the new theater is going to break some building records at least. As to box office records in an already overseated town—well that is something else again.

POWER transformers for the theater will be large enough to operate all the street cars in St. Louis. As for the lighting system, the bank of three transformers would be enough to light most of the highways in the State. There are 157 miles of covered wire for lighting alone, from lamp cord size to one and a half inches in diameter, encased in 200 tons of iron pipe conduits one-half inch to five inches in diameter. There are to be 25,000 incandescent lamps in the theater and shops, ranging from 10 watts for aisle lights to 2000 watts in the projection machine. In the theater sign that will extend up the entire height of the building, and in the marquise that extends over the sidewalk there will be 12,000 incandescent lamps. Microphones will be placed in the footlights trough for amplifying stage and orchestra effects, carrying them to the broadcasting station above the eight-story tier of dressing rooms.

And the shows—well we shall see.

FROM Schenectady comes word that the development of television, the transmission of motion pictures by radio, is under way by the General Electric Co., which, in association with the Radio Corporation of America and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. has acquired an interest in the film company, F. B. O.

However, radio pictures still are in the embryonic stage, with little possibility that they will become practical for the public for a considerable period of time.

The radio pictures were given a demonstration at Schenectady during the past week, to which a selected audience was invited. The spectators were amazed at the showing of moving images which were sent from a point two miles away and shown on a screen three inches square.

Meanwhile, The General Electric Co. is putting finishing touches to Kinegraphone, its talking picture device, developed in its laboratories. This is operated on a principle recording sound photographically. This device soon will be offered on the market.

IN "Sorrell and Son" at Loew's this week which, at a private showing the other day proved to be as delightful a picture as was Warwick Deeping's charming novel, is Louis Wolheim playing another hard boiled role, a type which he will have considerable trouble ever getting away from on the screen. And yet he is an altogether different person in real life and once was a serious minded college professor.

Before becoming an actor, Wolheim was an instructor of mathematics at Cornell, from which university he was graduated in 1905. At Cornell he distinguished himself in football as a star fullback.

Off-screen and off-stage, Wolheim is one of the most polished gentlemen in the profession of histrionics. He is huge, physically powerful, and a pugnacious-looking individual, but behind his gruff exterior is a wealth of culture.

In "Sorrell and Son" Wolheim has one of the most important roles. Despite his background of education and culture, he has the physical appearance and the knack to make his characterizations ring true. Wolheim was first lured to the stage by Lionel Barrymore, who, impressed with the distinctive character of the college man, persuaded him to take a part in his then current stage offering, "The Jest."

Later came the spectacular title role in "The Hairy Ape," a performance which brought him fame. In "What Price Glory," as the original Captain Flagg on the speaking stage, he repeated his success.

Wolheim is married, has a home in Hollywood, and is a strong advocate of amateur sports, in which he engaged for years as a student and instructor.

Lull in Concerts By the Symphony

THERE will be no regular symphony concerts during this week by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Bernardino Mollinari, its guest conductor, leaves Sunday for New York, where he is to serve as guest conductor for four concerts of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, making his debut in that city on Jan. 17. So that after today's and tomorrow's "Pop" concert the orchestra will not be heard until Sunday, Jan. 22, when with Frederick Fischer conducting and Lawrence Wolfe, tenor, as soloist, it will give its ninth popular concert at the Odeon. Then Mollinari returns for two more concert pairs and two "Pop" concerts before he gives over the orchestra baton to Carl Schuricht of Weisbaden, who is to conduct four concert pairs, after which, with the return of Eugene Goossens, the orchestral season comes to a close.

Theater Guild In "Mr. Pim" Here Friday

THE Theater Guild Repertory Company, from the Guild Theater, New York, with George Gaul and Florence Eldridge, will appear at Howard Hall, Principia Academy, next Friday night under the auspices of the Principia concert and lecture course, in "Mr. Pim Passes By," A. A. Milne's comedy. The play achieved the distinction of a year's run in New York and was later revived with success. In it gentle, squeaky-voiced Mr. Pim, carrying an umbrella which won't stay shut, patters his way into the perfectly proper home of George Mardon. Mr. Pim happens to mention that he has just returned from Australia and that he has met a man named Telworthy. This chance remark from Mr. Pim proves a bombshell in the happy Marden household. Mrs. Marden had been the wife of Telworthy and the rub is she had become Mrs. Marden believing that Telworthy had died in Australia.

George Gaul will appear as George Marden. Florence Eldridge is to be Olivia Marden. Erskine Sanford, who originated the role of Carraway Pim at the Garrick Theater, New York, will play the whimsical character here. Frederic March will be Brian Strange. The company also includes Molly Pearson as Lady Marden; Hortense Alden as Dinah and Dorothy Fletcher as Anne. The production was directed for the Guild by Philip Moeller.

The Theater Guild of New York is a fine theatrical organization, ranking with the best, and devoted to the fine production of fine plays.

The Guild started, in 1919, as a revolutionary movement against the tawdriness of the American theater. Its founders and its present directors were either personally connected with or vitally interested in the theater.

The Guild, with $500 of borrowed capital, took over the Garrick Theater in New York. Their first production, "Bonds of Interest," which ran for three weeks, lost their small capital. The Guild's faith was larger than its bankroll and the faith of the actors associated with them in the venture was just as great. So "John Ferguson" by the English critic, St. John Ervine, was produced and knocked theatrical New York pin-wise by running to excellent business throughout the summer. From 5000 subscribers the figure grew to 6000 and still kept growing. Today in New York there are some 25,000 subscribers, or well over twice the number of those who subscribe to the Metropolitan Opera.

The company which will come to St. Louis has been formed by the Guild with due regard for its traditions and standards. The company's repertory consists of four plays, "The Silver Cord" by Sidney Howard, "Mr. Pim Passes By" by A. A. Milne, "Arms and the Man" by Bernard Shaw and "The Guardsman" by Franz Molnar. Only "Mr. Pim Passes By" will be performed here.

Miss Skinner to Appear Again Friday.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, daughter of Otis Skinner, will give a series of character sketches at the dinner of the Contemporary Club next Friday night at the Coronado Hotel. Mrs. Archer O'Reilly will preside at the dinner which is open to members of the club and their guests only. Miss Skinner will give the following program: "The Eve of Departure," "An American Girl in the Sistine Chapel," "In a Gondola," "Spring Evening," "Home Work," "The Lady Explorer," "Night Club" and "Sailing Time."

Behind The Screens

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.

COLLEEN MOORE continues in the coveted position of most popular feminine star on the screen, according to the results just announced of a survey covering the year 1927, in which the theater owners themselves have again awarded her this honor.

When selecting the biggest screen names for 1926 these men who base their judgments by the volume of nickels and dimes that a star can lure into the box office had voted her the same rank, and that Miss Moore has lost no ground in the interim is once more demonstrated by this latest poll, which, like the preceding one, was launched by a film journal, the Exhibitors' Herald.

Only two women stars received more than 100 votes proclaiming them the best box-office attractions of 1927. And Miss Moore, one of the two, received 223 votes —or 47 more than the votes cast for her nearest rival among all of the feminine film stars of the day.

Miss Moore's next picture is to be made from Jane Cowl's stage success, "Lilac Time," with "Baby Face" and "Oh, Kay" to follow. Her 1927 pictures were "Orchids and Ermine," "Naughty but Nice," "Twinkletoes" and "Her Wild Oat."

In 25 European countries a popular vote selected the Fox productions "Sunrise" and "What Price Glory" as the two best pictures of 1927. The Berlin newspaper Der Deutsche conducted the vote. "Sunrise" was chosen as the picture for first position and "What Price Glory" for second. "Sunrise" was directed by F. W. Murnau, with George O'Brien and Janet Gaynor in the starring roles. "What Price Glory" was directed by Raoul Walsh and featured Dolores Del Rio, Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe.

The new comedy in which Charlie Murray and Louise Fazenda have the principal roles has been started. This film deals with the experiences of a New York politician. In a period of coma he imagines himself back in the days of ancient Greece, where he starts the political pot boiling with his modern methods.

And in a recent popularity contest conducted in Havana for the purpose of determining the city's favorite motion picture star, John Barrymore emerged victor over his nearest rival by 608 votes. The contest was held under the auspices of the two leading amusement places of the Cuban capital. The vote for the three highest stars was as follows:

Jack Gilbert, 2355 votes.
Ronald Colman, 2266 votes.

Barrymore is now engaged in making "Tempest" out here. Camilla Horn, the German screen actress who made "Faust" for UFA in Germany, is his leading lady.

Chester Conklin has started his role by going to bed. Conklin is playing the leading role in "The Headliner," which is an expose of "yellow journalism." It was written by Ben Hecht, Chicago newspaper man, as an original for production by First National. The opening scenes of the story show Conklin awakening in the morning, and to do that he had to come to the studio and go to bed. Alice White, Ned Sparks, Bodil Rosing and Sam Hardy are in the cast. Conklin has the role of a subway guard.

Horses, according to a generally accepted notion, will go into a panic as soon as they see fire and will try to rush into it. It is also a fixed notion that a horse cannot be taken out of a burning barn because the animals will dash back into the flames unless their heads are covered.

Fred Thomson, well-known motion picture star, says this is bunk. He has been training horses all his life. In a scene of "The Pioneer Scout" he is standing in a circle of burning covered wagons. The flames are leaping 20 feet in the air. He whistles to Silver King and the big white horse dashes between two of the burning wagons, waits for Mr. Thomson to mount and then comes out again without showing the slightest fear of fire. Several cow ponies carrying bareback riders also circled about the flames so close the men could feel the heat to an uncomfortable extent.

Miss Griffith will make a series of eight productions under the supervision of Walter Morosco. Frank Lloyd has been signed to direct Miss Griffith in "The Divine Lady," her first picture under the new contract. It was under Mr. Rowland's guidance that Miss Griffith became a leading figure on the screen through her performance in "Black Oxen."

The role of Lady Hamilton in "The Divine Lady," from the novel by E. Barrington, should give Miss Griffith one of the finest characterizations she has ever had. Production will be started within a few weeks.

Evelyn Brent has just signed a new contract with Paramount and will start under its provisions as the lead opposite Adolphe Menjou in his next picture, which is as yet untitled.

Miss Brent was featured as a bandit queen in "Underworld" and went on from there to important leads in "Beau Sabreur," "Beau Geste" and in "The Last Command," the melodrama of the Russian revolution in which Emil Jannings is starred. She is at work at present in "The Showdown," a picture of the Tampico oil fields, starring George Bancroft.

The Rocky Road to Rome - - -

By Grace George.

THIS business of kidding the ancients is getting popular.

Indeed, it seems as if the big note in life today is lack of reverence for everything that was held almost holy before the war.

The new generation has its ideas about us and the old world and all Victorian traditions. It seems that in this play, "The Road to Rome," they are having a tremendous lot of fun seeing Hannibal fall for a vamp who talks in terms of modern colloquial flapperism, in hearing a Roman soldier utter hard-boiled stuff in much the same way that the top kick does in "What Price Glory," in listening to the gossip of the Eternal City at the time the great Carthaginian general besieged it in 216 B. C., and so mysteriously ordered his armies to retreat when the city was at his mercy, something the military strategists have never been able to understand or historians explain.

For centuries it was the fashion of playwrights in writing so-called "classic drama" dealing with the ancients to make them speak in blank verse or in terms of Shakspeare. Indeed, it was considered revolutionary and almost sacrireligious when G. Bernard Shaw handed us his "Caesar and Cleopatra" and made his principals talk like folks would today, giving us a flapperized version of the stately Queen of Egypt. But, come to think of it, G. B. S. did only what Shakspeare did. The Bard made his characters, or at least the comedy folk, in his plays talk as people talked in the Elizabethan age.

So, Mr. Sherwood had every authority for what he has done in making his characters in "The Road to Rome" human, understandable, and appealing, and so had Mr. Shaw for what he assayed. The only wonder is that playwrights never discovered before that this is the right way to write plays about the ancients, if you want to create any stage illusion of reality.

Life was, after all, very much the same in Rome in 216 B. C. as it is in America in 1928 A. D.

They had the same problems to solve as to capital and labor, as to making life on the farms bearable and inducing the farmers to keep on farming instead of migrating to the city; they had the same trouble we are having in keeping salacious plays and books—if not the movies—from corrupting public morals, they had the same struggle to develop native arts, literature and drama, they had the same kind of high-hatting that we get from cultured Europeans handed to them by the cultured Greeks, they had the same problems as to concentrated wealth, corrupt politics, too many laws, bribery in public office, and as we do today, they found every nation in the world unfriendly and jealous.

I have no doubt that in Rome at that time the flappers and cake-eaters were just as much a shock to the older generation as they are to us today.

Sherwood said he did not think that he ever would have had the courage to try and write a play if it had not been for the fact that he was utterly discouraged with trying to write for the movies. Being a film critic, he was ambitious to seek the uplift of the movies, so he tried to write scenarios. He managed to write several. One of them was produced with Sid Chaplin as the star, and when he went to see it, that ended his scenario writing. He told me he could recognize absolutely nothing in that film that had the slightest resemblance to his original script, and he left the theater sadder and wiser and resolved to write no more for the films.

In writing "The Road to Rome," Mr. Sherwood sought to make the characters in it seem human to people today, and to do that he gave them the terms of speech and thought of modern people. Nearly everyone who has ever written a Roman play has given the characters lines after the Shakspearean manner. That was all right in Shakspeare's time, when people may have talked that way, but today it seems perfectly grotesque. To make the old Romans talk like Elizabethans is to make them neither flesh, fowl nor the devil. Surely we have the same right that Shakspeare had to make our characters in a Roman play talk like human beings and be recognized as such.

Sherwood's explanation of Hannibal's retreat from Rome is not based on any historical fact, of course, but the truth is there is no explanation of Hannibal's action, and it is one of the great unsolved mysteries of ancient history.

There might have been a woman in the case, at that.

Stage Shows in the Movies

By Jesse L. Lasky

The supplementary program of music and vaudeville with which moving pictures are surrounded in the big show houses has been developed by the theater men in the face of increasing objections from many movie critics. Here is a candid, balanced presentation of the problem from one of the most authoritative sources in the industry. Mr. Lasky, vice president of Paramount, while primarily interested in the picture and its production, also has an inside contact with the exhibitor, through ownership or partial ownership of theaters like the Missouri here in St. Louis.

THE problem of presentations, which has been arousing so much comment in the trade recently, is a vexing one and is not to be dismissed lightly. As a producer of motion pictures I welcome this opportunity to discuss in the Post-Dispatch various phases of this question, which necessarily must have a great effect on production.

In the first place the word "presentations" is a misnomer. I think it grew out of the "prologue" vogue of a few years ago. Prologue were introduced by exhibitors who felt that properly to show a picture they first had to put on a stage act which, through dialogue and music, would create the proper atmospheric setting. This always struck me as being rather silly. Any well-made picture carries its own atmosphere, put into the picture at the studio. It seems absurd that, after a studio has spent thousands of dollars on a production, the house manager of a theater with his necessarily limited resources, should feel obliged to stage a brief act to interpret the picture to the audience. It would be just as sensible to expect the house manager of a legitimate theater to stage a prologue to "Lulu Belle" or "The Road to Rome."

Out of these prologues grew the presentation, which term covers the vaudeville, music and other stage attractions given with a picture in our big motion picture theaters. As they are constituted at present, these vaudeville acts, bands, organ solos and other attractions that make up the bill are not a presentation of the picture and have no relation to the picture. Therefore, in describing these attractions it seems to me that we must invent some new term.

In arriving at a proper appreciation of this extra-film entertainment we must give some consideration to the problem of the exhibitor. By exhibitor, in this particular instance, I mean the management of our big first-class houses of from three to six thousand seats—because it is with them that the problem is most acute. As a producer of motion pictures my heart and thought are naturally centered in the picture. Nevertheless, I have a very deep sympathy for the exhibitor, I appreciate that he has on his hands a question which we must answer if his house is to produce a proper profit. I believe I have had an unusual opportunity to study this situation in our own Publix theaters.

In these large houses the de luxe show, as a whole, runs about two hours and 10 minutes. The exhibitor believes from experience that this is the proper amount of entertainment to give his patrons for their money. Of this two hours and 10 minutes, the motion picture entertainment usually takes up an hour and 10 or 15 minutes. This does not include the newsreel and a two-reel comedy or other screen novelty. Even with these the exhibitor is faced with the necessity of providing something which will occupy the rest of the time.

To do this he has resorted to stage shows. These shows are created by producers of stage acts. The producer of the stage show, being a creator, occasionally allows his enthusiasm for his own handiwork to run away with him. Then the stage entertainment encroaches on the time and position which rightfully belong to the screen. Then it is that the so-called presentation becomes menace to the picture.

I want to make myself perfectly clear: The film must always be the main attraction in any motion picture theater. The time consumed by the feature and the supporting film entertainment should be the basic time around which the stage manager builds his show. When stage acts are necessary to round out a complete program those acts should be subordinated to the film. Certainly the stage act should not be allowed to run so long as to crowd out worthy film comedies and newsreels. Above all the stage entertainment should not be of such length and nature as to leave the patrons weary when the feature picture is thrown upon the screen. It is the feature picture that the patrons have come into the house to see. If this be not true, then the whole motion picture business is not true. Just as the program within the theater must be arranged so that the picture is the main feature so it is obvious that the theater's advertising must present the picture as the main attraction. I have no patience whatsoever with film theaters that subordinate a well-known star and a costly production to the aggrandizement of some band master, master of ceremonies or small-time vaudeville actor. Motion picture producers have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in their productions and the personalities that appear in those productions. To me it is folly for us to make this great effort, to spend this money in exploiting these pictures and personalities if they are to be kicked around in our leading theaters and subordinated to some extraneous personality. That is not building the picture business; it is tearing it down. What incentive is there to a motion picture producer to make better pictures if he sees his best efforts used as a trailer to some jazz band or tabloid show?

Just as sure as the motion picture is subordinated in the theater so will it deteriorate in the studio.

As I said before, this whole problem is not one that can be solved with a wave of the hand. It is idle to say the big theaters of three, four and five thousand seats should not be built. They are already built, in operation and are showing excellent net profits. Criticism and wholesale condemnation will not make the situation any better. No doubt abuses have sometimes crept into the management of stage shows at our bigger theaters. However, I am convinced that our circuit heads and leading exhibitors are aware of the economic peril which lies in the wake of these abuses and are making a sane, intelligent effort to correct them. Certainly the situation is not going to be cured by recriminations. It remains, on the contrary, for all of us to study the problem more disinterestedly to the end that a closer co-operation will effect a solution.

As a matter of fact this very situation may have ultimately an excellent result; because once more it drives home to all of us the responsibility we have to every phase of the picture business. The producer, in his studio making pictures, cannot ignore the problems of distribution and exhibition. The distributor cannot shut his eyes to the difficulties that beset the producer and likewise the difficulties that lie in the path of the exhibitor. And on the other hand the exhibitor must realize not only his responsibility to his patrons and stockholders but also to the man who sells him the film and to the studio that made the pictures possible. This whole situation, therefore, as I said before, may bring forth great benefits if it only brings all three elements of this business into closer working co-operation.

Edith Piper Pop Soloist Is With Symphony

Max Steindel to Lead Orchestra and Offer Program of Lighter Music of High Type.

EDITH PIPER, the first pop singer to whom the Juilliard Foundation ever accorded a professional debut in its effort to develop American musical genius and a singer who is by birth a St. Louisan, will make her debut with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at its "pop" concert at the Odeon this afternoon at a concert at which Max Steindel will be presented in the role of conductor of that orchestra, of which he is the first 'cellist.

He has chosen to offer a program of lighter music of the finest type. There is no symphony, but in its place will be the symphonic poem, "The Wheel of Omphale," in which Saint-Saens presents a picture of Hercules enchained by the lure of a woman and in woman's garb sitting at Omphale's spinning wheel. Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" suite is another of the orchestral numbers, while Strauss' "Artists' Life" waltzes, the overture to Wolf-Ferrari's "The Secret of Suzanne" and Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours" from "La Gioconda" complete the purely orchestral offering.

Miss Piper is to sing the aria "Pace, Pace mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" and from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" the "Vio lo Sapete."

The soloist comes of a family well known in St. Louis and was herself a student at Mary Institute. A beauty of voice early developed in the young singer, but the opportunity for its development only came when after she had sung for the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust one evening a group of friends determined to send Miss Piper to Italy for study. There were two years under masters there, after which she returned to America to study with Mme. Sembrich. Remarkable success by the young student in winning three successive times the Juilliard fellowship entitled her to study with Mme. Sembrich three successive years. Last February the Juilliard Foundation sponsored Miss Piper's first recital in New York. There was a further study year in Italy where she made her debut in several operatic roles, returning last fall to America.

The program for this afternoon's concert in detail is:

Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" — Wolf-Ferrari
Symphonic Poem, "The Wheel of Omphale" .... Saint-Saens
Ario, "Pace, pace mio Dio," from "The Force of Destiny" .... [illegible]
Miss Piper.
Suite: "L'Arlesienne" .... [illegible]
(a) Prelude.
(b) Minuet.
(c) Adagietto.
(d) Carillon.
(e) Minuet
(f) Farandole.
"Artists' Life" Waltzes .... [illegible]

Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" suite is another of the orchestral numbers, while Strauss' "Artists' Life" waltzes, the overture to Wolf-Ferrari's "The Secret of Suzanne" and Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours" from "La Gioconda" complete the purely orchestral offering.

Miss Piper is to sing the aria "Pace, Pace mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" and from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" the "Vio lo Sapete."

The soloist comes of a family well known in St. Louis and was herself a student at Mary Institute. A beauty of voice early developed in the young singer, but the opportunity for its development only came when after she had sung for the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust one evening a group of friends determined to send Miss Piper to Italy for study. There were two years under masters there, after which she returned to America to study with Mme. Sembrich. Remarkable success by the young student in winning three successive times the Juilliard fellowship entitled her to study with Mme. Sembrich three successive years. Last February the Juilliard Foundation sponsored Miss Piper's first recital in New York. There was a further study year in Italy where she made her debut in several operatic roles, returning last fall to America.

The program for this afternoon's concert in detail is:

Aria, "Pace, pace mio Dio," from "The Force of Destiny" .... Verdi
Miss Piper.
Suite: "L'Arlesienne" .... Bizet
(a) Prelude.
(b) Minuet.
(c) Adagietto.
(d) Carillon.
(e) Minuet
(f) Farandole.
"Artists' Life" Waltzes .... Strauss
Aria, "Vio lo Sapete," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" .... Mascagni
Dance of the Hours, from "La Gioconda."

actor. Motion picture producers have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in their productions and the personalities that appear in those productions. To me it is folly for us to make this great effort, to spend this money in exploiting these pictures and personalities if they are to be kicked around in our leading theaters and subordinated to some extraneous personality. That is not building the picture business; it is tearing it down. What incentive is there to a motion picture producer to make better pictures if he sees his best efforts used as a trailer to some jazz band or tabloid show?

Just as sure as the motion picture is subordinated in the theater so will it deteriorate in the studio.

As I said before, this whole problem is not one that can be solved with a wave of the hand. It is idle to say the big theaters of three, four and five thousand seats should not be built. They are already built, in operation and are showing excellent net profits. Criticism and wholesale condemnation will not make the situation any better. No doubt abuses have sometimes crept into the management of stage shows of our bigger theaters. However, I am convinced that our circuit heads and leading exhibitors are aware of the economic peril which lies in the wake of these abuses and are making a sane, intelligent effort to correct them. Certainly the situation is not going to be cured by recriminations. It remains, on the contrary, for all of us to study the problem more disinterestedly to the end that a closer cooperation will effect a solution.

As a matter of fact this very situation may have ultimately an excellent result; because once more it drives home to all of us the responsibility we have to every phase of the picture business. The producer, in his studio making pictures, cannot ignore the problems of distribution and exhibition. The distributor cannot shut his eyes to the difficulties that beset the producer and likewise the difficulties that lie in the path of the exhibitor. And on the other hand the exhibitor must realize not only his responsibility to his patrons and stockholders but also to the man who sells him the film and to the studio that made the pictures possible. This whole situation, therefore, as I said before, may bring forth great benefits if it only brings all three elements of this business into closer working cooperation.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair
By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup

Better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily prepared.

If you combined the valuable properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real healing power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Her Secret Beautifier
Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes: —"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muddy, sallow and pimply skin. I found I could cover the blemishes with cosmetics, but this was only a temporary relief. "My druggist recommended your purely vegetable laxative, and suggested my trouble might be constipation. After taking a short while I noticed a wonderful difference. My complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

30-DAY SENTENCES FOR THREE MOTORISTS

Fines of $100 Also Imposed on Drunken Driving Charges; Two Men Appeal.

Three motorists charged with driving while intoxicated were sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse and fined $100 each by Police Judge Rosecan yesterday Francis C George, 22, 1403 North Sarah street, and Thomas R Hopkins, 35, 5908 Minerva, appealed Charles Clemens, 1704 South Seventeenth street, was sentenced by default.

George was arrested Dec. 22 after a traffic mixup at Vandeventer and Laclede avenues. Witnesses testified that he backed his machine, knocking down Miss Ellen Michael, 4537 Maffitt avenue, and then plunged forward, colliding with a street car. Police found him in the next block sauntering away from the scene. On the stand he admitted having had four steins of home brew two hours before the accident.

Hopkins was arrested Dec. 15, after his automobile, which he was driving without lights, collided with a bus at Kingshighway and Southwest avenue. The chief prosecuting witness was Clarence Heckle, chauffeur of the bus, who testified that he "hauled many drunks" on his bus and knew how they acted. Hopkins, he declared, was intoxicated.

Police testified Clemens, on Oct. 30, drove his automobile into the machine of Desk Sergeant Albert Galvin, which was parked in front of the Soulard Street Station.

WOULD HAVE PEDESTRIANS OBEY TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Director Brooks Makes Recommendation After Observing Practice in Cleveland and Detroit.

During a visit to Cleveland and Detroit last week, Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks noted that pedestrian traffic in those cities is being compelled to follow traffic signals with automobiles and said upon his return yesterday that he thought St. Louis ought to consider doing likewise.

Pedestrians who fail to move with vehicular traffic in response to signals first are warned to return to the curb, if a traffic officer is stationed at the corner. If they disobey, they are handed a police court summons. If they refuse the summons, the patrol is called and arrest is made. In both cities, arrests have been made—in Cleveland of the wife of a prominent citizen—and the result is, Brooks said, that pedestrians now generally obey signals. The ordinance governing traffic in St. Louis specifies only generally that traffic shall move in accordance with signals. Pedestrians are not specifically mentioned, but Brooks thinks that the ordinance could be interpreted to include pedestrians.

Brooks also noted that the National Electric Light Association has developed an illuminated device for numbering houses, a transparency with a 10-watt lamp which makes the house number easily read 100 feet away.

STREET CAR PASSES ON SALE

Permit Buyers to Ride All Day for 25 Cents.

"Passes" good for unlimited riding on any one Sunday are being sold on street cars today for 25 cents. They are transferrable, which means that the purchaser may hand it over to another member of his family or to any other person, who may ride street cars as many times as desired during the day of sale. The St. Louis Public Service Co. will continue to sell the "passes" on future Sundays and on certain holidays.

In Aid of Sanatorium.

A campaign to raise $6000 for the Jewish Consumptives' Sanatorium at Sanitorium City, Colo., is being conducted by the St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary of the institution. The sanatorium began with eight tents on a little strip of ground near Denver 25 years ago, but now has 300 patients from all parts of this country.

SETBACK FOR BILLIKEN FIVE FIRST OF SEASON

Chicago Team's "Zone" Defense Gains Seventh Straight Triumph Afte Locals Lead, 15-8, a Half.

By Jack Alexander.

Loyola' University's "zone" defense played a big part in the Chicago school's 27 to 21 basketbal victory over St. Louis Universit at the Billiken gym last night. I was the first defeat for the Billi kens in nine starts and the sevent consecutive victory for Loyola.

The "zone" method of protectin the goal consisted in having eac defender cover a portion of th floor near the goal instead of dogging the tracks of an individua opponent. As Loyola played it, i was a rigid, immovable affair, wit the players virtually rooted t their assigned spots, and becaus of its inflexibility, it almost prove the undoing of the visitors.

First of all, the Billikens wer going at top speed in the first min ute and it wasn't long before the were ahead 6 to 3. Then, once i possession of the ball, the Billike guards withdrew into their ow territory and played catch leisurely with the ball for several minutes. SETBACK FOR BILLIKEN FIVE FIRST OF SEASON

Chicago Team's "Zone" Defense Gains Seventh Straight Triumph After Locals Lead, 15-8, at Half.

By Jack Alexander.

Loyola University's "zone" defense played a big part in the Chicago school's 27 to 21 basketball victory over St. Louis University at the Billiken gym last night. It was the first defeat for the Billikens in nine starts and the seventh consecutive victory for Loyola.

The "zone" method of protecting the goal consisted in having each defender cover a portion of the floor near the goal instead of dogging the tracks of an individual opponent. As Loyola played it, it was a rigid, immovable affair, with the players virtually rooted to their assigned spots, and because of its inflexibility, it almost proved the undoing of the visitors.

First of all, the Billikens were going at top speed in the first minute and it wasn't long before they were ahead 6 to 3. Then, once in possession of the ball, the Billiken guards withdrew into their own territory and played catch leisurely with the ball for several minutes. Justice F. Is Victor By Four Lengths in Dade Handicap

War Eagle Runs Second in Feature Event at New Orleans—Roy Gibson, Baby Racer, Wins His Second Straight.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14.—W. Daniels' Justice F, perfectly ridden by Pascuma, scored an easy victory in winning the A. B. Dade Handicap, the feature of a splendid race program at Fairgrounds here today. He carried 122 pounds and ran the mile over a good track in 1:40 1-5.

War Eagle was second and Oh Susanna third.

Oh Susanna cut out a fast pace, leading the favorite by a length or so for the first half mile. However, at the far turn, Pascuma could not hold Justice F any longer. The big horse dashed to the front and increasing his advantage to the finish, won by four lengths. War Eagle took the place by half a length.

Roy Gibson Wins Again.

J. J. Troxler's Roy Gibson scored his second victory of the meeting when he led home a smart field of baby racers in the first race, a three-furlong sprint. Pick Up landed second money, with Alto third. Sunny Port, one of the choices, finished fourth.

Roy Gibson rushed into the lead and was hard ridden to win by a length and a half. Pick Up took the place by half a length from Alto.

The start in the second race was bad. The webbing refused to work properly, consequently half the field was caught in it and some carried it for quite a ways before shaking it off.

The winner turned up in Robert Mandell, with Aileen P. second and Battlefield third. Aileen P. made the early pace but in the last furlong Robert Mandell came with a rush and won by half a length.

Shower Helps Track.

Just as the horses paraded to the post for the third event, a heavy shower broke over the track and made the going good.

Tyrol, under Hebert's hustling ride, was an easy winner, with Navigator second and Comrade third. Rothermel, the odds-on favorite, performed poorly, being outrun.

Tyrol rushed to the front, made the pace and won by a length and a half. Navigator was second by a like distance from Comrade.

Four Straight for Galahad.

Mrs. O. Chaney's Galahad scored his fourth straight victory when he led home a good field of three-year-olds in the fifth event, mile and 70 yards gallop. Jack Higgins landed second with Doc third.

Doc, as usual, cut out the early running but ran out at the turn and at the top of the stretch, went to the middle of the track.

Galahad and Jack Higgins, which had been following the pace, rushed into the lead, and in a driving finish Galahad won by two lengths. Jack Higgins beat Doc half a length for the place.

Jack Higgins paid $24.48 to place.

George DeMar, favorite and ridden by R. Leonard, won the sixth race in a drive from Lucky Drift, with Patricia Marian third. Lucky Drift opened a wide lead but in the stretch George De Mar came with a rush and won going away.

Again the place horse gave the bettors a thrill, Lucky Drift paying $36.54 for $2.

The last race, a mile and a quarter gallop, was won by Parole II, with Duck Weed second and Hopeless third.

IRISH PLAN TO SEND TEAM TO OLYMPICS

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Jan. 14.—J. K. Keene, chairman of the Irish Olympic Council, announced today that the council proposes to send a team of 70 to Amsterdam to participate in the 1928 Olympics. The Free State and Ulster Governments will be asked to furnish the expenses of the team.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Are They "Shooting?"

ONE of the sad commentaries on wrestling, today, is that before every match between top-rank men, the wrestling fraternity not on the inside begins to sniff the atmosphere and wonder if the principals are "shooting." Meaning, the cynics are uncertain if the bout will be a contest or an exhibition.

The Lewis-Stecher championship match has not risen above this cynicism. Men scorched in many a previous fire are keeping their ears to earth to tap some underground connection.

One of the confirmed cynics among the veteran followers of the game has interested himself in the matter and has forwarded the Post-Dispatch his views. This veteran hails from Nebraska, a State which ought to be strong for wrestlers, but has no use for them. Nebraska gave the world Pesek, Stecher and other great ones; but few are the wrestling matches held in big Nebraska towns.

Why?

"Once stung, twice shy," is the motto there.

Stecher Seems In Earnest.

The writer of the following letter is an expert of years' experience and a lover of wrestling. His opinion is worth something. It follows, in part:

My Dear Wray:

Just wised myself up to some information in re. Mr. Stecher that you should have. Although I am not backing up an inch from my conviction that wrestling flim-flammers and fakers have been imposing terribly on a long-suffering public, said information is to the effect that Stecher is going through all the motions of serious preparation for a genuine contest.

Adam Krieger, a Lincoln wrestler whom I have known real well a dozen years or more, was just up to see me. He was at Stecher's camp in Dodge, Neb., and tells me that JOE HAS A CORPS OF FIVE TRAINERS AND IS TAKING DAILY WORKOUTS. Krieger has been hired to give Joe some extra speed and new stuff for use against Lewis. He, Krieger, is at Dodge, now, and will stay there until Joe goes to St. Louis for the session with Lewis. Krieger is getting a weekly salary and A BONUS OF A THOUSAND BUCKS IF STECHER WINS!

Until about five years ago, Krieger was the best of all the 115-pounders. Then he began taking on weight, until now he is competing in the light-heavy class. I am in position to know that Krieger is a russeling gent of unusual skill; that his services are costing the Stechers some real money. Krieger assures me that STECHER VOWS HE IS "SHOOTING" TO WIN FROM LEWIS; THAT ALL AGREEMENTS OR SUGGESTIONS OF AGREEMENTS ARE OFF; that Joe has a cordial dislike for Lewis and his manager, Sandow.

There is, therefore a CHANCE THAT THESE BIRDS ACTUALLY MAY BE PLANNING TO SHOOT THE WORKS.

Krieger believes they will, at any rate, and the thing isn't an utter impossibility. Meantime, I reserve the right to have my doubts. And if I were to believe until it hurt, I might work myself to the trip to St. Louis to see it through. Thought you might wish to know this latest development.

Not Bad, Jack.

JACK SHARKEY comes forward with a suggestion that fighters give up 5 per cent of their profits out of each boxing match to provide a home for down-and-out pugs.

It is a charitable thought. If the next Dempsey-Tunney fight carries a $3,000,000 gate, 5 per cent would be $150,000—enough to

5 BOXERS TO CONTEST FOR BOUT IN JUNE WITH TUNNEY

Sharkey-Heeney Officials Decide 3 Different Ways

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

EACH of the three officials participating in the draw verdict rendered after the 12-round match between Tom Heeney and Jack Sharkey voted a different ticket.

The New York State Athletic Commission, while reserving announcement as to scoring of individual rounds, disclosed today that Judge George Kelley voted for Sharkey, Judge George Patrick for a draw, while Referee Jack Denning gave Heeney the verdict.

Official scoring of the rounds, on which a majority of ringside critics gave the fight to Sharkey, while the crowd of 17,000 present cheered Heeney as the victor, will be published Tuesday, the commissioner announced.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—"Terribly disappointed" at the showing of Tom Heeney and Jack Sharkey in their draw bout at Madison Square Garden, Tex Rickard today decided to hold a final "elimination" tournament among five men, preliminary to two championship matches this year.

Acting immediately on the plan, Rickard signed Sharkey today to meet a suitable opponent on March 12 and engaged Heeney for a bout March 1. He came to terms with Johnny Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, to fight Jack Delaney, retired light heavyweight champion, Feb. 10. The fifth entrant in the tourney is Paulino Uzcudun of Spain.

All matches, Tex declared, will be 15-round affairs with the losers definitely eliminated from further consideration as potential title challengers.

From these five battlers, Rickard hopes to draw the first opponent for Tunney, with Jack Dempsey standing out as the champion's second challenger. The elimination tournament victor probably will fight Tunney in June.

Dempsey's third fight with the big Marine is tentatively set for next September at the Yankee Stadium.

Rickard also is considering a match in London between Heeney and Dempsey next summer.

While no opponents have been picked for Heeney and Sharkey, Rickard plans to bring together Jack Dorval, Canadian heavyweight, and Knute Hanson, the Minnesota Dane, with the winner to act as one "trial horse." Paulino probably will oppose the other.

"After all the trouble I have taken to build Sharkey up, his bout with Heeney last night merely reduced his standing to that of Heeney, Uzcudun, Delaney and Risko," said Rickard. "You can toss them all into one group of about the same rating. I must do something drastic with them if a title contender is to rise from that bunch. Fifteen-round 'do or die' matches are the only solution."

Melhorn Leads Qualifying Play in Long Beach Golf Tournament With 138 Score

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 14.—Shooting a scorching 138 in the 36-hole qualifying round, "Wild Bill" Melhorn of Wilkinsburg, Pa., formerly of St. Louis, Mo., took a two-stroke lead today over a field of nationally known golf stars competing in the $2500 Long Beach open.

Mehlhorn's card for today's 18 holes was 68, three strokes below par for the Long Beach Municipal course. He took a 70 yesterday.

George von Elm of Los Angeles, former amateur champion, finished the qualifying play as runner-up. His card of 71 today gave him an aggregate of 140 to carry into the 36-hole championship flight tomorrow.

One stroke behind Von Elm the flashy "Lighthouse" Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, with a one-stroke under par card of 70 for the day's play, which added to yesterday's round gave him a total of 141 strokes.

Diegel Beats Par.

Leo Diegel of New York shattered par by two strokes in his round today, turning a card of 69 for an aggregate of 142 for the first two days' play. Charles Eaver, 16-year-old Los Angeles sensation, surprised everyone by continuing his consistent play, taking a 71 today, one stroke less than yesterday, for a total of 143.

Willard Hutchinson of Pasadena, who led the field at the close of yesterday's play with a 67, reversed the figures today to 76 for a total card of 143. Five others finished at the 143 station, Joe Turnesa of New York, turning in individual rounds of 72-71; Joe Black of Oakland, 70-73; Leonard Schmutte, Lima, O., 70-73; Al Espinosa of Chicago, 72-71, and Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, O., 73-70.

MacDonald Smith, distinguished Long Island, N. His individual rounds for the two days' play were 72-72. The others were Billy Burke, New York, 71-73; Tommy Armour, Washington, national open champion, 73-71; Dick Linares, Long Beach, 71-73, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 71-73.

Five other well known golfers occupied positions in the 145 division. BEARS LEAD, 15-1, BEFORE IOWANS GET FIELD GOAL

Performing in erratic style, the Washington University basketball team gained its fourth victory in six Missouri Valley Conference starts by defeating Grinnell, 32-20, at the Field House last night.

Starting brilliantly by counting an occasional field goal while holding the Iowa team scoreless for 12 minutes, the Bears quickly ran up a lead of 8 points before Mark counted on a free toss for Grinnell.

Eckert and Wientge led on offensive that resulted in a count of 15-1 in favor of Washington before Grinnell counted from the floor. Then, with two minutes to play in the first half, Davis and Ingram of the visiting five found the range and ran the score to 8 for Grinnell against Washington's same 15 points at the end of the half.

Coach Don White sent in two substitutes to start the second half, Stanford at forward and Smith at center. The rearranged lineup did not function so well, the players booting the ball and passing inaccurately, so that Grinnell was soon within two points of Washington with the score 17-15. This was as close as the Pioneers got to the lead at any point in the contest.

Then Ralph Kurz counted two long field goals and the Washington team settled down.

Mayer and Wientge returned to the lineup and a last-period rally gave the home quintet its ultimate 12-point margin.

Eckert, with five field goals, was the individual star for Washington. He, and Kurz were the only Bear players who seemed to be playing up to form throughout the game.

SOLDAN AND CLEVELAND WIN HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE GAMES

West End Five Beats Beaumont, 19-18, for Its Second Triumph

Central Drops Its Opening Contest to Cleveland, 23-21 —Both Games Are Loosely Played — Beaumont Fails to Make Expected Strong Showing.

By Gerald Holland.

Soldan and Cleveland were returned victors in last night's public High School League basketball games which were both closely contested and won by narrow margins. Soldan gained an unexpected victory over Beaumont before 1000 persons at the Beaumont gymnasium, 19 to 18, and Cleveland won its first game this season on the Roosevelt floor, beating Central by a 23 to 21 count.

The Soldan triumph was the second of the league season for Coach Harry White's team, which last week won from Cleveland. The West Enders now share first place with Roosevelt, idle last night, and which defeated Beaumont in the opening game last Saturday.

The first half was poorly played and both teams displayed a ragged passing game, inaccurate shooting, and none too brilliant defense work. The second period was somewhat faster but in neither stanza did Beaumont come up to its performance of last week, when it led the veteran Roosevelt Rough Riders for three periods.

Soldan took a 5-4 lead at the first quarter and maintained its margin to head Beaumont 10 to 8 at the half. Steideman, Beaumont forward, led a third quarter rally that put his team in front as the third period ended, 15 to 11.

Buchele scored a field goal for Soldan in the last period and his teammate, Edmiston, duplicated the shot to tie the score. Rost again put Beaumont ahead, 17 to dropped in the winning field goal a few minutes before the gun and

Rally by Central in Third Period Makes Cleveland Spurt to Win Out

The Cleveland-Central game, played at Roosevelt gymnasium, was a raggedly played contest, due largely to the fact that both teams were made up of inexperienced players.

There was plenty of excitement in the fourth quarter, however, for Central, behind most of the time, had gone into the lead as the third period ended, 18 to 16, thanks to two field goals by Sibley.

Starting the final quarter, two Cleveland free throws tied the score and a field goal by Covington put Cleveland ahead, 20 to 18. This lead was short-lived, for Bassman dropped in a field goal to tie the score again at 20 all.

But Jansen, the Cleveland forward, who was the star of the game, put his team in the lead with a field goal and Bernhardt dropped in a free throw to bring the score to 23 to 20.

The game was Central's first of the season. Cleveland had played one other contest, which it lost. The victory therefore gave the South Siders a .500 percentage.

About 300 persons saw last night's contest.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Jake Schaefer vanquished Welker Cochran in their 3600-point balkline billiard match here tonight by 3600 to 2864.

The highest run for the match was established by Schaefer last night, 222.

NEGRO HIGH SCHOOLS FORM BASKET LEAGUE; LARGE COURT NEEDED

For the first time in the history of sports among Negroes in St. Louis, the two local high schools, Vashon and Sumner, together with the Lincoln High School of East St. Louis and Franklin High of St. Charles, Mo., are now in a basketball league with a complete schedule.

One difficulty met by the league is lack of a court with adequate spectator accommodations. The Pine Street Y League cancelled games Friday night to permit the schools to use its floor for a big opening, but this floor is in use every night and it will not be available. This leaves only the Y. W. C. A. for use, which has space for only about half the crowd expected at the league contests.

The following is the schedule: Jan. 20, Lincoln vs. Sumner; Vashon vs. Franklin, at St. Charles; Vashon girls vs. Sumner Normals, at Y. W. C. A.; Jan. 27, Lincoln vs. Franklin, at East St. Louis; Vashon vs. Sumner at Y. W. C. A.; Sumner girls vs. Lincoln girls, at Y. W. C. A.; Feb. 3, Sumner vs. Lincoln, Y. W. C. A.; Vashon vs. Franklin, Y. W.; Lincoln girls vs. Vashion girls, at Y. W. C. A.; Feb. 9, Vashion vs. Lincoln, at East St. Louis; Feb. 10, Sumner vs. Franklin, at St. Charles; Feb. 17, Sumner vs. Vashon, at Y. W. C. A.; Lincoln vs. Franklin, at East St. Louis; and championships to be decided Feb. 24.

Iowa Alumni Asks Dismissal Of Ingwersen

Resolution Also Requests Athletic Director Belling Be Dropped — Minority Protests Action.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 14.—University of Iowa alumni meeting here today adopted, after bitter debate, a resolution asking the dismissal of Dr. Paul E. Belting, director of athletics, and Burton A. Ingwersen, head football coach at the university.

The resolution was passed over objections of a minority group that claimed the meeting was not representative Iowa alumni of the State, but was dominated by objectors from Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Davenport and Sioux City, where condemnation of the present Hawkeye athletic regime has been loudest since the recent football season.

OSTEOPATH TO TAKE CARE OF CARDINALS' ARMS

Dr. Harrison Weaver Signs Contract—Hospital Apparatus to Be Set Up in Clubhouse.

Dr. Harrison Weaver, osteopath of Columbus, O., has been signed by the Cardinals to look after the physical welfare of its players, Sam Breadon, president, announced last night. Dr. Weaver is no stranger to the club as he was with it for about half of last season. Breadon was so well pleased with the experiment that he decided to have Dr. Weaver with the team permanently.

Of course, Dr. Robert F. Hyland who has been the club surgeon for many years will continue to act in that capacity and in any case where the service of a surgeon is necessary Dr. Hyland will have full charge and Dr. Weaver will be subordinate to him.

The signing of an osteopath by the Cardinals is an innovation in major league circles and Breadon believes it will prove profitable.

Formerly players suffering from strained muscles or torn ligaments went to see "Bonesetter" Reese at Youngstown, O., or to some other specialist.

Club Will Save Time.

These trips resulted in much loss of time to their teams and with Dr. Weaver on the ground to care for the athletes the necessity for such journeys will be obviated for members of the Cardinals at least.

It is the plan of the club to fit up a portion of the club house as a hospital and in it all the latest apparatus necessary for the practice of osteopathy will be installed. Players from Cardinal farms will be brought here for treatment when it is necessary.

Dr. Weaver is a graduate of the Kirksville College of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and has been practicing his profession for more than 10 years. He is registered in Missouri and is privileged to practice here.

In the fall the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs, the Latonia Championship and the Latonia Cup races will carry loving cups as added attractions.

start a pretty fair "foundation."

Boxing is not entirely made up of fame and purses. Where one fighter attains big money, 99 achieve cauliflower ears and a punch-drunk finish. The sun of prosperity gilds only the high points of the game. The dull drab of the journeyman fighter's life escapes the public view.

Sharkey will never need a "home" himself, unless he dissipates a fortune of $300,000 or more already in hand. Lady Luck and Tex Rickard chased the wolf from Jack's door. His consideration for less fortunate brethren stands out as a practical suggestion beside Tunney's somewhat visionary views on "uplifting the youth of America."

The Why of Boxing.

GENE TUNNEY, addressing a gathering at the recent "champions'" banquet, said, in substance: "There is something fine in this game (boxing) that has emerged from the slums to live down all opposition and win recognition at last."

Perhaps it was something fine about boxing that did it. Or perhaps it was something not so fine about human nature that brought about the vogue of the fight game.

We sometimes wonder what can be so fine about boxing, which leads $2,500,000 worth of cash customers to roar approval when one man knocks down another, or beats his face into a pulp.

The writer has seldom heard, in the last 20 years, spontaneous general applause for some unusually clever bit of boxing; but when a haymaker flattens a combatant, almost invariably the thousands rise and make the welkin ring.

The stimulus that war gave boxing, the instinct in us that makes us thrill at the struggle of any two animate things, the lure of the vast spectacle and the promotion genius of Rickard put the fight game where it is, not anything particularly new or "fine" about the boxing of today.

Men were as clever and as enduring, and were endowed with a better spirit in the ring 30 years ago than they are today. Nor is the game less rough than formerly. The promotion is more cleanly handled perhaps and the sport has been brought within the pale of the law—and that's about all the improvement in it.

Cheer Up, Ladies.

THE cause of woman is looking up. Able to compete with man on equal terms in practically no realm of physical endeavor, she had put off hopes of "equality" to a distant day.

However, now comes Fumiko Terada, a Japanese girl, to hearten our lady athletes.

From Japan we learn that Fumiko has just been officially timed for a 100 meters race in 10 4-5 seconds. This is just two-fifths of a second slower than the world's record for the distance. It is one-and-one-fifth seconds FASTER than the winner's time for this distance at the first Olympic Revival of 1896 at Athens, made by the American, T. E. Burke. It ties the best time for this distance ever made in an Olympic contest up to 1924, when Abrahams of England beat it one-fifth second.

This Would Be Funny.

IF the timing in Japan was accurate, the situation contains the elements of worry for the male Olympic athletes. This year, emulating the Grecian women of 2500 years ago, there will be an Olympic series of competitions for girls and women.

Conceivably, then, Miss Fumiko Terada might not only win her 100 meters race at Amsterdam, but might run it in time equal to that of the male athletes.

What then becomes of the theory that women are by nature man's physical inferiors?

Missouri Defeats Ames 52 to 28 in Cage Contest

Tigers Take Early Lead and Hold It Throughout Game to Gain Their Fifth Victory in Six Starts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 14.—The University of Missouri basketball team took its fifth victory in six starts here tonight by turning back the Iowa State College five of Ames, Ia., 52—28. For the Iowans it was the third defeat in four games played.

Missouri set a furious pace from the start, with a lead of 15 to 1 at the end of 13 minutes of play, an advantage of 19 to 10 at the half, and a constantly growing margin through the final period. Yunker's brilliant floor work and Flamank's charges in for rebound shots off the backboard vied for credit in sweeping the Tigers forward to victory, and left the outcome in doubt at no time.

It was a revamped lineup that started the game for Missouri, and the Tigers showed a complete reversal of the lackadaisical form with which they started against Grinnell last night. Then, playing the Pioneers, they trailed for three-quarters of the game, but tonight they snatched an early lead and kept it.

Tigers' Defense Strong.

The Tiger defense, led by Craig and Channon, was so nearly airtight that the Iowan's were forced to do their goal shooting at long range, or from difficult angles, and the few shots they obtained under the basket were so hurried that most of them went astray. Nearly three-quarters of the first period had passed before Iowa State had scored a single field goal.

Flamank and Yunker launched a scoring onslaught at the first, and the requent Missouri substitutes failed at any time to slow the Missouri pace, the Tigers maintaining an average lead of two points to one throughout the contest.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 14.—In the wildest basketball game witnessed in the Yost field house, the University of Michigan basketball team, Western Conference champions last year, defeated the Indiana team, 42 to 41, tonight. It was Michigan's first victory in Big Ten basketball competition this season. Michigan led at the half, 25 to 19.

At the start of the second half Indiana, with Beckner and Wells leading the attack, tied the score at 25 all, within 45 seconds. The score was tied again at 28 to 28 soon after the first Hoosier rally, and twice Indiana was in the lead. Gawne, substituting for Rose late in the final period, led a Michigan comeback which put the Wolverines three points in the lead. McCracken, Indiana center, dropped the ball through the loop a second before the end of the game. Bennie Oosterbaan was high scorer of the game, accounting for 14 points.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 14.—Wisconsin's troupe of sharp shooters gave a brilliant second half exhibition of basket ball shooting to ring up their third Western Conference triumph at the expense of Minnesota here tonight, 35 to 26.

CONCORDIA FIVE DOWNS INDIANA NORMAL, 39-34

Preachers Overcome 6-Point Deficit Early in Game, Hard Fought Throughout — Score Twice Tied.

Concordia Seminary, which plays one basket ball game a week in a schedule which began late, chalked up its third consecutive victory of the winter by trimming Indiana State Normal of Terre Haute in a hard battle at the First Regiment Armory last night, 39-34.

While Concordia was behind in points only once during the contest, in the opening quarter, the Hoosiers tied the count twice and threatened seriously in the last few minutes, so that the spectators were uncertain of the outcome until the final whistle.

Teany of Indiana opened the scoring with a long basket and followed shortly with another score. Concordia seemed baffled by the early speed and accuracy of the Normal team. All of the Normal points during the first four minutes of play were made on long shots.

Indiana Six Points to Good.

After eight minutes of play, the Indiana team led Concordia by six points. At this point of the game, Colcher, guard for Concordia, broke into the scoring with two field goals. Dau followed with two goals and kept Concordia in front. After this period, Concordia was never trailing.

The first half was marred by roughness and much fouling. Dau of Concordia and Scheid of the Normals kept the score about even until the period ended. At the half, Concordia led the Indiana team, 18-16.

Both teams played fast basketball during the early minutes of the second half. Shortly after the beginning of the half, the Normal team tied the score. The tie was broken by Schmidt of Concordia.

Count Tied Again.

The score after 10 minutes of play was again tied by Scheid of the Normals. With the score tied, Captain Reinke of Concordia raced down the court with the ball to pass to Dau, who shot an easy basket. Werling and Dau both connected and put the local team in the lead.

During the last three minutes of play the Normal team made a rally that nearly spelled defeat for the Preachers.

RICKEY IN

SOUTHWORTH AND MEN TO BE TRANSFERRED

Both Transactions Involving Cardinals' Class AA Farm Expected to Be Completed Tomorrow.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the Cardinals, is in New York, where it is expected he will close the deal for the sale of the Syracuse club of the International League and the purchase of the Rochester club of the same circuit for the St. Louis organization.

Dispatches from Syracuse today state that it is expected both transactions will be completed tomorrow at a meeting of the league.

The Donnelly brothers of Jersey City are named as the probable purchasers of the Syracuse franchise, and it is also stated that they may sell the property to Providence, R. I., before the season opens. It has been said that the Cardinals have put a price of $50,000 on the Syracuse franchise.

Players to Be Transferred.

If the Syracuse club is sold, the Cardinals plan to take all the players, including Manager Billy Southworth, to Rochester and to dispose of the Rochester players with the Syracuse franchise.

Rickey and Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, have stated they desire to make the change in their International League farm because Rochester is a larger city by 100,000 persons than Syracuse and that in the past Rochester has supported its ball club better than Syracuse. Also there is a better civic spirit in Rochester and it is likely that some concessions may be made to the new owners there which would never be made at Syracuse.

Breadon said he would rather make the necessary improvements in the Rochester ball park than to put the same amount of capital into the Syracuse property.

The Farm System.

The acquisition of the Rochester franchise is a part of the Cardinals' plan to establish five permanent minor league farms in cities where the clubs will be self supporting and at the same time serve as training camps in which to develop players for the Cardinals.

Since the question concerning the St. Louis ownership at Houston has been cleared up and there is little danger of that ownership being challenged further by members of the Texas League, the Cardinals are fixed with a good Class A farm and a good Class B franchise in Danville, Ill., of the Three Eye League.

If the Rochester club is acquired that will constitute a satisfactory Class A A holding. The Dayton club of the newly organized Central League gives the Cardinals a Class D farm and leaves them needing only a Class C franchise to round out their system.

Lloyd Hahn Wins Half-Mile Event Over Fast Field

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Lloyd Hahn, America's crack middle-distance runner, tonight outraced a fast field to win the invitation half mile run at the Fordham games in the 22d regiment armory, but failed by nearly two seconds to break the world's record for the distance.

Hahn was extended to win by Pincus Sober, of the Holy Name Club, who finished four yards behind the flying Boston runner. Edward Swinburne, of the New York A. C., was third. Hahn's time was 1:56:2-5, as compared with the 24-year-old mark set by Eli B. Parsons of Yale, of 1:54:2-5.

Next to last as the field of six swung around the first turn, Hahn quickly passed his rivals one by one and by the time the first lap had been completed he had pulled away to an eight-yard lead over Sober, who was second. Hahn clung to his advantage for another lap, but the Holy Name star began to cut it down in the final sprint. Hahn's lead, however, was too great to overcome.

Both Transactions Involving Cardinals' Class AA Farm Expected to Be Completed Tomorrow.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the Cardinals, is in New York, where it is expected he will close the deal for the sale of the Syracuse club of the International League and the purchase of the Rochester club of the same circuit for the St. Louis organization.

Dispatches from Syracuse today state that it is expected both transactions will be completed tomorrow at a meeting of the league.

The Donnelly brothers of Jersey City are named as the probable purchasers of the Syracuse franchise, and it is also stated that they may sell the property to Providence, R. I., before the season opens. It has been said that the Cardinals have put a price of $50,000 on the Syracuse franchise.

Players to Be Transferred.

If the Syracuse club is sold, the Cardinals plan to take all the players, including Manager Billy Southworth, to Rochester and to dispose of the Rochester players with the Syracuse franchise.

Rickey and Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, have stated they desire to make the change in their International League farm because Rochester is a larger city by 100,000 persons than Syracuse and that in the past Rochester has supported its ball club better than Syracuse. Also there is a better civic spirit in Rochester and it is likely that some concessions may be made to the new owners there which would never be made at Syracuse.

Breadon said he would rather make the necessary improvements in the Rochester ball park than to put the same amount of capital into the Syracuse property.

The Farm System.

The acquisition of the Rochester franchise is a part of the Cardinals' plan to establish five permanent minor league farms in cities where the clubs will be self supporting and at the same time serve as training camps in which to develop players for the Cardinals.

Since the question concerning the St. Louis ownership at Houston has been cleared up and there is little danger of that ownership being challenged further by members of the Texas League, the Cardinals are fixed with a good Class A farm and a good Class B franchise in Danville, Ill., of the Three Eye League.

If the Rochester club is acquired that will constitute a satisfactory Class A A holding. The Dayton club of the newly organized Central League gives the Cardinals a Class D farm and leaves them needing only a Class C franchise to round out their system.

Lloyd Hahn Wins Half-Mile Event Over Fast Field

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Lloyd Hahn, America's crack middle-distance runner, tonight outraced a fast field to win the invitation half mile run at the Fordham games in the 22d regiment armory, but failed by nearly two seconds to break the world's record for the distance.

Hahn was extended to win by Pincus Sober, of the Holy Name Club, who finished four yards behind the flying Boston runner. Edward Swinburne, of the New York A. C., was third. Hahn's time was 1:56:2-5, as compared with the 24-year-old mark set by B. Parsons of Yale, of 1:54:2-5.

Next to last as the field of six swung around the first turn, Hahn quickly passed his rivals one by one and by the time the first lap had been completed he had pulled away to an eight-yard lead over Sober, who was second. Hahn clung to his advantage for another lap, but the Holy Name flier began to cut it down in the final sprint. Hahn's lead, however, was too great to overcome.

ENTRIES FOR MARATHON ACROSS THE COUNTRY TO CLOSE FEB. 13

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14. — Leather lunged distance runners who are planning on "seeing America first" via the trans-continental $25,000 marathon race scheduled to start here March 4, were advised today that February 13 would be the closing date for entries. The marathon is to end in New York City, not later than three months after the start.

C. C. Pyle, promoter of the trans continental footpadding trail, said many steppers spurred by the $25,000 prize have already signed and that he is looking about for a plan to weed out the top-heavy list. A second prize of $10,000 will be awarded.

Black Gold After Christmas Race and as He Looked in 1924

BLACK GOLD —1928.

BLACK GOLD —1924.

PHOTOGRAPH above shows the 1924 Kentucky Derby winner, fat and lazy-appearing, at New Orleans, in striking contrast to his appearance of a speedy thoroughbred in the other photograph, taken in his year of triumph. The inset is Trainer Handley Webb, who still believes the son of Black Tony will "show the world."

Trainer Thinks Black Gold Will Win Both the Coffroth And New Orleans Handicaps

Turf Critics Say "No" but Man Who Put the Little Black Horse Across in the 1924 Kentucky Derby, Claims His Legs Will Hold Up and He Is 'Just as Good,' After 3 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14.—The New Orleans Handicap and the Coffroth will decide whether Handley Webb, trainer of Black Gold, or confident turf critics are right about Black Gold's chances of regaining his pre-eminence on the track after three years in stud.

Webb works meticulously over the form of the 1924 Kentucky Derby winner, and when the little black horse is flying over the track in a workout, the big Indian sits astride a pinto in the midfield and chews his finger nails anxiously. Webb says "he can do it" and will win both the coming big stakes.

Horsemen are almost unanimous in declaring that Black Gold hasn't a chance in the world to "come back." They say that he has weak legs and warn that if Webb persists in racing him he will be running in claiming races before long.

The facts from which a judgment may be adduced are about as follows: Black Gold has started three times since his return to racing and has been out of the money each time. His first start in three years was on Dec. 17 in a five and a half furlong dash, which was won by his full brother, Beggar Boy. Black Gold started well dropped back, but came steadily in the stretch to finish fourth. Considering that he was high in flesh, critics judged that he had done well.

On Dec. 24 Black Bold pulled up lame in a mile race and with the Christmas Handicap only two days off, appeared to be out of it. But Webb surprised by sending him back in. The field was kept at the post 2[illegible] minutes and at the start Black Gold's rider was caught in the webbing and almost thrown. He got off eleventh in a field of 13 and after a good race finished eighth, 15 lengths back of the winner, Sea Rocket, which equaled the track record. In this race Black Gold conceded weight to such horses as Justice F., War Eagle, Marconi, Fly Hawk, Sea Rocket and Adios. Once more he pulled up lame in front of the judges' stand.

Considering Black Gold's long absence from racing, the class of horses he has raced against and the weight he conceded to them, some believe that he may "come back." At least, considering how the horse world laughed at Webb's training methods and later saw the best 3-year-olds eat his dust in the Kentucky Derby, there are those who are withholding judgment. But the majority say that "he is through."

Webb says he will again retire his horse to stud after the New Orleans Handicap and the Coffroth.

Al Reach, One of First Paid Ball Players, Dies

He Was the Babe Ruth of the '60s at $25 a Week—Entered Sporting Goods Business, Was a Club Owner and Became a Millionaire.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—Alfred J. Reach, pioneer professional baseball player and millionaire sporting goods manufacturer, who was the Babe Ruth of his day as a batsman, died in Atlantic City today. He was 87 years old.

"Al" Reach was the first man in Philadelphia to play baseball for money. He was offered $25 a week as "expenses" back in 1865, when he was asked to join the famous old Athletics. In those days baseball was played by amateurs and the offering of what amounted to a salary to Reach "to play baseball" was not looked on with favor.

Reach played second base and was noted for his hard hitting. He played with the Athletics from 1865 to 1876, meeting the best teams in the country, including the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston team.

Became a Millionaire.

He saved his money and in subsequent years started the sporting goods manufacturing concern which bears his name. His partner in the business was Benjamin F. Shibe, who died exactly six years ago to a day, at the age of 84. Both men prospered from the start and became millionaires.

Reach was one of the founders of the Philadelphia National League Club in the late '70s and Shibe became the chief financial supporter and president of the Philadelphia American League club when the present Athletics became established here in 1901.

When Reach joined the Athletics in '65, it became a traveling team and played throughout the country with considerable success. The old question of amateurism was as pertinent then as it is today and after several years the sport became frankly professional.

On First "All-American."

Reach continued as second baseman of the Athletics when the first league, the National Association, was organized in 1871, and he helped win the first pennant for the Athletics. Reach still was a second baseman for the Athletics when the "association" was replaced by the present National League in 1876. He was a left-handed batsman and a good fielder.

In 1868, when the New York "Clipper" picked the first All-America ball team, he was placed at second base.

Mr. Reach, who was born in London, England, retired from active business several years ago, although maintaining his financial interest in the company.

He leaves his widow, who is 83; one son and three daughters.

BECKMAN AND DEBAETS WIN SIX-DAY RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Tony Beckman of Irvington, N. J., and Gerard Debaets of Belgium, tonight won Chicago's 19th International six-day bicycle race with a lead of two laps over the team of Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, and Freddie Spencer, N. J.

One of the casualties of the race was Reggie McNamara, the champion six-day rider of the world, who was competing in his fifty-fifth six-day race. He fell and broke his collar bone Friday.

Debaets began the race with his Belgian partner, Goosens, and Beckman started out as a partner of Fred Madden, but Madden and Goosens were injured and forced out. Lands also took a spill in the last few minutes, but gamely went back into the race after a short rest.

EIGHTY ENTRIES IN DIXIE HANDICAP

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 14.—Eighty entries for the Dixie, the mile and three-sixteenths' handicap to be run on the first day of the Pimlico spring meeting, were announced today by the Maryland Jockey Club. Among the nominations, representing 47 interests, are J. R. Macomber's Petee-Wrack, a colt that ran second to Glade in the Pimlico futurity last year; Strolling Player, a half brother to Call Boy, the last Derby winner, bought from the estate of the late Frank Curzon, and entered by Cary T. Grayson, together with Knapsack; Grey Lag, coupled with Speedster as the Rancocas stable entry, and Walter J. Salmon's Display, that ran second to Mars in the 1927 Dixie. Harry Payne Whitney made the largest number of entries, with a list of six.

ALEX THE GREAT HERE EN ROUTE TO FLORIDA CAMP

Park, to give him extra time to prepare for the 1928 campaign, and in the hope that the Florida sunshine will rout a cold from which Mrs. Alexander has been suffering.

Alexander signed his contract for 1928 before he left St. Louis for his home after the close of the 1927 season.

"The old arm needs a little limbering up," said Old Pete, who will celebrate his forty-first birthday during the training season at Avon Park, "but I am in fine condition. Did a lot of hunting around Nebraska and expect to be as good as ever, if I have a little luck.

Not Such a Celebrity.

"The past winter was not so hard on the nerves as was the previous off season. Right after the 1926 world series there were so many social obligations to fulfill that I was kept on the jump all the time. But this winter I have spent quietly.

"Pitched seven games during the fall after the season closed against Dazzy Vance and won only three of the seven. We would visit towns and take the local lineups. I would pitch for one team and Vance for the other. It was not such strenuous work as to constitute a strain on the arm.

"Yes, I expect to win at least 20 games this year if I don't break my neck.

"Mrs. Alexander and I will spend the time after our arrival in Florida touring the State and I'll probably do a little fishing and play a little golf until the rest of the squad arrives at Avon Park."

In Fine Condition.

Alec looks to be in fine physical condition. He has the appearance of one who has spent a great deal of time out of doors and although he will be 41 years old next month there is not a gray hair in his head. He has the appearance of one 10 years younger than he is.

He said friends of his in Nebraska told him they would not come to see him pitch until he is in another world series so he told them to give him their reservations for this fall. He thinks the Cardinals, with their cripples back in line, will have an excellent chance and remarked that it was only injuries which stopped them last year.

Jim Bottomley, the Cardinals' first sacker, who makes a specialty of getting hits when runners are on the bases, also visited the Cardinal offices yesterday. He said he was about five or 10 pounds overweight and eager for the order to depart for Avon Park.

Few Veterans Remain.

Perusal of an old roster of the Browns, prepared prior to the spring training trip of 1926, shows the great change in the personnel of the St. Louis American Leaguers.

Here's the list of 1926:

Martin McManus, Walter Gerber, Gene Robertson, Bob LaMotte, Oscar Melillo, Bill Jacobson, Kenny Williams, Harry Rice, Joe Evans, Cedric Durst, Herschel Bennett, Leo Dixon, William Hargrave, William Porter, Tony Rego, Milton Gaston, Joe Giard, Claude Jonnard, Stewart Bolen, Charley Robertson, Elam Vangilder, Frank Davis, Ernie Wingard, Walter Beck, Nolan Buckner, George Mogridge, Chester Falk, Ernie Nevers, Dennis White, Ellis Austin, Tom Zachary and Noble Ballou.

Of that squad of 32 men, only five remain on the Brownie roster today. They are Walter Gerber, Oscar Melillo, Walter Beck, Chester Falk and Ernie Nevers. Gerber will be retained as a reserve, Melillo is not considered a probable regular and the others are pitchers, comparatively young at the business.

MRS. BAEHR IS RANKED FIRST FOR FOURTH TIME

Committee of Women Names Her as Outstanding Tennis Player for 1927 in St. Louis District.

By Davison Obear.

The St. Louis District ranking of women tennis players on the basis of their showing during the 1927 season contains the names of 20 players in the singles and 10 teams in the women's doubles. Although there are several changes in the relative ranking positions practically the same players as those named in 1926 are in the 1927 list.

For the first time in the history of the St. Louis District Tennis Association the women's ranking was prepared by a committee of women. The committee consisted of Mrs. B. K. Brouster, chairman; Mrs. Ann Lindemann, O'Fallon Park; Mrs. Melicent Baehr, Forest Park; Delphine Rauch, Fairgrounds Park, and Lottie Hagemeyer, Forest Park. In addition to being approved by the district men's committee the ranking submitted by the women's committee was approved by the St. Louis District Executive Committee.

Mrs. Melicent Endicott Baehr heads the women's singles list for the fourth year in succession. She won both the District and Municipal outdoor tournaments during the season. According to the best available records Mrs. Baehr, during eight years of tournament competition, has made as good showing in local play as any other St. Louis woman player.

During the past eight years Mrs. Baehr has won the following local tournaments:

1920—Sunday School A. A. singles.
1921—Municipal singles.
1922—City championship.
1924—St. Louis District singles.
1925—St. Louis District singles.
1926—St. Louis District and Municipal singles.
1927—St. Louis District and Municipal singles.

Miss Hagemeyer Second.

Lottie Hagemeyer, Forest Park player, was named second in the singles ranking, the same place she occupied last season. Miss Hagemeyer was runner-up to Mrs. Baehr in both the District and Municipal events, Virginia Baer, O'Fallon Park player, was semi-finalist in the two tournaments and also won the O'Fallon Park singles title.

For the first time in several years a change has been made in the No. 1 place in the women's doubles. Mrs. Ann Lindemann and Virginia Baer were awarded the top place owing to their defeat of Mrs. Melicent Baehr and Lottie Hagemeyer in the District doubles event last September. Mrs. Baehr and Miss Hagemeyer were first in the doubles list for several years.

ROGERS HORNSBY WILL BOLSTER BOSTON CLUB

Slugger Batted in 39 More Runs Than Hogan and Welsh Together During 1927 Season.

One question likely to be answered next season in the National League pennant race probably will be:

"Of what value to a club, which has been a confirmed second-division outfit, is one star player?"

An answer to that question will come as the result of the trade, which sent Rogers Hornsby to the Boston Braves in exchange for Hogan and Welsh.

On cold figures only one team got the better of the deal. That club was NOT New York. Everything in the official averages points to the Braves getting much the better of the argument.

A Great Deal for Boston.

Hornsby in 1927 batted to an average of .361 and was one of the leaders in the league. Hogan and Welsh had marks of .288. But cold batting averages only need not enter the discussion. There is another, which brings to light a player's value to a greater extent. And that is runs batted in.

Here the deal gives the Boston team a great edge. Hornsby batted in 125 runs in 151 games last season and ranked as one of the leaders in the league in this respect. No such records can be shown by Hogan and Welsh. Though an outfielder and supposed to own a punch, Welsh sent but 54 tallies across the plate in 131 games. That's an average of one run driven in each three battles. Not a great help to a ball club. Hogan in 71 battles sent across 32.

This shows that Hornsby drove in 39 more tallies than the two men for whom he was traded.

Which is quite a difference. Thirty-nine runs may spell the difference between just that many victories and defeats throughout a seasons' play. Thus, the figures at least indicate, Boston added a real punch, while New York, in addition to losing that punch, got very little.

Evens Up Hitting Power.

The players, hitting in 1928 as they did last year, would bring the two clubs about even in team hitting, inasmuch as the Giants swatted .297 a year ago and the Braves .279.

Boston, next season, will be able to put on the field an infield with a batting mark of better than .300 to back up the pitching expected from Kent Greenfield, Joe Genewich, Edwards and other star hill men on the team's roster.

Present indications point to the following infield for the Hubtown entry: Burris, .318, first base; Hornsby, .361, second; High, .302, third, and Farrell, .316, shortstop.

Against this McGraw will have the following to show: Terry, .319, first; Jackson, .318, short, and Lindstrom, .306, third. And Lindstrom is no certainty, inasmuch as he was on the shelf a great deal in 1927 with a lame back. And then there is a hole at second base to fill. Unless McGraw makes another deal, he will have to rely on Ard Cohen, said to be a fine player, or a young man named Crawford, who according to reports will not play baseball on Sunday.

Will Strengthen Offensive.

In addition to adding a punch, Hornsby will bolster the Boston infield in fielding, as he had a better record than Thomas, Moore, Gautreau and Farrell, who covered the position in 1927.

However, right now the Braves seem to be up against it for catchers, inasmuch as Luke Urban, who played in but 34 games in 1927, is the only holdover. Gibson has been sent to the Cardinals and now Hogan, a young man who last year served his first in the big tent, to the New York club.

But in spite of this, cold figures give Boston a big edge on the biggest baseball trade of the winter.

Indians Drop Eichrodt.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—Fred Erichodt, outfielder for the Cleveland Indians in 1926 and 1927, today was released to New Orleans of the Southern Association, where he made a name for himself as the outstanding player of 1925 on the Dixie circuit.

JUSTICE F IS NAMED FAVORITE FOR TWO BIG RACING STAKES

NEW ORLEANS HANDICAP ODDS QUOTED AT 3-1

Turf Star Is Also Lowest in Future Books for Coffroth at 12 to 1—Black Gold Liked.

Justice F. winner yesterday of the A. B. Dade Memorial Handicap at Fairgrounds and victor last year in the Louisiana Derby, is named favorite in both the $50,000 New Orleans Handicap at Fairgrounds Feb. 3 and in the $85,000 added Coffroth Stake at Tijuana March 13, in the future book of a local "big store."

For the New Orleans event he is quoted at 3 to 1 and for the California race at 12 to 1.

Ten of the best horses quartered at the Fairgrounds, New Orleans, are held in high esteem by the odds layer. Marconi, recently purchased by Mose Goldblatt, War Eagle, Nor'Easter, Percentage, Sanford, Rothermel, McTinkle, Sea Rocket, Beauregard and Oh, Susanna are each held at 10 to 1.

Black Gold, owned by Mrs. R. M. Hoots, which is in training at the New Orleans track for his engagement in the Handicap, is quoted at 20 to 1 with 17 other horses. All of Mrs. H. P. Whitney's entrants in the race are held at that figure. They are: Navigator, Peter Peter, Adios, Tip Top and Saxon.

Cotlogomor at 20 to 1.

Thirty-six racers are held at 100 to 1000 to 1.

Following are some of the future book odds on the $50,000 guaranteed New Orleans Handicap, at one mile and one-sixteenth, to be run at Fairgrounds, New Orleans, Feb. 3:

3-1-½—Justice F.

30-10-5—Lawley, Penthorn, Madcap Princess, Breastplate, Red Banner, Amilcar, Florian, Celidon, Grey Lag, Algol, Moscow, Laddie, Handy Mandy, Ruane, Feu Follet and Color Sergeant.

Last week seven thoroughbreds were equal favorites at 15 to 1 for the Coffroth, but the receding of odds against Justice F. leaves only six horses quoted at that price. They are: Handy Mandy, Carlaris, Jock, Light Carbine, Rip Rap and Masked Marvel. The last is a French horse, owned by J. H. Macomber.

Five Held at 25 to 1.

Forever and Ever, Cotlogomor and Watkinson are the only entrants held at 20 to 1. Wooldridge, Sun God II, Masked Marvel's Stablemate, Redcliffe, Percentage and Pennant Queen are each quoted at 25 to 1.

Many horses are held at from 30 to 100 to 1. Five are quoted at 150 to 1, nine at 200, ten at 300, four at 400 and five at 500. The horses held at the latter figure are: Spic and Span, Johnny Callahan, In the Eye, Tecate and Friar's Hope.

15 to 1—Masked Marvel, Light Carbine, Jock, Handy Mandy, Carlaris and Rip Rap.

20 to 10—Forever and Ever, Cotlogomor and Watkinson.

Jack Ogden, Browns' New Hurler, Has Won 206 and Lost 98 Games

If Minor League Record Is True Indication of His Ability, the St. Louis Club Has Landed a Real Star.

JACK ODGEN.

If Jack Ogden, or rather John Mahlon Ogden, can carry his winning minor league ways to the majors, then the St. Louis Browns' obtained a real asset when they gave Baltimore Leon Dixon, Stewart Bolen and cash for the pitcher last week. Records show that this right hander, born at Ogden, Pa., Nov. 5, 1898, has had but one losing season over a span of 10 years in minor league baseball.

Ogden's losing campaign came in 1919, his second year in the professional ranks, he won but 10 while losing 13 games with the Rochester club. Since then, however, Ogden has been a real star and in six of the last eight campaigns he has been over the 20 mark in conquests.

The new Brownie pitcher, who will be getting his first real chance in the big tent, has been one of the most consistent winners in the minors. In his 10 seasons, he has gained 206 decisions, whereas he has suffered defeat but 98 times, for a winning percentage of .678. This is his record in regular league contests. In addition, pitching in six "little world series" he won 10 battles and dropped but four, a figure of .714.

A Hard Worker.

Ogden has been no shirker of work. This is clearly evinced by the fact that in his 10 campaigns of league play he has worked in 2503 innings, an average of 250 each season. Pitchers willing to toil that much are pretty hard to find in these days. In four campaigns he topped the 300 mark, while in but two, his first and second was he under 200 innings.

Pitching with a club that in the last two years has collapsed, Ogden has won 45 games and lost but 24, a .650 mark. In 1926, his efficiency record was 4.39 runs each nine innings, while last season it was 3.72.

The best efficiency mark turned in by the new Brownie came in 1921, which incidentally, was the greatest of his career. In that campaign, he won 31 games and lost but eight, while working in 318 innings, he permitted but 2.30 earned tallies a game. One of the peculiarities of his record is found in the fact that next to 1921, his best efficiency mark was made in his only losing season, 1919, when as a member of the Rochester staff he yielded but 2.37 earned markers a contest.

A Strikeout Artist.

Ogden's record shows that in each season he has struck out more batters than he has walked, indicating that he has pretty fair control. His high water mark in strikeouts came in 1921, when he was credited with 161. During this campaign he also set a mark for the International with 18 successive triumphs.

That Ogden has been pretty well able to finish what he started was shown last season, when he appeared in 38 games. In 28 he went the complete route, while in seven others he was called on to finish. This means that on but three occasions was he batted out when he started.

That the Browns can use a pitcher of this caliber goes without saying.

Ogden's complete record:

Whitney Leads Nominators.

HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY, prominent Eastern turfman, heads the list of nominators for the 1930 Belmont Futurity, with 102 mares named. The race closed with 1980 nominations. The Futurity, for mares bred in 1927 and due to foal in 1928, is the richest stake in the world. Last year it was won by Leona Stock Farm's Anita Peabody, which took down $91,000 as her winnings. Whitney is not the only owner with a large list of entrants. Audley Farm Stable is represented by 92, Rancocas Stable by 89 and A. B. Hancock by 71.

The mares Whitney has named are bred to Broomstick, Whisk Broom II, Peter Pan, Chicle, Mad Hatter, St. Germans, St. James and Sun Brair II. The Audley Farm mares are mated with the great French horse, Epinard, Sir Barton, Bright Knight, Spanish Prince and Hourless. Many mares mated with Man O' War, Black Toney, Stefan the Great, Bubbling Over, North Star III and other great stallions are also named for the rich classic.

The list of nominators for the Futurity include some of the most prominent owners in the country. Mrs. Hertz, owner of the Leona Stock Farm, has named 11, former Senator J. N. Camden is represented by 16, George Widener by 18, J. E. Widener by 31 and W. R. Coe by 43.

Billy Barton on Top.

HOWARD BRUCE'S good steeplechaser, Billy Barton, which arrived in England a few weeks ago to fill his engagement in the Grand National Steeplechase, in March, is held in high regard by the English handicappers. The horse is assigned 164 pounds in the Burton Steeplechase Handicap, to be run tomorrow at Derby, England. He is asked to carry the second highest impost.

Jockey Earl Sande, who was suspended indefinitely by the Maryland State Racing Commission for his rough ride on Bateau in the Pimlico Futurity last year, will sail from Cherbourg next Wednesday for this country. Sande has been visiting the various racet racks in France during the past few weeks. Sande may return to Europe next fall to ride.

Owen and won from Arabrab by three-quarters of a length. T. LOUIS SOCCER TEAMS IN FIRST ROUND CUP CONTESTS TODAY

ORGANS PLAY ILLINOIS TEAM AT LOCAL PARK

By Herman Wecke.

St. Louis' soccer teams, not so ny years ago national champs, but who in the past two mpaigns have slipped in the U. F. Chief local interest will center the battle in which the Mors oppose the Buda F. C. of Hary, Ill. This game, to be waged Sportsman's Park, will start at o'clock with the regulation halves of 45 minutes prevail-

M'Coy Gave Ryan Terrific Licking, Gaining Knockout in 15th Round

Tommy Wanted to Find Out How Good He Could Fight When Fat and He Did, Lavigne Writes.

By George (Kid) Lavigne

(As Told to E. P. Rucker)

No. 10—Memoirs of a Savage Ring

(Copyright, 1928.)

TOMMY RYAN and I never engaged in a real fight, partly because we were warm personal friends, and partly because I realized that Ryan, when he was in condition, was too big for me. But Ryan and I often put on the gloves and went at it with plenty of vigor.

I met Tommy in a four-round exhibition in Grand Central Palace, New York, in 1895. It was a benefit performance for me. I boxed Harry Woods of San Francisco, three rounds, just before going on with Ryan. The welter champion tried to make a showing against me but for all his cleverness I kept him busy.

Sam Fitzpatrick was referee. I told him I was going right in after Ryan, and when I was making it too hot for Tommy to call time, I think I gave Ryan a surprise by my boxing and speed.

In our dressing room after the bout, Ryan said: "Kid, you are getting to be a much better boxer than you used to be."

A short time later a benefit was given for Tommy in his home town, Syracuse, N. Y., and at his request I went there and boxed him again. Ryan was then matched to fight "Kid" McCoy at New York two weeks later.

The Crafty McCoy.

Ryan could fight at 142 pounds in those days, but McCoy had craftily insisted on the weight being 156. He knew Ryan was fat and out of condition and he didn't want Tommy working to take off weight. Tommy then weighed 154. He was in no shape at all. He had a saloon in Syracuse.

GEORGE (KID) LAVIGNE.
From an Old Portrait.

"Don't you think you'd better postpone your fight with McCoy until you get into condition?" I asked Ryan.

"Why in hell should I be in condition to fight McCoy?" he replied.

I said: "Well, I think you'd better be in shape. You've got legs like an old woman. McCoy is fast and he will cut you to pieces the way you are."

But this only made Ryan sore.

"Kid" McCoy had been sparring partner for Ryan when Tommy trained at Detroit for his fight with Jack Dempsey at New Orleans. They worked out together day after day in the gymnasium of the Detroit Athletic Club. Ryan was mean, and made life miserable for his sparring mate. Many times I heard McCoy squawk, "Don't be so rough," when Ryan was slamming them into him.

Old Friends! What of It?

Naturally, Tommy was cocky. He would say to me, "I wonder if that long geezer really thinks he has a chance with me. Why, I'll just stick this in his mouth (shooting out a straight left) and I'll whip this over on his ear (hooking a right) and I'll make him yell for the police."

One day Ryan showed me a letter from McCoy in which the wily kid reminded him that they had always been friends, admitted that he didn't have a chance to win, and wondered if Ryan would consent to cut the purse in half.

Tommy tore up the letter and never answered it.

Again I expressed fear things didn't look right. I heard through Sam Fitzpatrick that McCoy had been working hard every day at the Manhattan Athletic Club, New York, with big fellows like Steve O'Connell, a heavyweight.

"I'm going to see how good I can fight when I'm fat," said Ryan, confidently.

Well, the tale has often been told how McCoy plastered Ryan and finally knocked him out in the fifteenth round. I was one of Tommy's seconds. I never saw a man get such a licking as McCoy gave him. And I never knew a fighter to be affected as Ryan was after the scrap. He was unable to walk without help. Going down the road long after the crowd had gone home, Charley White on one side and I on the other, Tommy Ryan was like a man in a trance.

We came to a saloon and White asked me to hold Ryan while he went in to get a beer. I was pretty thirsty myself, and after White had been gone a while, I asked Tommy, "Can you stand alone now?"

"Ye-ah," he mumbled, like a man drunk.

"All right," I said. "Just wait here until I come back."

I started away, leaving Ryan leaning against a fence. I turned back to see how things were going, and he had fallen to the ground. I picked him up and held him until White returned. Then I let Charley do the holding while I went in and got mine.

MOTORBUS A. C. TO STAGE BOXING SHOW JAN. 25

Matchmaker George Wilsman has a number of class A boxers on his string, who are now diligently training with a view toward punching their way to the championship during the coming season.

Chief among these is Dave Knost, National A. A. U. junior heavyweight champion, for whom it is hard to obtain an opponent. A challenge has been issued to all amateur heavyweights in the district but, thus far, there have been no takers. Knost fought but two fights during the past summer and won them both by such overwhelming odds that they looked to be setups for the burly carpenter.

An effort will be made to obtain Frank Powers' consent to mix with Al Stillman, junior middleweight champion. The third fight of Stillman's career was lost to Powers, but, since that time, he has smashed his way through to an enviable spot in the Western A. A. U. limelight and bids fair to hold it.

Entries in the novice class and class B will be received by Wilsman at the club's headquarters, 3547 Pine street, which extends an invitation to all amateur boxers to use its gymnasium free of charge.

Lutheran Basket Games.

Three games are scheduled in the Concordia Lutheran Basketball League this afternoon at Zion Hall, Twenty-first and Benton street. In the first at 1:30 p. m. Hope will meet Bethany, Zion will oppose St. Paul in the second contest, and in the final tilt, Bethany is matched with Immanuel. Marcus drew a bye.

When Billy Sunday Ran a Race on Sunday Afternoon

Evangelist, Then a Ball Player, Had Been Converted, but He Competed to Save Teammates' Money and Beat Arlie Latham by 15 Feet.

By J. Roy Stockton.

"COME in," said "Ma" Sunday, "Dad will be glad to see you. He still loves baseball and other sports. You know about his baseball? Yes? But did you ever hear about his great match race?"

Billy Sunday

That was one of the reasons for the visit to Billy Sunday's suite at the Gatesworth Hotel, but it seemed a rather ticklish thing to ask about—a match race that was run on a Sunday afternoon, at a professional baseball park, with money wagered. A match race on a Sunday is all right in its place, but when one of the principals was Billy Sunday, now the great evangelist, well, the Post-Dispatch reporter wasn't sure just how Billy and Ma Sunday would take it.

"That was in 1886," Ma Sunday continued obligingly. "Arlie Latham was the fastest thing on two legs in the league that played in Southern cities and Dad was the fastest runner in the other league. He was with the Chicago team, Anson's Colts, you know, and this match race had been arranged for a Sunday afternoon and advertised extensively before Dad had been converted.

"Conversion Not Retroactive."

"Well, when the day drew near Dad went to Pop Anson and told him that he couldn't run the race.

"Why can't you?" Anson asked. 'Because I've been converted,' Dad replied, 'and I can't run a foot race on a Sunday.

" 'The —— you can't,' Anson objected. (Ma spelled out the word, the end of the other trail, the alternative to the sawdust one.) 'All the boys have their money up on this race and if you don't run they'll all be so broke they'll have to prime their pockets to buy a postage stamp. You'll have to go through with the race and fix it up with the Lord afterwards. But first you have to protect the boys' money. I don't believe the Lord would expect you to make your conversion retroative.' "

Just then Mr. Sunday entered the suite.

"I'm telling about that famous foot race of yours, Dad," Mrs. Sunday explained.

Beat Latham by 15 Feet.

"I'll never forget that race. It was at the old Union Park on Jefferson avenue. Latham, you know, was in the American Association and I was in the National League. The race had been advertised and I couldn't back out. We ran the race, 100 yards, in track suits and I beat Latham by 15 feet. There were six watches held on the sprint and three showed nine and three-fifths seconds and three nine and four-fifths.

"After the race I went to see the church people and told them what I had done. Of course, they knew all about it, because the story was carried in all the Chicago papers, as well as the St. Louis dailies. I explained how the race had been arranged before hand and how much it would have meant to the boys if I had refused to run. They said they'd forgive me that once, if I never did it again. I havn't run on Sunday since then.

"That race, as I told you, was in track clothes. I also engaged in races around the bases and I was the first man to circle the sacks in 14 seconds."

Athletic Heads At Rolla Resign

Director Dennie and Coach McCollum to Quit at Close of School Year.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROLLA, Mo., Jan. 14.—Fred E. Dennie, director of athletics at the School of Mines, and S. C. McCollum, coach, have both submitted their resignations to take effect at the close of the present school year. Prof. Dennie is resigning from the athletic post only. He will retain his place on the faculty, it is reported, transferring to some other department.

Dennie was first appointed athletic director of the school in 1909, remaining until 1912, when he resigned to accept a position as coach at St. Louis University. He returned to the School of Mines in the spring of 1915, and has served as athletic director since that time, except for the war period, when he saw service as a captain with the Engineers' Corps in France.

Coach McCollum came to the School of Mines in September, 1922, after his graduation from Pennsylvania State College, where he was an All-American end on the Penn State team in 1921.

Prep Youngsters Are Being Trained Properly; Veteran Referees Handle Games.

The Preparatory League soccer season is well under way now and, under capable direction, is expected to develop many star players who will help to regain the city's lost prestige as a soccer center.

SLAINS CASTLE TOO SPOOKY FOR MODERN USE, TORN DOWN

Home of High Constables in Scotland Was Built on Rocky Seacoast.

By the Associated Press.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Jan. 14.—Slains Castle, lashed at its base for centuries by roaring waves which in their time have kept such notables as Samuel Johnson awake all night, is being demolished.

It became too old and spooky for any earthly use. The last item of furniture, oak beams and the like were sold at auction some time ago.

For centuries Slains Castle, built sheer on the cliffs jutting above Cruden Bay, was the seats of the Earls of Erroll, Lord High Constables of Scotland. In 1916 the estate was sold to Sir John Ellerman, shipowner, who disposed of it in 1923 because of what he considered exorbitant taxation, and it has been empty ever since.

The last tenants were Lord and Lady Oxford, several summers ago, and it was there that Lady Violet Asquith, had an exciting adventure when she became lost among the crags during a heavy mist.

Paris Razing Deadly Tenements.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—"Houses that kill" are slowly being demolished in Paris but there remain yet many buildings where there are hundreds of bedrooms without ventilation or sunlight. Grouped along the ancient "Street of the Ovens" are tenements that soon are to be torn down. There were 5000 such buildings 30 years ago when the city began collecting reports on each separate house. These were considerably reduced before the war but the housing shortage has delayed further action.

Junior League To Receive New Members Tuesday

Will Be Guests of Honor at Tea to Be Given by Board at Home of Mrs. Edward Schofield Travers, the President.

ONE OF the largest parties of the week will be the annual tea to be given by the board of the Junior League Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Edward Schofield Travers, president, 3684 Lindell boulevard, in honor of the 22 young women who have been invited to become members this season and transfer members from other cities for the past year.

Receiving with Mrs. Travers will be Mrs. Arthur S. Kendall, chairman of the provisional membership committee, and Mrs. Kenneth Drummond. Mrs. Kenneth Bitting and Mrs. Francis Linton Gross will serve tea, and members of the board, including the officers, Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, formerly Miss Eleanor Simmons; Miss Martha Love, Miss Jane and Miss Ruth McElroy, and Miss Alice Francis; the members at large, Miss Eugenie Edmunds, Mrs. Royal D. Kercheval, Mrs. Dan W. Jones, Mrs. Floyd B. Augustine; the regional vice president, Mrs. Archie Lee, and committee chairmen, will assist without hats.

The committees, of which there is an imposing array, arrange for and carry on the many branches of philanthropic work for which the league is organized. For the Arts and Interest Committee, Mrs. Dudley French is chairman; for the Blind, Mrs. Lindell Gordon Jr.; Club Housekeeper is Miss Jane Parsons, and in her absence on a world tour, Mrs. Samuel Fitzhugh Gordon; Good Will Nursery, Miss Katherine Sipple; Hospital, Mrs. Kenneth Bitting; Hostess, Incorporated, Mrs. Leo De Smet Carton; Home Service, Mrs. Watts Smyth; Magazine Editor for St. Louis, Mrs. Mason Scudder; Editor of Topics, the local chapter publication, Mrs. Garneau Weld, with Miss Ruth McElroy assisting; Open Door, the Junior League Shop, Mrs. John H. Holliday; Publicity, Miss Marceline Reyburn and Mrs. Anthony B. Day; Puppets, Mrs. Archie Lee; Settlements, Miss Julia Fay Carton; Work Shop Committee, Mrs. Douglas Smiley; Transportation, Mrs. Alfred W. Brown and Telephone Committee, Mrs. Marion L. J. Lambert.

The "hostess, incorporated" is a new department of the local chapter, formed for assistance to prospective hostesses. Mrs. Carton's committee contracts for sending flowers to steamers leaving any port, with the assistance of florists; addressing invitations, sending "thank you" notes, and furnishing lists of guests for childrens' parties.

Some of the most interesting work done by the league is the care of the blind. They are read to in their homes, taken for walks and their handiwork sold in the Open Door. Two league members are transcribing books into Braille to aid them in their efforts at independence. Another activity is the occupational therapy work shop in Barnes Hospital, where the handicapped are taught to make useful articles, for which they are paid, and the articles sold, also through the medium of the Open Door. One of the doll houses made by the handicaped men has been sent recently to a competitive exhibition in New York.

In the interest of the various departments of the work a "point system" has been inaugurated in the St. Louis chapter, by which each member must have at least 32 points to her credit for each year in order to remain active in the League. A point is a duty assigned by a committee chairman. In addition she must have at least three emergency points which she acquires by responding to unexpected calls for service. A failure to respond or send a substitute results in a fine. The new members will be required to have half the stated quota this year.

The Arts and Interest Committee has to do with the cultural side of the league. It arranges for the series of French lectures held in the club rooms each week; the glee club organization, and musical mornings for league members. This committee also has arranged for a class in English literature, to

New Features for College Club Benefit

AN INNOVATION in entre acte entertainment at the College Club Scholarship Benefit performance Jan. 30 at the American Theater, has been announced by the committee in charge, of which Mrs. Archer O'Reilly is chairman.

The custom of responses from the different colleges, in the form of alma mater songs and cheers announced on the program, has been abandoned in favor of an interlocutor, who will introduce various speakers and singers. The interlocutor will be chosen from a number of volunteers. There also will be an opportunity for the audience to join in "Sweet Adeline" and "Working On a Railroad." The new features will follow curtain speeches by Otis Skinner, Henrietta Crosman and Mrs. Fiske, who will star in the revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Assisting Mrs. O'Reilly in arrangements are: Mrs. R. H. B. Thompson, Mrs. Frederick B. Eiseman, Miss Mildred McCluney, Miss Helen Bechtell, Mrs. M. D. Curran, Mrs. John O. Price, Mrs. Philip Drabelle, Mrs. H. McClure Young, Miss Charlotte Gerhard and Mrs. W. E. Wittrig.

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Anyone can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

"My skin was a sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face, I was so ashamed of my skin. It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring myself to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise therefore when one application of Rowles Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. I could have danced with joy! In a short time you wouldn't know my skin—it was so clear, so soft and white."

Thousands of people are discovering that there is a remedy for skin trouble—even fiery, itching eczema! It's the magical combination of sulphur and menthol—sulphur for clearing the skin, menthol for healing the broken and irritated tissue. Rowles Mentho Sulphur is inexpensive, and all druggists supply it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

"THE STORE FOR ALL THE PEOPLE"

YOUR ST. LOUIS

How Well Do You Know It?

THE LUDLOW-SAYLOR WIRE CO.

Its products vary from great screens woven of inch-thick steel bars, to delicate fabrics of semi-precious metals, as fine as 100,000 meshes to the square inch.

The downtown store is one of the oldest business establishments in St. Louis, dating back to 1856. Its first location was on Market Street between Second and Third.

The factory and store were moved to Fourth and Elm Streets in 1883. Various additions were needed until in 1900 the Newstead Avenue factory site was purchased. This plant has grown to comprise eight large buildings.

Industrial enterprises in every State in the Union, and foreign manufacturers throughout the world, depend upon St. Louis for Wire Cloth and Woven Wire Screens.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the dynamic growth of St. Louis.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men
As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.
In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.
The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.
Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.
While women, children and elderly people are especially bene Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it promptly effective on the bust constitution and in the obstinate cases. It is mild and tle in its action and does not griping and strain. Con neither opiates nor narcotic safe for the tiniest baby. like it and take it willingly.
Every drug store sells Dr. well's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a in your home—where someone is sure to need it
We would be glad to prove at our expense how Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can to you and yours. Just write Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, will send you prepaid a FREE PLE BOTTLE.

MOT
A Cross, Feverish
Constip
Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Fig Syrup," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.
When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless, "fruity laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When the little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Sure Way to STOP CRYING PROMPTLY—at Command

This new way teaches a child to stop crying PROMPTLY, at command—no matter how deeply rooted the habit may be and regardless of the age of the child. Old ways, such as coddling, coaxing, bribing, or punishing only aggravate the habit. This new way is a natural, normal, humane method. Just follow easy, simple instructions, and in 1 to 3 days you will be astounded to see your child cease crying immediately at the word "Stop." Habitual crying is harmful to children and tends to make parents nervous and irritable. It is not only annoying, but often very embarrassing. So if you have tried other ways without success, write for information about this new method that is GUARANTEED to bring the desired results in 1 to 3 days. Send no money. Simply mail letter or post card to THE PARENTS ASSOCIATION, Dept. 521, Pleasant Hill, Ohio.

A cold may be stopped if treated at the very hour it is manifested —by sneezing, or a feverish sensation in nostrils and throat.

Obtain a tube of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. Directions with it tell just how to use to quickly stop incipient colds.

When the neglected cold develops coughing and this in turn disturbs your rest, no time should be lost in ridding the system of the distress. Obtain essence Mentho-Laxene and use as a laxative tonic cough medicine. I sincerely believe it the best home treatment ever produced.

C. L. M. asks: "What can you recommend that is safe as a quick relief from pain—severe headache and neuralgia."

Ans.: Relief may be had quickly by the use of 5-grain Su-thol tablets with no bad after-effects, such as some pain remedies promote.

B. A. E. asks: "I am not sick, but am too thin and want to know how I may improve appetite and gain weight—about twenty pounds."

Ans.: A good flesh-producing compound is Hypo-Nuclane tablets. Take with your meals. Drink milk daily and do deep breathing exercises morning and night.

O. M. writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Ans. I advise 3-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts, that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results.

S. A. H. asks: "Advise a medicine to aid in correcting a most distressing kidney and bladder trouble which disturbs my night's rest and causes headache and backache a few hours after being on my feet."

Ans.: A tonic-diuretic medicine, Balmworth tablets, should give you aid and relief as it has to so many of my correspondents.

R. S. K. asks: "Have taken Balmworth tablets for bladder trouble with very fine results. Now please advise a medicine for painful rheumatism. It affects my legs and feet."

Ans.: I suggest Cardiol tablets be used to aid elimination and counteract the acids and poisons which are doubtless the cause of much lumbago, rheumatism and gouty trouble. For quick relief of your pain take 5-grain Suthol tablets.

Health Questions Answered

By Dr. Lewis Baker and Associates

An Advertisement Informing the Public in a Common-Sense Manner How to Distinguish the Simpler Ailments and Symptoms, and the Right Remedies for Treatment. Each Medicine Possesses the Highest Qualities for the Purpose Intended.

Dr. Lewis Baker

A cold may be stopped if treated at the very hour it is manifested—by sneezing, or a feverish sensation in nostrils and throat.

Obtain a tube of triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. Directions with it tell just how to use to quickly stop incipient colds.

When the neglected cold develops coughing and this in turn disturbs your rest, no time should be lost in ridding the system of the distress. Obtain essence Mentho-Laxene and use as a laxative tonic cough medicine. I sincerely believe it the best home treatment ever produced.

C. L. M. asks: "What can you recommend that is safe as a quick relief from pain—severe headache and neuralgia."

Ans.: Relief may be had quickly by the use of 5-grain Su-thol tablets with no bad after-effects, such as some pain remedies promote.

B. A. E. asks: "I am not sick, but am too thin and want to know how I may improve appetite and gain weight—about twenty pounds."

Ans.: A good flesh-producing compound is Hypo-Nuclane tablets. Take with your meals. Drink milk daily and do deep breathing exercises morning and night.

O. M. writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Ans. I advise 3-grain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts, that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results

S. A. H. asks: "Advise a medicine to aid in correcting a most distressing kidney and bladder trouble which disturbs my night's rest and causes headache and backache a few hours after being on my feet."

Ans.: A tonic-diuretic medicine, Balmworth tablets, should give you aid and relief as it has to so many of my correspondents.

R. S. K. asks: "Have taken Balmworth tablets for bladder trouble with very fine results. Now please advise a medicine for painful rheumatism. It afects my legs and feet."

Ans.: I suggest Cardiol tablets be used to aid elimination and counteract the acids and poisons which are doubtless the cause of much lumbago, rheumatism and gouty trouble. For quick relief of your pain take 5-grain Su-thol tablets.

A. R. writes: "We are a family of six, the youngest child is being 10 years of age. All of us are greatly troubled with constipation Most everything used loses its effectiveness, and requires increasing dose."

Ans.: You will find by trial that Casca-Royal Pills is exactly the kind of medicine your family can use.

Answer to Miss B. C.: Perspiration odors, armpit odors, foot odors, are readily banished and prevented by the regular use of medicated Chex soap for toilet and bath. It has elusive fragrance, but no medical odor, is beautifying to the skin because of its high quality and unusual medication.

T. L. S. writes: "Indigestion, followed by pressure of gas, belching and bilious attacks is the bane of my life. Can you help me?"

Ans.: If bowels are sluggish, take Casca-Royal Pills. Also to correctly aid the functions of the stomach, take Triopeptine tablets for several weeks.

A. I. G. writes: "I have a chronic catarrh of the nose and throat which often gives me severe headache just above and between the eyes. Ordinary catarrh treatments don't help me."

Ans.: Use Vilane powder as per directions with package, with warm water to cleanse the nostrils; on forehead and in nostrils apply triple strength Mentho-Laxene Salve. This good salve is useful in scores of complaints and pleases all who try it.

W. O. O. writes: "I am 35, occupation accountant Have been unable to work because of an anemic condition, loss of weight and strength. Am pale, and hands and feet are always cold. Appetite poor and do not sleep well, as I am very nervous."

Ans.: Your condition is often described as a 'weak, run-down state of the system.' I advise Cadomene tablets be taken over a period of several months, as a tonic for blood and nerves.

Note: Upon receipt of 10 cents, with name and address, Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director of The Blackburn Products Co., 312 College Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, will promptly send you his great guide book, "Health and Beauty" (regular price $1). LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

CLEVELAND, OHIO. Mrs. May Dunlap, 5011 Tillman Ave., writes: "I am writing to tell you how grateful I am for advising me to take Triopeptine tablets. They have done me a world of good. I don't have those chest pains and my breath don't get short like it did before from indigestion. I thank you and remain, etc."

PHILADELPHIA, PA. James J. Fox, 2645 N. Mutter St., writes: "About your wonderful medicine for constipation, Casca-Royal Pills, I find that it is the best I ever used There is not any griping pain or weakness as I have found with other medicine such as the compound cathartic pills, etc."

LOMA, COLORADO. Mrs. Edith Lutz writes: "I am the mother of eleven children, and am strong and healthy now. I used two boxes of Cadomene tablets and will never forget the good they have done. I was sick and tired out all the time, was extremely nervous and could not sleep at night and had no appetite. You can publish this, for Cadomene has put me on my feet and I feel fine and well."

WORCESTER, MASS. Mrs. William V. Campbell, 19 Catalpa St., writes: "I am writing to tell you what wonderful cough syrup Mentho-Laxene has been to me. Last September I got a hard cold and had a very bad cough. I tried several things, but could not get rid of it. I had read of the wonderful things Mentho-Laxene had done for others, so I tried it and in two days my cough was all gone. I have found pleasure in recommending it to my friends, etc."

SYRACUSE, N. Y. Mrs. Anna E. Towsley, 415 So. State St., writes "I have used nine tubes of Balmwort tablets for kidney and bladder trouble. I am feeling well for the first time in more than forty years, having suffered since the age of thirteen with kidney trouble and kindred ailments."

LOWELL, MASS. Joseph Frederick Sullivan, 6 N. Franklin St writes: "What I know about Cadomene tablets, after trying them, is certainly worth passing on to everybody. Nervous indigestion, loss of appetite and 'upset' nerves have been the bane of my existence for over a year. In spite of my efforts to find relief I continued to lose weight, grow weaker and more restless. The second package of Cadomene brought me a wonderful change. I am now taking the sixth package and I can eat and digest everything and sleep like a top. I get up in the mornings feeling great. I also have friends using Cadomene and results are great Yours sincerely, etc."

NEW ORLEANS, LA. F. Cunningham, 4035 Palmyra St. writes: "The Sulpherb tablets were recommended to me by a U S. Army doctor about fourteen years ago. Before that I had a tired feeling caused by chills and fever, and every summer had a number of boils and habitual constipation. Since taking Sulpherb I do not have any of those troubles. I take them regularly and have not lost a day's work on account of sickness in the past 14 years. Four of my friends also use them, etc."

* * *

WORCESTER, MASS. Miss Susan M. Clark writes: "Before I knew 'Chex' I was using R—— soap. I find that 'Chex' is all you claim. I recommend it especially to High School and College girls to remove and prevent the underarm odors. They should shun irritating chemicals and heavy stifling perfumes and rejoice in the delicate fragrant charm that 'Chex' creates, etc."

Corns Now Needless

Prove It Overnight!

Why keep "treating" corns, when the first drop of Freezone stops all sensation of pain, and a few drops soon end the corn!

The most painful corn, even one sensitive to touch of stocking, can't throb ten seconds after Freezone comes in contact. All that's left to do, is lift the corn right off and it's gone. Isn't that better than surgery?

Feet that are "sights" from corns can grow back to normal, unblemished condition through the use of Freezone. Meantime, no pain—none at all—and no awkward pads or plasters to cause shoes to pinch and cultivate corns in other places.

The Freezone process is scientific and certain. The hardest corn that ever formed can't resist it—nor the soft corns between the toes where nothing has ever helped. A tiny bottle of Freezone copes with the worst condition of corns. Freezone has made it folly to have any corns at all, for any length of time.

For your own comfort, investigate Freezone. Every druggist has it, and the cost is a few cents!

ST. LOUIS GETS 65 NEW INDUSTRIES, 90 OTHERS EXPAND

Industrial Bureau in First Annual Report on Manufacturing Growth of City.

TWO AIRPLANE PLANTS INCLUDED

5750 Persons Estimated to Have Been Furnished Employment by New or Enlarged Factories.

Establishment of 65 new industries, and expansion of the plants of 90 previously existing industries, in St. Louis in the year 1927, is shown in the first report of the industrial bureau of the Industrial Club of St. Louis. Reports are to be issued each month hereafter.

The new industries, which are in diversified lines, and the additions to existing industries, are estimated to have furnished employment for 5750 persons.

Among the new industries listed are seven bakeries, 10 millinery factories, 14 dress and garment factories, two plants manufacturing foodstuffs, two candy factories, two flour mills, four slaughtering houses, three beverage factories and three dairy plants.

No Estimate of Cost.

"The building material industry embraces 10 companies," the report says. "Among the other classifications are: Furniture and fixtures, nine; chemicals, seven; paper goods, five; glass, four; metals, three; drugs and toilet articles, three; machinery and tools, seven; paint and varnish, two; automobiles and accessories, seven; airplanes, two; foundries, three; iron and steel, three; novelties, four; and shoes, two.

"New construction incident to the new plants and expansions involves more than 1,300,000 square feet of floor space. Approximately 715,000 square feet of floor space is involved in leases and purchases made to accommodate expansions. No estimate has been made of the money involved in new plants and equipment."

Bank Clearings Decrease.

In 1927, the report sets forth, bank clearings decreased 3.2 per cent and debits to invidiual bank accounts decreased 1.19 per cent. Building permits increased 5.6 per cent, while real estate transfers decreased 12.4 per cent in St. Louis and increased 20.3 per cent in St. Louis County. Business failures increased 196.3 per cent. Barge line tonnage increased 17.2 per cent, and postoffice receipts increased 1.65 per cent. Stock sales on the local exchange increased 25.2 per cent and bond sales increased 57.4 per cent.

Building contracts awarded in St. Louis for the first 11 months of 1927 show an increase of 18.83 per cent over the corresponding period of 1926, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. Contracts for the 1 months of 1927 totaled $72,320,200; for 1926, $60,906,40, or an increase of $11,413,800. Water consumption decreased 4.53 per cent. Telephone calls decreased .93 of one per cent and installations increased 6.01 per cent. Street car and bus passengers decreased 3.9 per cent and 1.03 per cent, respectively.

Plants in Mergers.

Activity during 1927 in the laundry and cleaning and dyeing business is noted in the report. Two new firms and expansion of nine existing ones are listed.

Stating that 1927 will be characterized as a year of industrial consolidations, the report lists 12 St. Louis industries which were involved in mergers of national importance.

The report is put forth as a matter of information to members of the Industrial Club, and does not seek to give the club credit for the accessions recorded to the city's industries.

SUGGEST USE OF UNION MARKET BUILDING FOR DAIRY SHOW

Roy B. Simpson Says Structure Would Be Ideal for National Exhibit.

A suggestion that the city give up operation of the Union Market Building as a public market and garage and rent it for the national dairy show and other industrial exhibitions was made by Roy B. Simpson, an advertising agent, addressing the Chamber of Commerce sales managers' bureau Friday. He pointed out that the market merchants complain of poor business, although the garage has a heavy trade, and declared the building was ideal for the dairy and other shows.

Civic intreests are endeavoring to have St. Louis made the permanent home of the national dairy show. There has been talk of granting an area in Forest Park for its buildings, which met with opposition. The show lasts for a brief period each autumn. The projected Municipal Auditorium will have space for large exhibits, but Simpson asserted this would not be suitable for the dairy cattle. Furniture and all sorts of other displays could be placed in the market building, convenient to out-of-town visitors, he added.

HOW INJUNCTION WAS USED IN INDIANA TO BLOCK STRIKE AND IMPRISON MEN NOT ACCUSED OF VIOLATING ANY LAW

Charges Against Two Organizers, Now Serving 90 Days at Indianapolis, Altered so They Could Not Demand Jury Trial—They Were Arrested 53 Times in Three Weeks.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 14.

WHEN a committee of the United States Senate begins hearings next month on a bill to curb the use of injunctions in labor disputes, its attention will promptly be called to what has been cited as one of the most flagrant and drastic examples of abusing the power of injunction in the history of the Federal courts.

Two men, labor organizers, are now serving 90-day sentences in the Marion County jail here, on the charge that they violated an injunction by persuading employes of the Indianapolis street car company to break a contract which pledged them not to strike. In other words, these men are undergoing imprisonment for an act which is not a crime under the law, and which, under ordinary circumstances, could subject them to nothing more serious than a civil suit for damages.

In the case of the men now in jail, it was not even charged that they violated the law. In fact, that charge was purposely avoided, because it would have entitled the accused to a jury trial—a thing which the prosecutors were anxious to avoid. The charge is simply that they violated an injunction which restrained them from inducing or persuading the street car men to violate a working agreement which the company asserted they had signed, but which many of the men denied having signed.

"Sort of Thing That Makes Bolsheviks," Judge Says

Running through the history of the case is a story of intimidation, persecution and undercover activities so shocking as to be almost incredible if it were not a matter of record. One indignant State Judge, in reviewing some of the measures against the organizers, said:

> "This is the sort of thing which makes bolsheviks out of honest men. If violence occurs here, it will be the fault of those who have driven law-abiding citizens to acts of desperation."

The Indianapolis Street Railway Co. is owned by the Randall-Morgan banking interests, of Philadelphia, or was at the time the events described here occurred. It is now in process of being acquired by the interests headed by Samuel Insull, of Chicago, famous as the donor of the campaign fund which caused Frank L. Smith to be barred from the United States Senate.

In April, 1926, there arrived in Indianapolis Robert B. Armstrong, of St. Louis, and John M. Parker, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., vice presidents of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. They came for the purpose of organizing the carmen into a union.

One week after their arrival, Indianapolis police came to Parker's room in the Claypool Hotel, and demanded to know his name, residence and his business in the city. Although without a search warrant, they opened his bags, in one of which they found a half pint of whisky. They locked him up on charges of vagrancy and illegal possession of whisky, and held him in $6500 bond. A few days later he was tried and acquitted on both charges.

Charges Chief of Police Warned Organizer to Leave Town

Then both Parker and Armstrong were called to the office of Chief of Police Claude Johnson, who told them he was aware of their mission, and that he wanted them to leave town at once. According to Parker and Armstrong he said:

"This police force is rough, and it intends to be rough. We don't intend to have any union in this town. If you don't get out, and get out fast, it will be necessary for some detectives to put you into a car and take you across the State line. I advise you to leave peaceably."

But they did not leave, and a few days later, both were arrested on vagrancy charges. Released on bond, they were repeatedly rearrested, on one occasion when they had got only two blocks away from court. They hired several men to aid them in the organizing work, and these men also were arrested numerous times on vagrancy charges.

In less than three weeks, 53 arrests were made. In every instance the arresting officers, police, admitted in court that the men were violating no law, and in every instance the defendants were either acquitted, or the cases dismissed. It reached the stage where the local prosecutor refused to try the cases, and became angry at the repeated arrests. The police pleaded that they were obeying the orders of their superiors.

One Judge Refuses, Another Grants Injunction Against Police

Finally, the organizers applied to Federal Judge Robert P. Baltzell for an injunction restraining the police. It was summarily refused, and an application was taken to Judge Solon J. Carter, Judge of the Superior Court, a State Court. After hearing a recital of the events, Judge Carter turned to the City Counselor, representing the Police Department, and inquired if the representations were true.

The City Counselor admitted that the police had been "rather indiscreet."

"Indiscreet!" thundered Judge Carter. "This sort of conduct is not indiscreet—it is criminal. It is almost impossible to believe that such things could happen in a civilized country. This is the sort of thing that makes bolsheviks out of honest men. The actions of the police in this matter have been calculated to drive men to violence, and if violence is committed the police will be to blame."

Without further parley, he granted an injunction restraining the police from further acts of persecution. Already the union had paid out more than $4000 in fees for bonds.

Company Undercover Man Made President of Union.

The unionizing of the carmen proceeded, and soon 65 were discharged for joining the union. One of those discharged was Harry Boggs, a motorman, who immediately became active as an organizer, and was elected president of the local union.

Subsequently it developed that Boggs was a company spy. In June he went to Ernest H. Pflumm, a foreman, told him that union organizers were in town, and that he felt he could do the company some good by joining the union and working as an undercover man. The offer was accepted. Boggs was publicly "discharged." Actually, his salary was increased to $50 a week, paid him in cash once a week by Pflumm, who met him in a hotel room for that purpose.

While posing as one of the most active unionizers, and acting as president of the union, Boggs was secretly reporting every day to company officials by telephone on the progress of the union, and furnishing the names of men who joined it.

When the union seemed to have attained sufficient strength, the following demands were presented to the company:

1. Reinstatement of the discharged men.
2. Recognition of the union.
3. A temporary pay increase pending negotiation of a permanent scale.

The company refused to deal with the union. Unavailing appeals for intervention were made to the Mayor and the Governor. A citizens' committee undertook to arbitrate, but the company declined to have any dealings with the union. A strike seemed inevitable.

Enjoins Street Car Strike In Sweeping Fashion

Attorneys for the company appealed to Judge Baltzell for an injunction to prevent a strike. They presented an affidavit in which the president of the company stated that each employe, upon being hired, had signed an individual agreement not to join in a general strike. Attorneys for the union contended that many of the men had not signed this contract, and that others had signed it under the impression that it was a receipt for their badges. They demanded that the contracts be produced, as the best evidence of their existence.

Judge Baltzell held, however, that the affidavit was sufficient evidence of the existence of the contracts, and on the strength of it afterward ruled formally that "each and every employe" had signed such a contract.

He granted the injunction, undoubtedly one of the most remarkable and sweeping ever issued by a Court. Armstrong, Parker and their employes were restrained from combining together, or with any other person, "to solicit, induce, or by any means procure, any employe of the Indianapolis Street Railway Company . . . to violate the said contract by participating in any strike."

Injunctions usually are directed against particular individuals. In this case however, not only Parker and Armstrong, but "every person having knowledge of this order," were enjoined from interfering with the operation of street cars, either "by threats, intimidation, violence or other means." In short, anybody in the United States was enjoined from doing anything to cause or assist a strike.

Speeches at Union Meeting Basis of Contempt Penalty.

The order was issued on July 3. July 4, a holiday, fell on Sunday. A meeting of the union had been scheduled for 2 a. m. July 5. Deputy Marshals appeared at the hall just before the meeting began, and served the order on Armstrong and Parker. In opening the meeting, Parker read the injunction aloud. He and Armstrong then made speeches, and those speeches formed the basis for which they later were cited and sentenced for contempt.

In the stenographic record of those speeches—which was later accepted by the prosecution as correct—there is nowhere any advice or admonition to strike. On the contrary, Parker said:

"I want to say that so far as Brother Armstrong and myself are concerned, we are going to live up to the letter of the injunction. We have not, and we are not going to now, arbitrarily go against any Court orders, because I believe you know what that would mean to us. We are enjoined from advising you, counseling you, or in any way intimidating you, to leave the service of the company. We are not going to do that. We would not do it if there was no injunction here. We are not permitted by our own laws (of the union) to advise you men to strike, and I say again that we would not do it even if there wasn't any injunction here. That question rests entirely with the local organization."

Armstrong's talk was in precisely the same vein. He remarked rather grimly that "a good many laws have been violated since Brother Parker and I came here," but added: "That would not justify us in violating laws. We have respect for the Federal Courts. If we did not, the country would be in a sad condition. Regardless of what I may think of this injunction, I am going to abide by it to the best of my ability. I don't know much about law, but our attorney has told us what this injunction means."

Violence Incited by Boggs, Company Informer, Men Said.

Both Parker and Armstrong reviewed their efforts to form the union, touched briefly on the persecution to which they had been subjected, recited the efforts which had been made to reach an agreement with the company, and declared that they had exhausted their resources, and had no further suggestions to offer. Then they left the hall.

Within an hour after their departure, the meeting voted to call a strike that day. It was a legal holiday, travel was light, and the strike was not felt as keenly as it might have been otherwise. In succeeding days, with the employment of strikebreakers, the company managed to operate its cars fairly effectively.

When the strike had been in progress about a week, dynamite was placed on a number of tracks, and several persons were injured, although none seriously. Parker and Armstrong disavowed all connection with the dynamiting, and issued appeals to the strikers to refrain from violence.

A few days later six strikers were arrested by the police for throwing bricks at street cars, and some of them confessed that Boggs, whose occupation as a company spy had not been exposed, had told them to "go out and tear things up." A warrant was issued for Boggs, and he fled town.

On the following day, Judge Baltzell, acting upon the application of United States District Attorney Albert Ward, cited Armstrong and Parker for contempt on a charge of violating the injunction. They were charged with

Many Possibilities of Conflict Lie Beneath Peaceful Surface Of the Conference at Havana

Most Impressive U. S. Delegation Since Versailles Has Delicate Task Before It of Keeping Discussion of Latin - American Relations Within Bounds of Agenda.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

WILL the astute and accomplished Charles Evans Hughes and the other members of the distinguished United States delegation to the forthcoming Pan-American Conference at Havana be able to hold the proceedings within the limits of the formal agenda, or will the conference insist upon taking up political questions that the United States Government, most decidedly, prefers should not be discussed?

Confidence is expressed in State Department circles that the conference will run true to form, in which event it will concern itself solely with questions of trade, communications and the like. There are several reasons for the department's optimism. One is found in the extraordinarily able character of the United States delegation—the most impressive official delegation that this country has sent abroad since Versailles. Another is the fact that the meeting will be held in Cuba, whose Government is markedly friendly to the United States, and a third is the fact that a good many of the Latin-American delegates are diplomats resident in Washington, who may not care to antagonize our Government.

Beneath the surface, however, official Washington cherishes a lively fear that the conference will get out of hand. One may reasonably surmise that it is due to this apprehension, as well as to a desire to flatter our Southern neighbors, that we are sending such a high-powered delegation. They will have need of all their diplomatic skill if Latin-American distrust of the United States—distrust which has been intensified by our current intervention in Nicaragua—flames forth in the discussions.

Intervention Forbidden in Mexican Resolution

The grave possibility of embarrassment on account of the Nicaraguan affair and previous similar enterprises of the United States in the Caribbean countries has been made painfully concrete by the announcement that Mexico and the Dominican republic will seek consideration of the following proposal:

> "No state may in the future, directly or indirectly, nor by reason of any motive, occupy even temporarily any portion of the territory of another state. The consent given the occupying state by the state occupied will not legitimize the occupation, and the occupant will be responsible for all occurrences resulting from the occupation, not only with respect to the state occupied, but to third parties as well."

With a section of Latin-America in the frame of mind indicated by that proposal, the chance appears to be large that the conference will develop into something other than the love feast that the administration hopes for.

Under the official title of the Sixth International Conference of American States, the meeting will begin Jan. 16 and will last, according to the best informed opinion here about six weeks. President Coolidge will open it with an address—another significant straw which shows the importance which the United States attaches to the conference. Secretary of State Kellogg will go with him. These two high officials will remain but a short time. They are going not as delegates, but as guests.

The American delegation, besides former Secretary of State Hughes, will consist of Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy and formerly in the diplomatic service in Latin-America; Oscar W. Underwood, former Senator from Alabama, who was one of the United States delegation at the Washington disarmament conference of 1921-22; Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico; former Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of New York; James Brown Scott, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford University; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director-general of the Pan-American Union, and Noble B. Judah, the new Ambassador to Cuba.

Proposal to Shake Off Control of United States

The real business of the session will begin after President Coolidge has made his gesture of good will and departed for Washington. Various troublesome problems will then begin to thrust themselves forward. One of them has to do with the scheme of organization of future conferences. As now formed, the Pan-American Union, which is in effect the secretariat of the international conferences, has a governing board which is made up almost exclusively of diplomats accredited to the United States. The United States is represented by the Secretary of State; this country, as a result, constantly has a member on the board who outranks all

The Monroe Doctrine

The Monroe Doctrine was enunciated in the following words in President Monroe's message to Congress, Dec. 2, 1823:

"IN the discussions to which this interest has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the occasion has been deemed proper for asserting, as a principle in which rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subject to future colonization by any European power. * * * We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European Power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the Governments who have declared their independence and maintain it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European Power in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Need for Parole Reform.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN counsel for Ruth Snyder and Gray made an appeal for the lives of these two criminals, they tried to impress upon the Governor of New York that a move was afloat to abolish capital punishment. Does that represent the sentiment of the public in general? I doubt it. One of the most powerful arguments in favor of capital punishment has to do with our own State.

Back in 1913 a man poured kerosene over the gown of his wife, he then applied a match—that woman was burned to death. What was the motive in this case? Insurance. This man was sent up to the penitentiary for life. Yet, he is a free man today, the honorable Govenor of our Sta granting a pardon on the grounds of a perfect prison record. Does the Governor think that sufficient grounds for a pardon in a case such as this? This case and many others are concrete examples of just what a life sentence means; i. e., nothing.

Your paper has done wonderful work in arguing for many matters of public importance. Here is an opportunity to arouse our sleeping public. Why not come out and advocate some sort of reform in the parole system? Why not make it impossible for a Governor and a board made up of his friends to grant wholesale pardons on the grounds of excellent prison records when as a matter of fact the great common people know they are granted as a matter of political favor. I realize the wave of public interest in politics would not wash out a golf tee, but this question of trying to put the Hickmans away from society, only to have machine-controlled politicians turn them loose so that your daughter and mine will risk having their little lives snuffed out by degenerates, is too much to swallow. But what can we do?

What If George Did Nip a Bit?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

JUST how much pleasure and amusement does Rupert Hughes derive, I wonder, from trying to prove to the world that which is so perfectly well known to all, namely, that George Washington, in spite of his outstanding achievements, was possessed of the average human faults and weaknesses.

To quote from his book: "Remove from Washington's life his careers as a soldier and a statesman, and there remains little to distinguish him from the average successful business man of his day and ours." Quite right. But that is no trick at all.

Remove from the lives of any of our great men their careers as thus and so, and what have you left? Just normal human beings subject to temptations just as any other ordinary mortals would be. Take from Lindbergh, for instance, his career as an aviator and you have just a fun-loving boy, impatient of school routine, bent on following his own inclinations as any other youth of today.

In summing up the great advantages of being an American in this glorious, free country of ours, I have often thought back to that ragged, though determined little band of warriors in 1776, and I can't quite forgive Mr. Hughes for trying to impress upon the world the unproved fact that they were cowards and had to be whipped into doing their duty.

What if poor old George did drink a little, gamble a little and had to buy butter for his family when he had 101 cows? Who cares? Being a man of such magnetic personality, as Mr. Hughes says, I am only surprised he didn't do more of it.

Journalism in Philadelphia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

OUR Republican newspaper editorial and financial columns reveal an interesting lack of agreement these days. I am speaking now of the Republican newspapers published in Philadelphia, known elsewhere as "The Great Graveyard of the East," and I wonder just how much these particular mediums are responsible for this cognomen. In their editorial columns, we learn that although business conditions are specifically bad, they are generally good, and in the financial pages of the same edition, we learn that although the same conditions are specifically good, they are generally bad.

One wonders what the outside world thinks, that is whether we are all really quite dead, or alive but only half conscious of what is going on about us.

HARRY BRONSON.
Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WOMEN AND GOV. SMITH.

The Law Enforcement League of Democratic Women, which has recently broken rather violently into print, may or may not be a consequential political body. As a political mental attitude, however, it merits attention. That attitude was revealed in the correspondence with Congressman Cochran of St. Louis, in which the women declared, in effect, their intention to bolt their party should Gov. Smith of New York, Senator Reed of Missouri or Gov. Ritchie of Maryland be nominated for President.

The objection to those men is well understood. They are opposed to constitutional prohibition. That blasts them. All other qualities and qualifications are swept aside. The women demand a dry candidate. They will support no other.

As prohibitionists that position is logical. But these women do not appear in politics as prohibitionists. They profess to be Democrats. They apparently do not realize the insincerity of their profession. Whether this can be explained by their comparative inexperience in politics, or charged to the emotional nature of women, we do not pretend to say. Whatever the explanation, the attitude is lamentable.

The case of Gov. Smith takes precedence in this discussion for the reason he is at present the leading contestant. Informed opinion and the shadowy sister of informed opinion, namely, popular instinct, accept him as an outstanding figure in our national life. Why? Have the Democratic women of the Law Enforcement League ever asked themselves that question? And if they have not, do they not think that as intelligent voters who even assume certain prerogatives of leadership that they ought really to know the character and claims for preferment of a candidate before proscribing him?

An interesting and studious estimate of Mr. Smith appeared a short time ago in an editorial discussion in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican of the Governor's latest message to the Legislature. The message was described as "an extraordinarily able and comprehensive survey of state government." The literary charm of the paper was found to be reminiscent of the genius of William E. Gladstone, who could "clothe with living interest the ordinarily dry figures of the annual statement of the British exchequer." And, naturally, the contrast was remarked between those two men—"one the product of English culture, with all the advantages of a university education and a scholarly life, the other a self-made man and the product, at least according to the words of a once popular song which has had its revival in his honor, of 'The Sidewalks of New York.'"

Another example of Mr. Smith's unusual quality was cited in his comment on President Coolidge's call for the Geneva naval conference a year ago. Many prominent men were interviewed. All approved the proposal in terms of general laudation. Gov. Smith's comment was distinctive. The Republican thus analyzes it: "Not any less inclined to praise the move that the President had made, but with the objectivity of mind which usually characterizes him, he took pains to point out, in a few sentences, that a treaty of naval limitation might release many millions now being spent upon ships and guns, for needed works of social welfare, having in mind such things as schools, parks, state hospitals and other state institutions."

It seems to the Post-Dispatch that this humanitarian quality of Gov. Smith, which really seems to be the dominant motif of his statesmanship, should appeal particularly to the imagination of women. This opinion, we must insist, is not to be "sicklied o'er" with sentimentality. Here is no Utopian dreamer. The man is, above all things, practical, else he could not be, as he is, the embodiment of official efficiency. But he has his background and his heritage. They have bequeathed to him a vision of democracy's mission and capacity. He seems kindred to Lincoln in his gift for thinking in terms of mankind, in his devotion to the popular weal. This gift, may we say, appeals strongly to this paper, for it is one of the hereditary and constantly proclaimed obligations of the Post-Dispatch "never to lose sympathy with the poor."

But we have quoted the Springfield Republican's appraisal of Gov. Smith as peculiarly worthy of the attention of the Democratic Women's Law Enforcement League for this reason: The Springfield Republican believes as devoutly as do these women in prohibition. It supports the eighteenth amendment quite as earnestly as we oppose it. It regards Gov. Smith's position on this issue as unfortunate. But it does not permit that one difference to blind it to the great measure of this man's achievements and character. Its fairness, its breadth of judgment, its intellectual integrity in the circumstances may be commended, not only to the women of the Law Enforcement League, but to all citizens of every class.

A JOB FOR THE LAWYERS.

The Committee on Criminal Law and Criminology of the American Bar Association has made a motion that the association study prohibition and its administration, all its mutations and permutations, all its criminal ramifications and official debaucheries.

The motion deserves to be seconded and the study performed. There is no doubt about what it will reveal. The dry millennium, when inspected by the lawyers, will turn out to be quite as bad as when diagnosed by everybody else.

But once the bar association has rendered its inevitable verdict, we trust it will not bring its efforts to a dead stop. It might, with excellent reason, begin a campaign to make such foolish and disastrous experiments as prohibition impossible in future. And this it might accomplish by apprising the lawyers of the country, who compose most of our legislative bodies, that the law is not something to be tampered with at the will of panaceists, but an organic growth; not something handed down to the people, but a written embodiment of the well-established beliefs and customs of the people. The foremost American jurist of our day, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, has said this admirably:

> The law, so far as it depends on learning, is indeed, as it has been called, the government of the living by the dead. It cannot be helped, it is as it should be, that the law is behind the times. As law embodies beliefs that have triumphed in the battle of ideas, and then have translated themselves into action, while there is still doubt, while opposite convictions still keep a battle front against each other, the time for law has not come.

If the bar association would just start drumming this wise philosophy into our lawyer-legislators, the "ought to be a law" zealots would soon find themselves talking to an empty hall.

NICARAGUA AND MONROE.

It has been pointed out by Senator Borah that the Monroe Doctrine was an outgrowth of controversy between two hemispheres and therefore has nothing whatever to do with internal conditions in any Central American state. Mr. Root has said:

> A false conception of what the Monroe Doctrine is, of what it demands and what it justifies, of its scope, and of its limits has invaded the public press and affected public opinion. Grandiose schemes of national expansion invoke the Monroe Doctrine. Interested motives to compel Central or South American countries to do or refrain from doing something by which individual Americans may profit invoke the Monroe Doctrine. Clamors for national glory from minds too shallow to grasp at the same time a sense of national duty invoke the Monroe Doctrine. The intolerance which demands that control over the conduct and the opinions of other peoples, which is the essence of tyranny, invokes the Monroe Doctrine. Thoughtless people who see no difference between lawful right and physical power assume that the Monroe Doctrine is a warrant for interference in the internal affairs of all weaker nations in the New World. Against this suppositious doctrine many protests, both in the United States and in South America, have been made, and justly made. To the real Monroe Doctrine these protests have no application.

Monroe would roll over in his grave if he knew that our armed forces were in Nicaragua trying to keep in power against the will of a considerable segment of the people of that country a government selected by our State Department and the business interests allied with it. We may guess from the foregoing what Mr. Root thinks of the spectacle presented by our intervention. We are doing precisely what he says we have to no right to do, that is invoking the Monroe Doctrine to compel a Central American country "to do or refrain from doing something by which individual Americans may profit."

A WEIGHTY LEGAL QUESTION.

To laugh or not to laugh—that is the question which agitates Chicago movie audiences and legal circles. The question may lead to the writing of the movie patrons' bill of rights. Thomas J. Pillion, a salesman, attended a movie show. He laughed at a subtitle which was not supposed to be funny, and the resplendent ushers ejected him bodily. In the quaint Americanese of Chicago, they threw him out on his ear. Whereupon, Mr. Pillion brought suit for $25,000. We are with him to a man. Chicago tolerates many things, but must her movie patrons laugh only when Will Hays says that the titles are funny? Perhaps Mr. Pillion thought of something else at the moment the solemn subtitle was on the screen. There is a possibility that he considered it funny. Whatever the reason for his mirth, we contend that a movie patron, by paying the admission fee, acquires an inalienable right to laugh or not to laugh.

Mr. Pillion is suing for a principle for which countless thousands have died with a smile on their lips and liberty enshrined in their hearts. Are we men or mice, that Hollywood and the regimented ushers dare tell us when to laugh? If the patron wants to laugh, he may; if he chooses not to laugh, that's his affair. To this principle we pledge sufficient of our life to attend a movie show and as much of our fortune as will pay the price of admission.

THE MOTOR AND THE FARMER.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine was a guest of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce the other day and, properly enough, talked about the motor industry and the farmer. He said the farmer should copy the practices of the motor car manufacturers and big business generally. The farmer must modernize equipment, he said, go in for quantity production and develop a market for his products at the lowest prices that will leave a margin of profit.

That sounds fine. It has sounded fine every time it has been said, and it has been said 246,738,961 times. But it does not mean anything. Mr. Jardine did say something, though, that meant something when he remarked that the farmer needs help in distribution.

How can the farmer get help in distribution? The quickest way is cheaper transportation. The Federal Government, which, Mr. Jardine says, "stands ready to help in any way possible," can make good this Cabinet officer's statement by formulating and carrying out a big-businesslike policy of river development, which will give the farmer relief from the onerous freight rates he now pays the railroads.

Again, the State of Missouri can help the Missouri farmers by adopting a road-construction policy and program which will build the 4000 miles of farm-to-market roads, and do it now.

Rivers and good roads may not solve all the farmer's problems, but they will help a lot. Mr. Jardine would do well to drive that fact home to Washington. Our State Board of Agriculture would do well to break the same news to Jefferson City.

HOW TO IDENTIFY MR. BECK.

The House Committee investigating James M. Beck's right to a seat as Representative from Philadelphia is fumbling the job badly. It ought to be a simple matter to determine whether Mr. Beck is a bona fide resident of that town. Taxes, polling lists, habitat and that sort of thing may be junked. A few simple, but earnest, questions will quickly reveal whether this one-time eminent New Yorker, erstwhile Jerseyite, austere Washingtonian and unforgettable author of "The Vanishing Rights of the States" is a Philadelphian or an impostor. Thus:

If Ben Franklin were alive today would he be administering Saturday Evening Postum in any such quantities?

This in pianissimo:

In what dim orbit is Home Run Baker
  Smashing the ball on the beezer now?
Before what grandstands is flashing Barry
  Grabbing the grounders and pausing to bow?
Collins lingers, a limping shadow
  Of the era of glory and laureled bay,
But where is McInnis and lo, poor Bender,
  And Oldring and Coombs and—O, where are they?

CAUGHT IN ANOTHER STORM.

It Pays to Advertise

From The Nation.

DWIGHT MORROW, Will Rogers, and Charles August Lindbergh have been carrying on perhaps the most effective international advertising campaign in history. They have advertised friendship; they have been "selling" the United States to Mexico. To an amazing degree they have succeeded in erasing suspicion and substituting a spirit of co-operative good-will. That the advertising has paid seems to be proved by the responsive action of the Calles Government in passing legislation substantially modifying the petroleum law which had so long been the bogy of the State Department.

It is a record of which Mr. Morrow may well be proud. He arrived in Mexico City on Oct. 23. On Nov. 17 the Mexican Supreme Court handed down a decision declaring the two most offensive articles of the petroleum law unconstitutional. On Dec. 26 President Calles asked the Mexican Congress to amend the moot clauses. On Dec. 27 the House of Representatives passed the desired bill. On Dec. 28 it passed another measure giving the President extraordinary power to modify the agrarian legislation. Representatives of the oil companies have expressed their satisfaction. What a contrast to the muddling, bungling, bullying policy of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Kellogg! A couple of ham-and-egg breakfasts; a lariat-throwing humorist imported from California; an aviator winging his friendly way over the desert where once Pershing hunted Villa — and two nations which had been thumbing their noses at each other for a decade, which had at least thrice been on the brink of war, discovered new springs of friendship.

WE ARE not sure that behind the enthusiastic good-will of the Lindbergh pilgrimage and the Morrow ham-and-egg breakfasts Mexico is not conceding too much of what the State Department has asked. It is of course better to have the laws changed as an act of good-will than as a response to bullying; but the suspicion remains that Mexico is reshaping her legislation rather because she needs American help, for which this is the price, than because the amended form seems just to Mexicans.

It happens that this readjustment coincides with certain other negotiations. The partial moratorium on Mexico's foreign-debt payments ended on Dec. 31, last, and Mexico, under her agreement with the bankers' committee, is obligated to pay during 1928 9,500,000 pesos a month—42 per cent of her total budget. Unless concessions are made by the bankers, or unless new sources of revenue can be tapped, Mexico will have to suspend her program of road-building and irrigation, cut salaries, and close schools. Mr. Fernando de la Fuente, chief of the Mexican Government's Department of Credit, is now in New York negotiating with the bankers' committee. He will, naturally, point out that good roads and irrigation are likely rapidly to increase the national wealth out of which Mexico must pay her debts; and it is obvious that the change in the oil laws, if it leads the great oil companies to extend their drilling and to pay the oil taxes which constitute the bulk of Mexico's internal revenue, will have a mollifying effect upon Mr. Morrow's former associates in the banking world. Were the oil laws changed in the hope of winning concessions from the bankers? If so, perhaps they were necessary; but even if so, the change is a dangerous precedent in international relations. It is bad enough to have Wall Street determining policies in the United States; the world has a pretty problem to solve if American financiers also direct the course of legislation in other countries.

THE actual area of conflict between the Mexican Government and Washington has always been small, despite the large amount of steam generated; and these amendments cover only a part of that territory. The oil companies, it will be recalled, protested against the provisions of the Mexican law which, after announcing the principle of nationalization of petroleum deposits, provided that, if the companies or individuals applied within one year's time, concessions of 50 years' duration would be granted for rights arising from:

1. Lands in which works of petroleum exploitation were begun prior to May 1, 1917;
2. Contracts made before May 1, 1917, by the surface owner or the successor in title, for the express purpose of exploitation of petroleum.

Most of the American companies refused to register their titles, which were accordingly subject to forfeiture. The modified law provides for another year within which they may register their titles, but still requires registry; and it removes the limitation of 50 years upon the new concessions; they may have indefinite duration.

These seem small changes indeed; but around precisely these provisions—which the American Government had hotly declared to be retroactive and confiscatory—has raged the most acrimonious controversy in our recent diplomatic history. The Mexican Government has as vigorously defended its right to shape its own legislation. It has denied the retroactivity of its law, asserting that a law is not retroactive "as long as it does not infringe upon any right which has not already been put into effect."

THE question is more important than appears. The United States has surplus capital; Mexico—like Colombia and Venezuela and other undeveloped countries—has not. Americans can buy, for what seems to them a song, vast tracts of land and hold them for later development. In such a way Mexico lost control of the enormous sub-soil wealth which has made her the second oil-producing country of the world. The profits of her own territory have gone to aliens. In one of her best years she collected close to $2,000,000 in taxes on the oil which one American company extracted from her soil; but the United States Government in the same year collected $5,000,000 from the same oil after it had entered our territory! Mexico's oil and land laws were an effort to retain the profits of her natural wealth for her own people, and similar efforts are sure to be made in other countries as they rise to a similar degree of national self-consciousness. Shall those countries be permitted to shape their legislation according to their own needs? Or must they find themselves handicapped, bound forever to concessions and privileges granted in a period when they had not awakened to the meaning of their national heritage? Small as is the change made in the Mexican law, we fear that it may be a sad precedent in the coming decades for the newer oil-companies of Colombia and Venezuela.

FABLE.

Now about this time, the youth who had no proper reverence for authority, tradition or platitudes, was apprenticed to the solemn soothsayer who was reputed to know all things. The youth, being a keen observer, soon noticed that couples so obviously mismated that even Death could not join them, were falling in love and marrying. Wherefore, he approached the soothsayer and said, "O mellifluous mouther of singularly unapproachable, but strangely inapplicable wisdom, explain to me why people with incompatible temperaments marry." The soothsayer blinked solemnly, folded his hands over his stomach, and said, "Love is blind, my child," which is a perfectly proper platitude.

But the youth, not being satisfied with an explanation which did not explain, went in search of Love. Finding that god, he said to him, "Are you blind?" "No," answered Love; "the nectar of Mount Olympus is singularly free from traces of wood alcohol." "Then what's wrong with your eyes?" queried the irrepressible youth. "Nothing," answered the god, "except that I always keep them closed, in order that I may not see what terrible mistakes the human race claims I have something to do with."

MILLER TELLS OF RISE OF TERMINAL COMPANY

Maintains Largest Unified System in World Here, Its President Says.

How railroad facilities have been expanded in the St. Louis district to keep pace with industry was explained by Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Railroad Association, in an address last Wednesday night before the Engineers' Club on "The Railroad Situation of Greater St. Louis."

"There being no railroads at the time St. Louis was founded, no provision was made for them," Miller began. "The traffic between the East and West was handled by vehicles on ferry boats, which necessitated breaking bulk at both sides of the river in both directions. Later car ferries were put in service, which carried the cars across the river and delivered them without breaking bulk.

"This was the situation prior to July 4, 1874, when the Eads Bridge and tunnel were completed and ready for service. At that time there were but three railroads in St. Louis and three in East St. Louis, and the Eads Bridge had a 10-car track for a terminal near the entrance to the tunnel at Eighth and Poplar streets. It developed that the Eads enterprise could not successfully compete with the existing transriver service of the St. Louis Transfer Co. and the Wiggins Ferry Co. Those in control, after a number of years of heavy losses and two receiverships, finally leased their properties to the Missouri Pacific and Wabash railroads in 1881.

Terminal Formed in 1889.

"The Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis was formed in 1889; starting with 10 miles of railroad, it has developed the largest unified terminal system in the world, operating 200 locomotives. The facilities include 410 miles of railroad, two double-track bridges across the Mississippi River, both having four to eight track approaches, the Union Passenger Station used by all of the steam lines carrying passengers, 20 in number; the main arteries, three belt lines on each side of the river intersect all of the 28 connecting carriers, and along these belt lines are grouped the largest industries in this district, which have private tracks varying from 10 to 500 cars capacity. Thirty-two team yards surround the city like a horseshoe—there is a team yard at every major thoroughfare, which forms the most complete and convenient arrangement for handling carload freight in any large city.

Distributing Freight.

"More than 1400 industries are served through the belt lines or team yards, or both. Ten large yards for the assembly, classification and distribution of freight, are conveniently located for the expeditious interchange of carload traffic. Five large yards for the storage, care and repair of passenger equipment, are located in the Mill Creek Valley convenient to Union Station. Twelve railroad freight stations have its service. Cupples Station, with 20 acres of floor space and housing more than 20 large wholesale jobbing establishments; the National Stockyards with 40 miles of track, and an ice plant with a capacity for icing 400 cars daily, are among its many instrumentalities.

"During the year 1926, 4,648,915 freight cars and 644,135 passengers cars were handled. This represents the largest volume of traffic in the history of the company. It was handled with reasonable promptness and without congestion, which indicates that the Terminal facilities are adequate and efficient and need only to be expanded and kept up with the growth of traffic henceforth.

Calls It Asset To Community.

"In a city as large as St. Louis, it is physically and financially impracticable for a new railroad to enter and establish facilities sufficient to command a remunerative traffic. It is impracticable for a railroad, or a system of railroads, to reach the various parts of the city and develop facilities equal to those of the Terminal Association; even if the right were granted, the cost would be prohibitive. The last railroad to enter St. Louis was the Burlington in 1894. It acquired a large area of property at great expense, and while that great system has increased its traffic to a large extent, the industrial developments along the line has been quite meager. The last line to come in was the Rock Island, which simply connected with the West Belt Line outside the city, and built a freight house and team yard on North Broadway. Both use the Terminal facilities to get traffic to and from industries and in reaching other carriers.

"Railroads coming here in the future may connect with the belt lines and have the advantage of using these extensive facilities, ready made—the development of 30 years—on terms of exact equality with those of its owners. It is a unique situation and one of the best assets that any community can have.

Eight Gateways to City.

"To create and unify adequate terminal facilities in a large city is a most intricate, difficult and expensive problem. Every large city in this country is striving for unified terminals, the facilities of which are open to all of the traffic of all of the lines, and which insure the maximum in service at minimum cost.

"To create and unify adequate terminal facilities in a large city is a most intricate, difficult and expensive problem. Every large city in this country is striving for unified terminals, the facilities of which are open to all of the traffic of all of the lines, and which insure the maximum in service at minimum cost.

"This gateway is served by 100,000 miles of railroad radiating in every direction. The situation may be likened to a great funnel; these railroads spread out all over the country, but they enter St. Louis through the small end of the funnel, at Grand avenue for instance. The Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Wabash, Rock Island and Bonne Terre trains reach that point and are concentrated in the Mill Creek Valley, and through that narrow neck the traffic must enter at slow speed and be switched, classified and distributed to 20 East Side lines. The Grand avenue gateway is one of eight similar approaches to this city.

"Practically, the situation should be reversed—the facilities ought to be larger in the city than outside, owing to the slower movements; hence, to handle the immense traffic, the volume of which doubles about every 12 years, means constant expansion and an extremely heavy outlay to cope with the growth.

"It is a most interesting problef and one of vital importance in which every citizen should take an active interest, and co-operate to the end that the city may keep pace with its competitors. Think what would happen if this city were isolated even for a short time!

Dependence on Railroads.

"We become so accustomed to enjoying the benefits of transportation that we unconsciously regard the railroads too lightly. Every community is dependent on their service, which brings for its daily consumption products of the farm, products of the flour mills, of the packing houses, of the dairy, fruit and vegetables, in abundant supply, so that today the average American citizen sits down to a better table than King Solomon with all of his wealth could have enjoyed, because he did not have transportation.

"St. Louis now has the most complete and best equipped terminal facilities of a large city. Their capacity to handle a large and increasing traffic, expeditiously and economically, has been demonstrated; therefore, the transportation problem is simply to expand and improve these facilities to keep pace with the commercial growth of this community, removing as they occur impediments to the prompt handling and reducing to a minimum lost motion in the movement of traffic.

"In conclusion it may interest you to quote from a recent letter from Isaac A. Hedges, manager of the Cupples Station property, that speaks for itself.

An Answer to Critics.

"Just returned from New York City to find on my desk your comprehensive folder issued under date of Nov. 30. May I suggest in this connection that at some future time you call attention to the fact that 26 years ago I leased a warehouse in Cupples Station to Gerard Swope, then agent of the Western Electric Co. Twenty-five years later, as president of the General Electric Co., he bought over 150 acres on your lines for what will be the greatest industrial development St. Louis has ever known. Unless he had been satisfied with your service all these years, I don't think he would have made this last move, do you?

"Cupples Station has had Terminal service for 36 years, and handles more than 20,000 carloads annually.

"This is a timely answer to some of the well-meaning but uninformed criticism of Terminal service, which, while not perfect, is unexcelled. No large city has better service or lower switching charges than St. Louis."

At Lambert Field

WHEN Col. Lindbergh comes back next month for a brief stay at Lambert-St. Louis Field, where all the old-timers still refer to him simply as "Slim," he is likely to see a remarkable metamorphosis in the airdrome he once called home.

Instead of the 176-acre tract that he knew as Lambert Field, he will find 246 acres, bordering on the railroad tracks, where, as he will perceive, commercial companies will have shipping facilities at their disposal.

About this tract, which includes the old field of course, Lindbergh's trained flyer's eyes will pick up more than a hundred glistening dots on the borders—boundary lights. No one knows better than he what comfort the night-flying aviator takes from the sight of a good flying field, well marked by lights. At two sides of the field he will see batteries of huge searchlights, whose beams can flood the field with radiance when the motor roar of an incoming airplane is heard after dark. And down near the northwest corner he will see the new beacon, inactive in the daylight hours but after dark raking the horizon with its lean white beam.

All this, of course, is made possible by the $50,000 appropriation ordinance approved by Mayor Miller yesterday after the Board of Aldermen had voted Friday to pass the flying field measure. It igves St. Louis a representative airport and paves the way for the future acquisition of one of the finest airdromes in the world.

Runways to Be Weather-Proof.

The new field, besides being well lighted, graded and drained, will be equipped with runways that will be solid for takeoff and landing, regardless of the state of the ground. Experiments are being made to determine the best type of surface. The runways must be hard enough to support a plane, but preferably elastic enough to take up some of the shock of landing. They must be covered with material which will bind into a cohesive covering rather than lie loose to be drawn into whirling propellers. They must be reasonably porous so that water will not stand on them, yet must be rugged.

It is a large order that is required of runway material, and extensive experiments will be performed before the final selection is made.

Ruth Elder Flies to Kansas City.

Ruth Elder, whose unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic in a Stinson monoplane piloted by Capt. George Haldeman won her a remunerative vaudeville contract, flew from St. Lonis to Kansas City yesterday morning in a Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., monoplane—a Ryan—piloted by Milton Girton. Miss Elder was accompanied by two Kansas City newspaper reporters and her manager.

Ralph Damon Visits Robertson.

Ralph Damon, superintendent of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation, visited the field Friday to discuss with Maj. William B. Robertson arrangements for the new Curtiss-Robertson Aircraft Corporation, of which Roberston is to be president and Damon superintendent.

During his visit he inspected the site of the Curtiss-Robertson factory at the northwest corner of the field and later took a flight over the ground in a Ryan piloted by Frank T. Dunn. Plans for the Curtiss-Robertson factory, which is to cost $55,000, have been completed and construction will be begun in time to have the factory complete by spring. Its complement of machinery will cost $20,000.

In connection with wind tunnel tests of the Robin, a cabin monoplane to be built by the company, Damon said it had shown a remarkably high "lift-drag" ratio, which means that it passes through the air with a minimum of friction.

The capitalization of the corporation has been increased from $250,000 to $500,000. Its chief financial backers are Harry Hall Knight and Arnold Stifel of St. Louis and James Lewis of Louisville, Ky.

Site of B. F. Mahoney Plant.

The B. F. Mahoney Aircraft Co., maker of Ryan monoplanes and builder of Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," is to have the factory site immediately east of the Curtiss-Robertson plant, it has been tentatively decided. Construction of the plant is to begin within a few weeks for operation in the spring.

New Ships for Mail Flyers.

The Robertson Aircraft Corporation ,which operates the air mail line between St. Louis and Chicago, is soon to replace its old DH-4's with new Whirlwind-motored mail ships. The final decision on the type of plane to be used has not yet been made.

Harry H. Perkins, who was active in the flying game when St. Louis' best field was in Forest Park, has joined the Robertson Aircraft executive force. He is to give particular attention to the development of the Robertson flying school.

To Cleveland in 4½ Hours.

Milt Girton made a trip to Cleevland from St. Louis a week ago yesterday in a Ryan brougham, completing the run in four an da half hours. As passengers he carried D. G. Aronberg of Aronberg-Fried Co., a New York building concern, and a salesman of the Aronberg-Fried Co.

Girton reported that he crossed the Mississippi several times, trying to find his way out of the St. Louis smoke pall, but had an uneventful trip after he had passed East St. Louis. Later Aronberg wrote the Von Hoffman Aircraft Co. a letter complimenting the concern on his rapid trip and declaring his intention of making airplane trips in the future when speedy transportaton became necessary.

Flies to Bartlesville, Ok.

In another Von Hoffman Ryan John Campion flew to Bartlesville, Ok., Thursday for a demonstration. He is expected to return to Lambert-St. Louis Field today carrying as passengers Mrs. Bernard von Hoffman and her two children, who have been making a visit to friends in Tulsa.

In Air 900 Hours in Year.

Clyde Brayton of the Parks Airlines made a cross-country trip to Marion, Ill., last week in a Travel-Air biplane which he demonstrated to a prospective purchaser. Brayton has been managing the Parks concern in the absence of Oliver Parks, who is convalescing from injuries suffered last summer in a crash.

Brayton, incidentally, has put in more than 900 hours during 1927, hanging up a good-sized flying time record for other aviators at the field to shoot at. Most of the time was spent in instruction of students.

Additions to Von Hoffman Fleet.

Joe Hammer, who left Denver Friday morning in a combination wing Eaglerock, arrived at the field yesterday afternoon, after an overnight stop at Fort Riley, Kan. The plane will be added to the Von Hoffman fleet. Two more Ryan broughams also have been received by the Von Hoffman Aircraft Co., and are being assembled under the direction of Girton.

Phil Love With Fairchild Firm.

Philip R. Love, who once flew the mail out of Lambert Field and later made a nation-wide air tour with his pal, Lindbergh, has joined the sales force of the Fairchild Airplane Manufacturing Co. of New York, having resigned as inspector for the Department of Commerce. Love will use a Fairchild monoplane in making his sales calls.

How Injunction Was Used to Block Strike in Indiana

Change in Form of Complaint Prevents Their Trial by Jury.

The Clayton act provides that persons charged with contempt are entitled to jury trials where their acts amount to a violation of the criminal laws, and attorneys for Armstrong and Parker immediately filed application for jury trial. Thereupon District Attorney Ward amended the complaint, striking from it all charges of violence, and leaving merely the charge that they had persuaded the carmen to violate their agreements. Thus they were deprived of trial by a jury, and Judge Baltzell heard their cases alone.

It was a brief proceeding. The stenographic report of the speeches was introduced, together with the testimony of the Marshals who served the injunction. There was some testimony that Armstrong and Parker had referred slightingly to the injunction when they received it, but, as their attorneys pointed out, this could amount only to contempt of the Court's person, if it was contempt at all, and they were not charged with that.

Judge Baltzell ruled that the words and actions of Parker and Armstrong had been of a nature to induce the men to violate their contracts by going on strike, and hence that they were guilty of contempt. He sentenced each of them to 90 days in the Marion County Jail here. An appeal was taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Armstrong and Parker were released on bonds of $10,000 each.

Several days later Boggs was arrested in West Virginia, returned to Indianapolis, and also cited for contempt. Upon being taken to the Federal Building, he attempted to communicate with a company foreman for the purpose of obtaining bond, and it was then disclosed that he had been acting as a company spy while serving as president of the union.

Union Lawyer Says Informer Laid Blame on Company.

Frank Baker, attorney for the union, visited him in his cell, and asserts that Boggs told him he had been instructed by company officials to put dynamite on the tracks, because that was the only way they "could get Armstrong and Parker cited for contempt." Baker says that Boggs told him the company even paid for the dynamite to put under its own cars.

Boggs afterward denied this, saying that he admitted having been secretly on the company payroll, but denying that he was instructed by the company to use violence as a means of discrediting the union and bringing about the arrest of the leaders.

Baker declared that Boggs at first told him he would turn Government evidence against the company, but that subsequently Boggs received a suggestion from the District Attorney's office that "the key would be thrown away on him" if he made such an attempt, and that he would fare better to plead guilty and take his medicine.

At any rate, he was arraigned before Judge Baltzell, and pleaded guilty. Said the Judge from the bench:

"So you were the president of the union and on the company payroll at the same time?" Boggs admitted it was true.

"And you double-crossed both of them, didn't you?" "No, Your Honor, I never double-crossed the company," was the reply.

Boggs was sentenced to 120 days in jail, and served it. Upon his release, he got married, took a honeymoon trip, and gave other evidence of prosperity. There is a report that he boasted of getting $50 a week while in jail, and $1000 when he was released, but it is hardly possible to confirm that. He left Indianapolis.

Court "Reads Between the Lines" of Speeches to Establish Contempt.

The appeal of Parker and Armstrong came up before the Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago last March 30. Judge Anderson, himself the author of a number of famous injunctions against labor unions, wrote an opinion affirming the conviction. He said it was clear, "reading between the lines" of the speeches delivered by Parker and Armstrong, that they did what the injunction forbade them to do, and hence were guilty of contempt.

As a last resort, an appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court. Last Nov. 29 the Supreme Court declined to review the case, Armstrong and Parker surrendered themselves at Indianapolis and began serving their sentences. At this date, they have served more than half their time.

A movement had been begun to obtain a presidential pardon for them, but the plea has not yet been formally presented to President Coolidge. Meantime, they remain in jail under a conviction that they induced certain employes to commit a breach of contract—an offense, which if true, is not a crime—except when made one by an order of a court.

The American theory of democratic government has always been that laws shall be made by the elected representatives of the people; that the duty of the courts is merely to enforce them. Of course, that reflection doesn't help Armstrong and Parker much.

Terminal Superintendents' Officers

other members. An effort will be made at the Havana meeting to put through a rule enabling the selection of members outside the corps of Washington diplomats.

Even better calculated to cause trouble is a proposal to make the union a political organization—to make it, in fact, a sort of American League of Nations. This topic has official sanction through the fate that it comes before the conference in a report by an international commission of jurists which sat at Rio de Janeiro last spring. Seventeen of the 21 American republics, including the United States, were represented at that meeting. The jurists drew up a plan, the effect of which would be to give the Pan-American Union jurisdiction over disputes among the American States. How the American Government feels about such a proposal may be gathered from its refusal to arbitrate the controversy over the Mexican oil and land laws.

Broadly speaking, the battle of Havana—if it becomes a battle—will be waged over the question of the position of the United States in future assemblages of this sort. Is the United States to continue to dominate the union, or to be relegated to the ranks? If the American delegates have their way, the United States will retain control in fact if not in name, with the union continuing to function exclusively in the economic sphere. The character of the delegation is ample guaranty that it will espouse no radical change in our political relations with the republics to the south of us.

Pan-American Union Had Its Beginning in 1888.

The Pan-American conferences and their offspring, the Pan-American Union, originated from an act of Congress in 1888, which directed the President of the United States to invite the Latin American republics to join with the United States in a meeting at Washington. The conference was held in 1889-90. Succeeding meetings have been held at Mexico City (1901-02), Rio de Janeiro (1906), Buenos Aires (1910) and Santiago, Chile (1923). Each conference makes provision through a resolution for the next gathering. Membership is confined to the American republics; thus Canada is left out. The members comprise what was first known as the International Union of American Republics and is now called the Pan-American Union. Its headquarters are at Washington. L. S. Rowe, a North American, is the present director-general of the union and E. Gil Borges, a Venezuelan, the assistant director.

American policy south of the Rio Grande has as its corner stone the doctrine enunciated by President Monroe in 1823. Warning European Powers not to interfere with the newly won independence of the Latin American states.

Monroe declared that the United States would regard in an unfriendly light "any interposition for the purpose of oppressing" any independent state in Latin America or "controlling in any other manner" its destiny.

This policy of requiring the European Powers to keep hands off Latin America has remained throughout the last century as the outstanding feature of our whole foreign policy. One of the chief arguments of those opposed to the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations was that such action might weaken the authority claimed by this country, under the Monroe Doctrine.

Expansion of Monroe Doctrine in Roosevelt Administration.

The doctrine today in practice is much broader than when it was first laid down. President Roosevelt in a message to Congress in December, 1904, declared that "chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international power."

The Monroe Doctrine by this interpretation became an instrument not only warning European Powers not to intervene on this continent but justifyig intervention by the United States in certain cases.

This is the definition by what the United States has been guided during the last 20 years. Briefly, the theory is that if we did not intervene to protect the property of European nationals in Latin America their own Governments might undertake the job, and that is something that the Monroe Doctrine would not let us sanction.

The alleged danger to British and other foreign property in Nicaragua, as a result of the fighting between the Diaz and Sacasa forces, was one of the reasons given for the presence in that country of the Marines.

In pursuance of the broadened interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, Roosevelt in 1905 established a financial receivership in the Dominican Republic. The belief was expressed by the administration that owing to the constant revolutions in that country, "there was imminent danger of foreign intervention" if the United States did not establish order and see that the Dominican Government paid its debts. Similar considerations led to the establishment of a military government in Haiti in 1915 and the imposition upon Haiti of a treaty giving the United States control over the finances and police of the country. The occupation of Haiti was followed by that of Santo Domingo. The Marines in control of the latter were withdrawn in 1924, but they are still in charge of Haiti.

U. S. Interest in Panama Canal Moving Factor of Many Occupations.

Our special interest in the Caribbean countries is due to their close proximity to the Panama Canal. It is one of the axioms of our official policy that we must safeguard ourselves against the possibility that these countries may be used by foreign Powers as bases from which to threaten our defenses.

One of the criticisms of American policy in the Caribbean area is that we have imposed such a degree of control that the countries affected have not been given the chance to learn real self-government.

Latin-American suspicion of our motives has been aroused by the frequency with which the State Department, on the ground of danger to foreign lives and property, has caused armed forces to be landed in the Central American and Caribbean countries.

We have never officially obtained political control over any State in South America, but the attitude of that part of the world toward the United States is naturally colored by the fear that the Caribbean policy will eventually be extended southward.

In the case of the Nicaraguan intervention, suspicion of our aims has been heightened by the action of the State Department in recognizing Diaz, a protege of this country, instead of Sacasa, whom many Latins believe to have had a better title to the presidency, and by the widespread impression that our ulterior motive was to protect American bankers' investments.

Critics of our policy as applied to Nicaragua declare that there was no occasion for going in there at all, but that if we were determined to go in, we ought to have been careful to back the right man.

EXAMINATIONS FOR FIRST-CLASS SCOUTS

Boards of Review to Hold Sessions for Four St. Louis Districts.

Official functions of the St. Louis Boy Scout Boards of Review, bodies formed in accordance with a recent ruling by the national council of the organization to test all Boy Scout applications for the merit badges or the First-Class rank, will be inaugurated tomorrow evening, when the examiners for the South District of the city convene at the Rose Fanning School.

The Boards of Review, one for each of the four districts of the St. Louis council, were formed with the idea of making certain that all Scouts applying for the higher rank badges were sufficiently well versed in all the requirements to be entitled to them.

Heretofore the examinations for the merit badges have been conducted by official merit badge examiners, appointed by the local headquarters because of their recognized pre-eminence in the specified subject. First-class candidates ordinarily were tested by their scoutmaster, whose standards on tests, while sincere, might differ considerably from the standards of another leader.

First-class and merit badges are awarded at district courts of honer held at stated times throughout the winter in each district. The next courts, for south, north, suburban and west, respectively, will convene Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1 and 2, making it necessary that candidates appear before their Board of Review some time this month.

While officially for South District scouts, the Board tomorrow evening will examine scouts from other districts who have notified headquarters to file their application in that district. It is possible, but not encouraged, for a scout to appear before his own district board without first filing application, providing he brings with him all necessary information and proof that he is entitled to the examination.

Boards of the other three districts will meet on successive nights, beginning Tuesday with the North District, at the Farragut School. The Suburban District tests will be given at the Webster Groves High School Wednesday, and those of the West District at the Clark School Thursday. In each case these boards will also accommodate scouts from other districts who have filed the proper application.

News of Boy Scouts

Headquarters.

The sixth meeting of the St. Louis Scoutmasters' Training Course will be held tomorrow evening at the Sheldon Memorial, Washington boulevard just west of Grand. The outdoor hike, a part of the course, will be held over the week-end of Jan. 21 and 22.

The new and revised merit badge examiners' lists for the coming year are ready for distribution to every scoutmaster. Additional copies may be obtained by any registered scout or official at local headquarters for 5 cents each.

Although but one week old, the Campers' Saving Club already has a membership of more than 100 members, headquarters reports. The club is formed each year to enable scouts to save toward their fee for a section at Camp Irondale during the summer. One of its privileges is that the members save $1 of the fee.

North District.

Troop 29 of the Benton School has started a lean-to. The scouts work at it on Saturdays and have it just about completed. At the meeting last Friday night a number of different tests were passed and the scouts gave a demonstration of scout work before the Father's Club of the Benton School.

Troop 3, meeting at the Grace Holy Cross Church, reorganized its patrols and elected as patrol leaders Scouts Jewett Lewis and Albert Sempko. Several tests were passed by the members and three new boys made application for membership. Scout E. C. Stone has passed the 21 merit badges required for Eagle Scout, being the first scout of this troop to reach this rank. The troop is on a hike to Kenwood Springs today. A program of instruction, test passing and games had been arranged.

Troop 147 of the Northwest Christian Church has had a membership increase during the past month of four scouts. The troop is planning a Parents' and Friends' Night for Feb. 21. Everyone is welcome to come. They also have planned a cable tramway for the coming scout circus. At the last meeting the Wolf patrol won the contest award ribbon from the Eagles. Assistant Field Executive Hoell was present and gave suggestions for preparing troop meeting programs to make them more interesting.

Troop 206 of the Ames School, having two overloaded patrols, found it necessary to start a new one and as many of the scouts have bicycles, they decided to form a cycling patrol. Scout Herbert Herzog was elected patrol leader and Scout Frank Miller his assistant patrol leader. The three patrol leaders presented the following committeemen their committee pins: Chairman Charles Knollman, Harry Brueggeman, Edward Godt and William Jutze. The committeemen, in turn, gave each scout his registration card. Scoutmaster Hancock of Troop 72 attended the meeting and gave the scouts a few pointers on test passing. Three new scouts, William Morris, Arthur Flint and Robert Lender, received tenderfoot badges. Scout Frank Miller completed his first-class tests at the last meeting and Scout Ellis passed first-class savings. The couts are on a hike to Cliff Cave today; test passing is the main feature of this hike.

Troop 92 of the Cupples School had as a visitor and speaker at their meeting last Friday night Dr. Kruse, first-aid lecturer of the Police Department of St. Louis, who gave a talk on fractures, hemorrhages and remedies for hemorrhages. Twenty-five scouts were present. This troop meets every Friday night at 7:30 and all visitors are welcome.

Troop 83, meeting at the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, held a special flag ceremony at their meeting last Monday night. In the absence of Scoutmaster Schroeder, Don Oppel from Scout Headquarters conducted the meeting. Fourteen scouts, six recruits and two visitors were present. A knot-tying contest was held between the patrols, the members of the winning patrol each receiving a scout diary.

Troop 33, meeting at the St. Peter's Evangelical Church, held a number of contests at their annual Christmas party during the holidays. Patrol 6 won the prize for stunts between the patrol and Scout Hillard Vahle won a book, "The Lone Scout of the Sky," by James E. West. Patrol 5 won a patrol first-aid kit and Scout Jack McGregor won a scout knife. Scoutmaster Connell announced the plans for a contest that is starting in this troop which will continue on for several months.

Troop 122 of the Sherman Park Community Center was given a party during the holidays by the troop Mother's Club. Father Cassidy of the Blessed Sacrament was present and spoke to the scouts. Life Scout Hugh Hannah was made junior assistant scoutmaster at the last meeting. The Mother's Club is also planning a social to be held next month. The weekly meeting of the class merit club was held Monday night.

Troop 72 of the Neighborhood House had 10 scouts of the Flying B present on a hike to Scudder road last Sunday. Three tests were passed during the last week by Scout Charles Baker: Safety, tracking and knife and hatchet. Scout Edward Smith passed safety, tracking and fire building. Scout Marshall Wright passed tracking. Scout Bob Hubbard passed judging. Scout Chester Anderson passed tracking and Scout Cosimo Catanzaro passed first-class cooking. Patrol Leader Gorman Bartoy is leaving for North Dakota. Scout Boyce Futhy is new junior assistant scoutmaster of the troop.

Troop 88 of the Salem Evangelical Church presented Scoutmaster Samuel Bull with a Boy Scout statuette for Christmas. He wishes to take this opportunity to thank them all for this remembrance.

South District.

Troop 34 of the Shenandoah is on a hike to Dillon's Farm today. The main feature of this hike will be the passing of outdoor tests, including cooking, fire-building, scout pace, tracking and signaling. Twenty-five scouts are scheduled to go.

Troop 160 meeting at the Immanuel Methodist Church South, performed a good turn last Saturday by assisting in the moving of articles and furniture from the old building to the new church. They also built a temporary walk around the new building. This troop has been making progress in scouting during the past months under the leadership of Scoutmaster Turk.

Troop 152, meeting at the B'nai El Temple, organized a new patrol, the Beavers, under Scout Willard Myers as patrol leader. This patrol is publishing a paper called The Beavers.

Troop 157, meeting at the Advent United Lutheran Church, is holding a Father and Sons' banquet on Jan. 18. The scouts are all busy making plans for a scout exhibit of handicraft and patrol projects. Former Scout Deputy Commissioner W. J. See is scheduled to make the address of the evening.

Troop 224 of the Nazareth Evangelical Church held an investiture ceremony last Wednesday night. The troop committee presented the troop with a troop flag. District Deputy Commissioner F. M. Underwood presented the troop charter and spoke on the idea of scouting in the community. Motion pictures of the scout circus were shown, after which refreshments were served.

Troop 158, meeting at the Holy Innocents School, formed new patrols and elected patrol leaders to serve for three months, at the last meeting. The Rattlesnake Patrol started off by winning the first scout game from the Flying Eagles and have received a patrol chest for their private records and patrol flags. Chairman of the troop committee T. M. Foley gave a brief talk to the boys and Father McAtee offered a prize for the scout bringing in the most members in the next three months.

Troop 214, meeting at the Fremont School, last Tuesday, assisted the G. A. R. in presenting the Fremont Patrons' Association with a 5x8 all-wool bunting flag and staff. After the sounding of the bugle by Troop Bugler Wippler, the flag was brought in by the troop color bearer and guard, followed by the ladies' auxiliary of William McKinley Post No. 18, escorted by a patrol of scouts which also led in the pledge of allegiance. After the ceremony was over, the scouts acted as waiters and served lunch.

Girl Scout Notes

Girl Scouts of St Louis will have the opportunity of enrolling in proficiency badge classes which have been arranged for them by the Standards Committee of the Girl Scout Council, of which Mrs D. K. Rose is chairman. Courses will be given in cooking, child care, home nursing, first aid and life saving. All registered Girl Scouts are eligible.

The cooking class held its first meeting yesterday morning in the demonstration room of the Laclede Gas Co. This course of 12 meetings, held every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, will be given until March 31. Miss Helen Wethrell, director of the home service department, will conduct the course.

The course in child care will consist of eight meetings, beginning Thursday at 4:15 p. m., at the Barnes Nurses' Home, 416 South Kingshighway, and continuing every Thursday until March 8. The instructor is Miss Gladys Davies of Barnes Hospital. In addition to the course, the requirements of the Girl Scout badge for child care ask practical care of a little child, less than 2 years old, during a period of three months for a time equivalent to two hours daily for four weeks. The written statement from the mother of the child is to be sent to Girl Scout headquarters of St. Louis.

The first aid class, which is limited to second class Girl Scouts, 14 years old or over, will meet for eight lessons beginning tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. at the Jewish Hospital, 216 South Kingshighway. Dr. George E. Joseph will instruct this advanced group, which will meet until March 5.

Girl Scouts who are good swimmers and who are at least 12 years old are eligible to join the life-saving class, given at the Town Club, 1120 Locust street, by Miss Caroline Feuerbacher. The first meeting will be held Saturday morning from 11 to 12 o'clock. Members will bring towels, caps and 10 cents to each meeting. Suits will be furnished.

Early in February a class in home nursing of eight lessons will be given to registered Girl Scouts who are 13 years old or over, by Miss Elsie Gray of Barnes Hospital. This class will meet at 4:15 p. m. on a day to be announced later, and will be held at Barnes Nurses' Home, 416 South Kingshighway.

Mrs. Guy Oliver is commissioner of the Girl Scouts of St. Louis, and Miss Ruth Sampson is director.

ANOTHER SLEEPLESS NIGHT

You go to bed dog-tired but still no sleep, no real rest. Morning finds you a rag. One of the first effects of a poisoned system is "nerves"—restless, sleepless nights. The whole thing is traceable to our modern habits of life which put too great a burden on our vital organs, especially the liver.

The liver becoming "dead" or sluggish fails to remove the toxic poisons from the blood, which then poisons the system, weakening stomach, kidneys and heart, causing high blood pressure and undermining health in general.

It is universally recognized that occasionally the liver needs a little help. Nothing is better for this, say medical men, than ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few bring new days.

PLANE CURES WHOOPING COUGH

German Physician Tells of Experiment With Two Children.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Air flights are likely to become the prescribed treatment for whooping cough if the cures in the air recorded by Dr. A. Kettner in the Medizinische Welt are repeated frequently.

The cases of hooping cough in question concerned two sisters, 7 and 9 years old, respectively, whose father is the owner of an airplane. After consulting Dr. Kettner, the attending physicion, the father took to the air with his little girls, ascending to an altitude of 3000 meters. The experiment was repeated in a few days. The first flight had sufficed to cure the two girls completely, whereas their younger sister, 1 year old, who was suffering from the same malady but who was not taken along on the aerial trip, could be cured only after long and tedious treatment with repeated injections.

NEGRO IN INDUSTRY WEEK

"Negro in Industry Week," which will be observed commencing today, has as its aim the improvement of the industrial conditions of Negroes in St. Louis.

Lonsdale to Address Doctors.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

What you need to bring yourself back to health is a real stomach corrective like Tanlac.

If You Are Nervous, Weak, Run-Down from Stomach Trouble, Just Try Tanlac!

To have plenty of "pep" and ambition, and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year-old" at night, you must eat three good meals a day, relish your food, and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just take a teaspoonful of Tanlac after meals.

Tanlac is a wonderful relief for gas, pains in the stomach and bowels, constipation and nausea. It helps you digest your food, gain strength and weight. It contains no mineral drugs. It is made of roots, barks and herbs—nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist and begin to take it right away. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Read What Other Sufferers Say About Tanlac:

Mr. T. H. Bayes, 624 College St., Springfield, Mo.: "After everything had failed us, along came Tanlac and easily and quickly ended 20 years' stomach suffering for my wife. She eats everything now—from sausage to sauerkraut. She has gained 21 pounds and has plenty of vim and energy."

Mr. Herbert Jones of 202 London Av., Lexington, Ky.: "I suffered constantly from bad headaches, constipation and rheumatism, I was losing weight and sleeping poorly. After taking Tanlac two weeks I felt better than in months! Now I can do a full day's work with greatest ease."

Mrs. J. M. Roath of 1200 W. 14th St., Sedalia, Mo.: "For 15 years I suffered from stomach trouble: also constipation, dizzy spells and nervous headaches. After two bottles of Tanlac I ate more and enjoyed my food. It relieved me of the headaches and sleeplessness and I gained weight."

NEW MOTOR HIGHWAY OPENED IN VIRGINIA

Important Link in U. S. No. 1, 215 Miles Long, Permits Short Route to South.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14.—Virginia has just thrown open to the motorist a new hard-surfaced highway, by far the shortest route to the South. Its total length across the Old Dominion is less than 215 miles, and with the exception of possibly five miles of bridge approaches and a five-mile piece of macadam in excellent repair the entire road is concrete construction. It is an important link in National Highway No. 1, and leaves only 1 per cent of this route yet incomplete for its entire length from Maine to Florida.

Beginning at Washington, the road runs through Alexandria, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg and South Hill to the North Carolina line, where it connects with a completed concrete highway to Raleigh. It is of peculiar interest to the student of Colonial history and to the visitor interested in Civil War battlefields.

It might almost be called a Masonic highway, for on it are four of the greatest Masonic shrines in America. By its side lies buried the first suffragist in American history. Near it are the homes of many Presidents of the United States. America's first millionaire reposes by it.

To the student of early American architecture it holds an unsurpassed interest, for near it are many of the finest old homes yet remaining from Colonial days. Along its predecessors as a highway trod "the tongue, the pen and the sword of Republic," Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and George Washington.

An interesting tour to the birthplace of Presidents Washington, Monroe and Madison is possible in a day by leaving the main highway here. One of America's most historic homes, in which were born Richard Henry Lee, who introduced the Declaration of Independence in the Continental Congress; Light Horse Harry Lee, Washington's favorite general, and Robert E. Lee, military leader of the Confederacy, can also be seen on this side trip.

Richmond is the key by which Virginia's historic peninsula, where are located Jamestown, Yorktown and Williamsburg, can be reached. Here in a day can be visited the ruins of the first permanent English settlement in America, the town where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington and the French, and Williamsburg, a town still so Colonial in nature that the visitor has only to close his eyes to live again in the days of '76.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14.—Virginia has just thrown open to the motorist a new hard-surfaced highway, by far the shortest route to the South. Its total length across the Old Dominion is less than 215 miles, and with the exception of possibly five miles of bridge approaches and a five-mile piece of macadam in excellent repair the entire road is concrete construction. It is an important link in National Highway No. 1, and leaves only 1 per cent of this route yet incomplete for its entire length from Maine to Florida.

Beginning at Washington, the road runs through Alexandria, Fredericksburg, Richmond, Petersburg and South Hill to the North Carolina line, where it connects with a completed concrete highway to Raleigh. It is of peculiar interest to the student of Colonial history and to the visitor interested in Civil War battlefields.

It might almost be called a Masonic highway, for on it are four of the greatest Masonic shrines in America. By its side lies buried the first suffragist in American history. Near it are the homes of many Presidents of the United States. America's first millionaire reposes by it.

To the student of early American architecture it holds an unsurpassed interest, for near it are many of the finest old homes yet remaining from Colonial days. Along its predecessors as a highway trod "the tongue, the pen and the sword of Republic," Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and George Washington.

An interesting tour to the birthplace of Presidents Washington, Monroe and Madison is possible in a day by leaving the main highway here. One of America's most historic homes, in which were born Richard Henry Lee, who introduced the Declaration of Independence in the Continental Congress; Light Horse Harry Lee, Washington's favorite general, and Robert E. Lee, military leader of the Confederacy, can also be seen on this side trip.

Richmond is the key by which Virginia's historic peninsula, where are located Jamestown, Yorktown and Williamsburg, can be reached. Here in a day can be visited the ruins of the first permanent English settlement in America, the town where Cornwallis surrendered to Washington and the French, and Williamsburg, a town still so Colonial in nature that the visitor has only to close his eyes to live again in the days of '76.

OLD SPANISH TRAIL FINISHED ACROSS U. S.

Over $70,000,000 Spent on Borderland Route From St. Augustine to San Diego.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14. — With the opening of the new $5,500,000 causeway across Lake Ponchartrain near here late this month, and completion in February of two other bridges in Mississippi the Old Spanish Trail, from St. Augustine, Fla., to San Diego, Cal.—except for two ferries, the Mississippi River at New Orleans and Berwick Bay at Morgan City, La.—will be an all-weather highway through the southern borderland country of the United States.

Twelve years have been spent in completing this highway. During this period over $70,000,000 have been put into construction of concrete and gravel roads and bridges across bayous and rivers. Half of the 3300 miles comprising this highway have been concreted and the expenditure of an additional $50,000,000 is to be made in the next few years on more paving and on improvements.

The Old Spanish Trail now connects by good roads St. Augustine, Jacksonville, Pensacola, Mobile, the Mississippi Coast cities, New Orleans, Beaumont, Houston, San Antonio, the West Texas Hill Country, El Paso, Las Cruces, Douglas, Bisbee, Tucson, Phoenix, the Salt River Valley, Yuma, the Imperial Valley, and San Diego, localities that are today fostering the greatest resort and development works on the continent.

Additional announcement is that all-year bus service will prevail before spring from St. Augustine to San Diego. Only one or two short links remain to be connected. "Old Spanish Trail Parlor Car Service" between St. Augustine and San Diego is planned, the several bus companies arranging connections, lunch and hotel stops and standard service. Through tickets with stop over privileges will be arranged. The Old Spanish Trail travelogs will be supplied. These are a catalog of information and of old history and of golf and sporting facilities.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Distinguished by having the first accident in one of the new Fords, Edward Price, 25, of Everett, Mass., is a hero today in his home town.

Price was driving his new coupe along the highway through Norwalk, Conn., when a passing car abruptly cut in on him and forced him off the road on a hill. His car crashed into a pole and Price was hurled forward, his head striking the windshield.

Daytona Speed Trials To Be Held in February

World's Racing Stars Entered and 225 M. P. H. Runs Are Talked About—Segrave's 203.79 M. P. H. Record at Stake

BY ROBERT HENRY HALL,
Auto Editor.

Nine days in February—from the fifteenth to twenty-third inclusive—will witness the holding of the International speed trials on the famous Ormond-Daytona beach of American and European cars which are to make an effort to better the world's straightaway speed record of 203.79 m. p. h. established by the British ace, Maj. H. O. D. Seagrave, on the beach last March with his 1000 h. p. Sunbeam "Mystery S."

The cream of the world's racing stars are entered and speeds up to 225 m. p. h. are being talked about.

Some Cars Entered.

Racers and their backers have gone to extremes in an effort to assure success. Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British ace, secured permission of the British Air Ministry—as exclusively stated in these columns a month ago—to use one of its secretly-built 450 h. p. Napier engines such as powered the winning planes in the British Schneider air cup race in 1927. J. M. White, Philadelphia automobile accessory manufacturer, is completing a 36-cylinder, 1500 h. p. three-motor monster weighing four tons, and Frank Lockhart, the American speed king, has put the finishing touches on a car unique in that it is the smallest car powered by the smallest engine ever used in a so-called "speed-monster" race.

White will not drive his "giant;" that, it is understood, is to be left to some prominent American driver. Rumor recently had it that Ralph de Palma was interested. Other names as prominent have been linked with the White car.

Assurance of a French entry comes from H. Dependin, French winner of the 1927 Grand Prix of Spain, who has wired the trials committee that he will bring a car over. Dependin neglected to describe his car, and the reason is obvious.

About Lockhart's Car.

Now about Lockhart's car, which, incidentally, is causing tremendous comment. The American ace designed it in conjunction with the Stutz Motor Car Co., and so sparely as to cause the automotive world to wonder whether the young American speed king knows what he is doing.

His car is only 16 feet long, rises 36 inches above the ground, has 16 cylinders and will develop less than half the horsepower of Segrave's Sunbeam car. Also it has only one-fifth of that car's cubic inch piston displacement. Its weight is less than one and a half tons, a figure well to compare with the gross weight of the Sunbeam—four tons—and White's Triplex 36-cylinder job, also weighing approximately four tons.

The point, however, is that Lockhart does know what he is about. Aside from being a peerless driver he is also an expert mechanician and automotive engineer. Already he has proved that he can get more miles per hour out of a small car than any man in the world. Under A. A. A. supervision, he holds numerous records with 91½-inch cars designed and built by himself, once going as fast as 171 miles per hour—a world's record for a car of the size.

Not Freaks.

Lockhart's small cars are not freaks, either. They have in them the same component parts of a standard passenger car, including four-wheel brakes, three-speed transmission, worm-driven rear axle and clutch.

What his new car will do in the tryouts is still a matter of speculation. One even awaits with anticipation the announcement of what the "monsters" will do in the trials. But it will have to be tremendous. Segrave's Sunbeam did this: 73 m. p. h. in low gear, 142 m. p. h. in second, where high gear was entered. And at 170 m. p. h. Segrave gave his car the "gun" and it hurtled ahead with increasing speed until the maximum of 207 m. p. h. one way for the single mile was reached.

Generally, automotive engineers are inclined to admit that the heavier, more powerful cars en-

REPEAL OF RAILROAD CROSSING LAW SOUGHT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Widespread disapproval on the part of the motorists everywhere at the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court placing upon the motorist full responsibility in crossing a railroad track was crystalized here this week when steps were taken to have the law, as laid down by the Supreme Court, changed.

This was done in a bill introduced in the House by Congressman Frank Murphy of Ohio, the purpose of which would be to shift a part of the responsibility to the railroads, which the Supreme Court's decision places upon the motorist.

Under the Court's decision, rendered by Justice Holmes, a motorist in crossing a railroad track at a blind crossing, must assume full responsibility and must not only stop, look and listen, but under the rule laid down by the court must, if necessary, get out of his car and go onto the track to make certain that a train is not approaching.

The Murphy bill, H. R. 7901, provides that a Federal Court, in such a case, must not adopt a rule contrary to the laws of the State, territory or place where the accident occurred, its effect being to require the railroad to bear such responsibility at blind crossings as the State imposes upon them.

Many State Parks.

Upwards of 550 State parks or similar areas are now reserved in 43 states in the Union for motor tourists. The recreation grounds and motor camps have a total area exceeding 2,500,000 acres.

"I'll give $2,500 cash
To drive this new Hupmobile away"

Insistent buyer offers large premium for the Six of the Century

In the earliest days of the automobile people booked their orders in advance. They willingly lined up and awaited delivery.

Such things never happened again until the New Hupmobile Six came to startle and delight a motor-sophisticated world.

People are actually standing in line to buy the car that public acclaim has christened The Six of the Century. More than that—they are making amazing proposals to hasten delivery.

A man walked into a Hupmobile dealer's salesroom and offered $2,500 cash to drive away the new model on display.

Hundreds of dollars extra offered for immediate delivery.

Strange things like this, scores of them, are happening throughout the country. There has never been anything quite so astonishing, quite so exciting in motor car history.

It is hard for the public to believe that so beautiful, so capable, so complete a car does not cost well beyond $2,000—which will surely be your re-action as soon as you see The Six of the Century.

24 Standard and Custom-equipped body styles, $1345 to $1555 f.o.b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

NEW ONE-TON REO SPEEDWAGON HERE

Small Model on 125-Inch Chassis Completes Line of Fast Delivery Trucks.

Completing its line of speed wagons, the St. Louis Reo Co., has on exhibition at its sales rooms here its latest model, the Speedwagon "Tonner" with 125-inch wheelbase, designed for delivery of pay loads ranging from three-quarters of a ton to one ton. The new model Speed Wagon has a high compression, turbulence type head, six-cylinder engine and four-wheel internal hydraulic brakes with master cylinder, which automatically maintains the liquid in the lines. Steering is of the irreversible type.

Lubrication of the chassis is provided by Meyer magazine oilers at spring shackles and steering pivots. These oilers include a reservoir which is filed at intervals and from which oil is fed by means of a wick to the surface of spring shackle bolts and bushings. Another lubrication feature is found in the universal joints, each of which contains an oil reservoir.

The engine is incorporated in a unit power plant with single plate clutch and three-speed transmission and is supported at four points, the forward end being rubber cushioned, with bore of 3¼ inches and a stroke of four inches, the N. A. C. C. rating is 25.2 horsepower, and the piston displacement 199 cubic inches. The engine is of the L-head type.

The camshaft is supported in four bearings and is driven by means of a 1¼-inch silent chain.

Oil under pressure is forced by a gear-type pump to the main, connecting rod and camshaft bearings, while spray from the connecting rod bearings lubricates the pistons and cylinder walls. The fuel system includes a 1¼-inch Schebler carburetor of the automatic air valve type, which receives fuel from a vacuum tank mounted on the dash.

The front axle is a one-piece I-beam forging, using tapered roller bearings at the wheels. A tubular propeller shaft transmits the drive to a semi-floating rear axle. The differential pinion and gear are of the spiral bevel type and have a ratio of 4.7 to 1.

The new series of Speed Wagons ranges from the Speed Wagon Junior, a half-ton panel model, up to the three-ton heavy duty Speed Wagon. Intermediate models include the standard Speed Wagon, designed for loads up to one and a half tons, and the Master Speed Wagon for loads up to two tons.

Sweeping Change in Body Designs Chief Feature of New York Show

Ultra Streamlined Exteriors the Rule—Mechanical Refinements Confined Chiefly to Speed-Increasing Fitments Such as Dual Carburetion Systems and High Compression Heads.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Any idea that popular interest in the national automobile shows is waning, has been wholly dispelled by the attendance at the New York exhibition, which closes tonight, where all records at the Grand Central Palace have been broken. And not only have the crowds thronged the building from morning till night, but exhibitors report unprecedented interest on the part of the crowds and a very satisfactory evidence of that interest in the number of actual orders taken.

While the 1928 show revealed little in change of motor design or principle, aside from the adoption, in many cases, of speed-increasing fitments such as dual carburetion systems and high compression heads, the striking feature was the at times radical change of body design attending both new and established makes of cars. Cars are lower, more closely streamlined and a great many are longer in chassis and body.

Lower Prices Prevail.

Custom-built cars exhibit a completeness of artistic beauty hitherto unknown, even though lower prices generally prevail. The trend seems to be toward quantity production on a quality basis.

In general design, the trend is seen ot be toward a car that is lower and wider, more easy to enter and more roomy inside. Emphasis has been placed on safety, with generally lowered center of gravity and the universal acceptance of four-wheel brake equipment. Luxury of appointment has been brought to a high point and beauty of finish has reached new ideals.

A summary of the interesting features of the various lines is given below, with the makes arranged in alphabetical order for easy reference:

The Auburn Co. presents three new chasses, two straight eights and a six, with more attractive body lines and some important mechanical features, including Lockheed internal hydraulic brakes with automatic supply tank, integral with the master cylinder; Bijur central lubricating system for the chassis and also the clutch, plump and fan bearings; Nelson-Bohalite aluminum, alloy pistons with invar struts and duraluminum connecting rods.

Two radically new body models are the phaeton sedan and the speedster, the former being a five-passenger, open car which may be quickly converted into a closed car. The speedster has a boat-shaped body with unusually attractive lines. These bodies are fitted to both eight-cylinder chasses.

Better Buick.

The Buick line, which was announced last summer, is shown with some beautifully colored body models. Buick features include greater power, improved engine smoothness and excellent riding quality due to the use of flexible springs with Lovejoy hydraulic absorbers. A particular fine job line and color harmony is noted on the Buick models.

The Cadillac and La Salle lines are seen with some unusually attractive bodies in special color combinations. Since both lines were announced some months ago, it is not necessary to summarize their features, but it is to be noted that the La Salle is now built with a wheelbase of 134 inches in addition to the wheelbase of 125 inches, the larger being used for mounting a seven-passenger sedan and a five-passenger imperial sedan. The sedans are convertible into limousines, since they have a glass partition between front and rear compartments which may be raised or lowered. Upholstery is finest mohair with the option of Bedford cord. Leather is also optional in the front compartment.

Vacuum Booster Brake Used.

Chandler has sprung a sensation in being the first to adopt a vacuum booster brake for actuating the braking mechanism. The booster consists of a piston and cylinder, with the piston connected to the mechanical brake linkage, while the control valves are operated by depression of the brake pedal, engine vacuum providing ample power for moving the piston. The result is that only a fraction of normal pedal pressure is required to operate the brakes. This system is made by Westinghouse.

All four Chrysler models—the 52, 62, 72 and 80—have been revised during the last year and the last one to be announced, the Chrysler Imperial 80, is shown with some attractive custom bodies, in addition to a pleasing line of standard bodies. Features of this Chrysler include new Lockheed hydraulic internal brakes and an engine of one-eighth inch greater bore which develops 112-horsepower, the greater bore not only giving improved acceleration and hill-climbing ability, but also a much higher maximum speed. Increased power is also due to the adoption of the Chrysler Red Head with 6 to 1 compression ratio as standard.

A new line of popular priced six-cylinder cars in three chassis sizes, 107-inch wheelbase, 110-inch wheelbase and 119-inch wheelbase, is offered by the Durant Motors, Inc. In these cars a special radiator design is emphasized. The body lines are suggestive of grace and power.

The American Erskine is an enlarged edition of the 1927 Erskine and is introduced in three body styles, a two-door, five-passenger club sedan, a four-door sedan and a Royal sedan, a de luxe model. The engine has one-eighth of an inch more bore, the body lines are much more attractive and the bodies are as roomy and comfortable as can be desired.

New Franklin Bodies.

Franklin is exhibiting some additional bodies on the Airman chassis, including a five-passenger Victoria brougham, a three-passenger coupe, and four custom bodies by Willoughby, Dietrich and Holbrook, including a convertible sedan. Another Dietrich body has an enclosed drive cabriolet with folding top. The Willoughby town car has disappearing windows in the front compartment. Three de luxe models include a sport sedan, a convertible sedan and a special five-passenger sedan with wire wheels, special upholstery and other features.

For 1928 the Gardner line consists of three eighths, series 75, 85 and 95, and includes 15 custom designed body styles in 50 color combinations. New mechanical features include a dual intake manifold and dual carburetor on the eighths, Nelson bohnalite pistons, duraluminum connecting rods, air cleaner, oil filter and gasoline strainer. All chasses are equipped with an automatic centralized system of lubrication and internal hydraulic four-wheel brakes.

New Hupp Eight.

Two new Hupmobiles are seen—a six and an eight. Body lines on both are very stylish, beginning with a high radiator of smart contour, fully crowned, sweeping fenders and attractive lamps. Both six and eight engines must be considered as new designs, although basically similar to those formerly used. Greater power, acceleration and speed are features. Both cars are equipped with the new Midland Steeldraulic internal mechanical brakes which give unusual stopping ability with light pedal pressure. Handsome colors and fine upholstery and interior furnishings distinguish both models.

The Jordan Air Line eight is an interesting new model. It develops 33 per cent more power than the previous model; therefore, it is equipped with the moderate gear ratio of 4.09 to 1, which permits a relatively slow and very smooth-running engine, and yet even with this gear ratio the increased power is sufficient to endow the car with great acceleration and a high maximum speed. The same model fitted with a 4.45 to 1 gear ratio is an exceptional hill-climbing model. The body lines are distinctive and attractive and so are the colors, while the riding quality is exceptionally good.

Smaller Kissel Eight Shown.

In addition to the small six and the de luxe eights, Kissel is showing a smaller Kissel eight with a four-door brougham body. Other body types will be available soon. It has the Kissel model 8-80 engine, 2⅞ by 4¾, with such features as Lynite connecting rods, thermostatic water control, air cleaner, oil filter and gasoline filter. The wheelbase is 125 inches and the major units are cushioned in rubber, including the engine and springs. Lockheed hydraulic brakes and Ilco-Ryan headlights are features.

The Lincoln is seen with a number of improvements, including a more powerful engine with a ⅛-inch larger bore. During the last year it has been equipped with mechanical four-wheel brakes, internal front and rear, with the parking brake operating on separate external bands.

Two new Marmon eights are on display, the leader of the line being a 72-horsepower model, with 114-inch wheelbase and roomy bodies. A larger model has an 86-horsepower engine and a wheelbase of 120 inches. Speed, acceleration and riding quality are emphasized features of both chasses. Bodies have distinctive lines and coloring. The color harmony between the brown and tan upholstery and the bronze hardware used on the larger model is particularly noteworthy. The larger eight has overhead valves, while the smaller has the L-head construction. Typical Marmon features, such as mechanical four-wheel brakes and springs mounted in rubber shock insulators, are continued.

The Moon line for 1928 consists of two improved sixes and a new eight with pleasing lines and a smooth, powerful engine.

Nash Shows Vestibule Sedan.

In addition to its line of three improved chasses announced some time ago for 1928, Nash is exhibiting pleasing new body models, including a new advanced six vestibule sedan, a 7-passenger model with a glass-inclosed front compartment. It is known as the Imperial Sedan and is designed to meet the demand for a chauffeur-driven car in the Nash price class. The glass partition which divides the driver's compartment from the passenger compartment is made in two sections which slide horizontally. It is mounted on the 127-inch wheelbase chassis and interior appointments include Chase mohair

AUTO SHOWS AID IN BOOSTING PRODUCTIO

Retail Sales Slow but Whole saling Continues to Climb Sharply.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 14.—Pa senger car production again show an increase over the precedin week as manufacturers bri out new models and lines get in more intensive production. Fair high schedules will be maint throughout the month, acco to B. H. Cram, president of Cra Automotive Reports.

Sales of passenger cars in gen eral remain very slow. Wholesa business, of course, is the prese outstanding feature. In one or tw instances where the new lines hav already been placed on exhibitio by the dealer organizations, sale have shown a sharp increase. How ever, it is not expected that th upward movement will chara ize the industry until after th New York show.

The tire industry continues a top speed for this time of the year and plans are being made to hol to high schedules for the next 6 days.

Manufacturers are now shippin under spring dating orders so tha dealers will be well stocked for th spring business. Retail demand i holding up well for January.

Truck and bus production, whil up slightly over week ago, is stil at low level.

Sales are also slow in most part of the country. Little improve ment is looked for during the nex 30 days.

Sales in this branch of the in dustry are also good.

NOTABLE DETAILS OF NEW MODELS

The New Hudson and Essex radiators are higher and narrower, and this modern effect is heightened by vertical radiator shutters—wide, heavily crowned fenders arch sweepingly outward, and the new type Colonial headlamps are mounted on brackets curving up from the fenders and braced by a nickeled cross bar. Saddle lamps of the same design are attached to the cowl by curving nickeled fixtures. A graceful, winged figure surmounts the radiator cap, completing a front ensemble that is delightfully smart, modern and spirited.

The instrument boards are finished in a polished ebony. Here are grouped ammeter, oil and gasoline gauges, speedometer and motometer, all indirectly lighted.

Electro-lock type of theft protection.

The handsome new type steering wheels are of black hard rubber with steel core, a type used in the most expensive cars. It carries light, throttle and horn controls.

The new upholstery is fine quality patterned velour in Essex and mohair in Hudson, gratifying and convincing to eye and touch. The deep seats are wider, higher-backed for comfort, and form-fitting.

The new steering gear is of worm and tooth disc type, easier to handle, and full-checking road shocks from reaching the hands—the type heretofore exclusive to costly car design.

The doors in standard models are wider for easy entry and exit, built of three sections of stamped steel, and silenced by felt and fibre board padding, muffling the sound of closing. Door openings are completely weatherstripped.

The new Hudson and Essex four-wheel brakes are of the Bendix type, used only on the finest of high-priced cars. They are self-energizing, the momentum of the car assisting their braking action, and fully protected from dirt and water.

All hardware is of the new Colonial pattern with soft brushed finish.

The rubber floor mat in the driving compartment lies over a silencing pad of cowhair which further assists the quiet operation characteristic of Hudson and Essex.

The Coach, through a patented front seat construction, is given practical four-door convenience, as passengers reach and leave rear seats, without front seat passengers alighting.

Interiors are longer and wider, giving additional seat and leg room, and ample head room.

Tire carriers are adjustable to permit trim fitting of the spare, with or without trunk.

Such equipment as windshield wiper, dome-light, tail light, etc., are, of course, standard equipment.

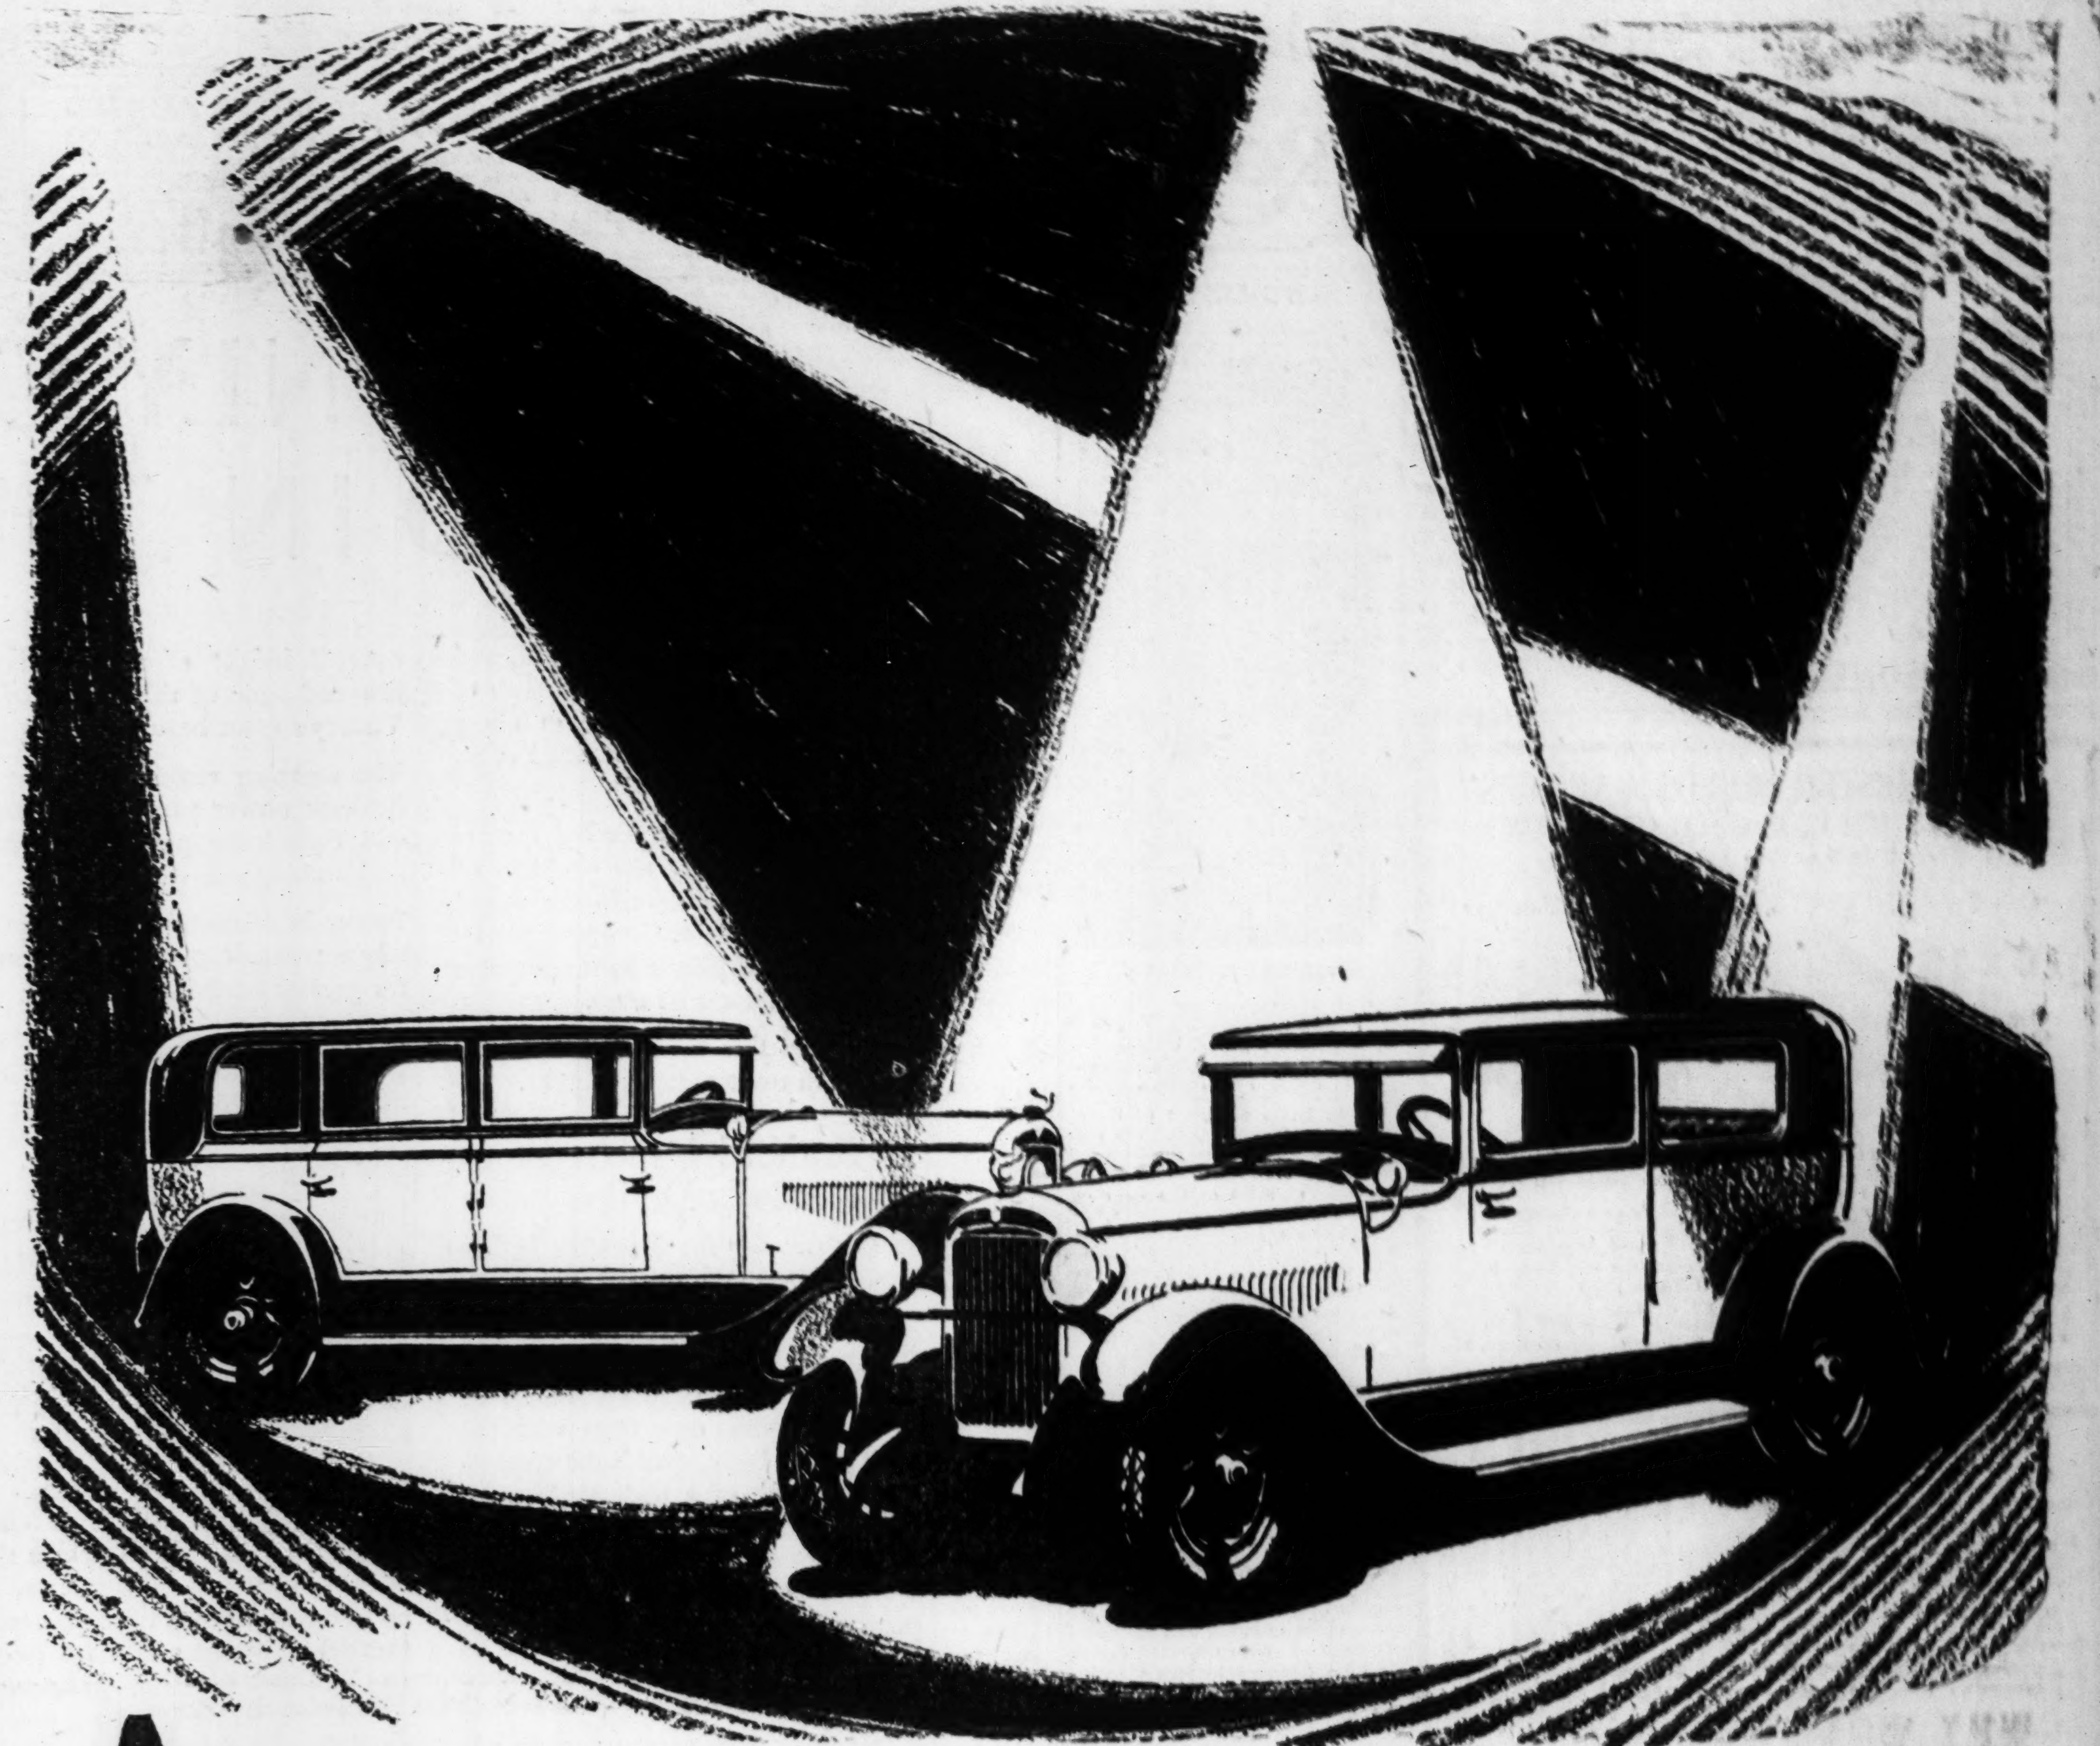
Buyers can pay for cars out of income at lowest available charge for interest, handling and insurance.



Again the stage belongs to HUDSON-ESSEX

In the most beautiful gathering of fine cars that the motor industry ever assembled at the New York Show, the new Hudson and Essex Super-Sixes stand vividly forth in the floodlight of popular interest and attention.

Again we hear: "It's a Hudson-Essex show." Again the press is thickest around the Hudson-Essex booth. Once more, when the industry's most notable advancements have been appraised, interest surges to these long time leaders in design, performance and value.

If you would know the outstanding attraction which has swept the New York Show, follow this alert and distinguished attendance.

As the Super-Sixes have achieved and led the mechanical possibilities of the day, so in these new models they achieve and lead a new mode in beauty and fine car appointment. They reflect tomorrow's vogue.

CHEVROLET 1927 OUTPUT WELL OVER MILLION UNITS

DETROIT, Jan. 14. — Having achieved world leadership in automobile manufacturing in 1927 with a yearly output nearly 2000 units in excess of its program of a million cars, the Chevrolet Motor Co. has embarked in 1928 upon the most ambitious production and sales plans in its entire 16 years of existence, according to W. S. Knudson, president and general manager.

Production for the year just ended totaled 1,001,834 units for a gain of more than 36 per cent over 732,147 cars and trucks built in 1926 and 93 per cent over the 1925 production of 519,060 units.

Production facilities have been augmented by the recent purchase of a $4,500,000 foundry at Saginaw, Michigan, and a new assembly plant which will get into production shortly at Atlanta, Ga., to supply the Southwest, and which will increase by 350 cars a day the volume of the other seven assembly plants now in operation in the United States.

BATTERY POWER—when you want it!

*—the result of Dehydro Plates, found only in CONTINENTALS

*Dehydro Plates are battery plates made additionally porous by our process of dehydration. This permits more rapid circulation and thus lessens strain on the active material within the battery. It means quick response—greater capacity—and longer life for the plates.

It takes more than an ordinary battery to give you power today, tomorrow, next week, next year! It takes a battery with extra capacity. And CONTINENTALS have extra capacity because of their *Dehydro Plates—an exclusive feature! Every CONTINENTAL is a heavy-duty battery, and there's one priced as low as $12.00 (Exchange Price). You can identify CONTINENTALS by the name on the container. See your nearest Continental Dealer today. Continental Battery Company, St. Louis.

Samuels expressed enthusiasm over the radical change in design and the many refinements of the new line. He stated the new models would be on display here for the first time during the coming St. Louis Auto Show.

THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD

The Victory Six has been called, and with due moderation, a triumph of engineering foresight, for in many basic features it is years ahead of its time.

And for numberless puzzled motorists it will simplify the problem of selection, for nowhere in the world is there a car like it. Greater expenditure will not duplicate it. It compares with no other car or class.

To possess this car's unique advantages you must possess this car.

A Radical Departure in Body Design

In this car, for the first time in history, the body sill is eliminated. Body and chassis are built as a single integral unit.

Thus, the wide, deep chassis frame of The Victory, now flush with the lines of the body, avoids the customary overhang of a wide body upon a narrow frame; and the chassis itself, rather than the body, supports all weight—body, floor, seats and passengers.

Amazing Results

The results of this construction are astonishing.

330 body parts are eliminated.

The all-important CENTER OF GRAVITY is materially lowered.

Without the slightest sacrifice of head-room or road-clearance, the over-all height of the car is also lowered—one of the secrets of The Victory's great beauty.

The amazing resources of the car's brilliant power plant are multiplied still further by perfect distribution and economy of weight.

Power in relation to load is materially increased—pick-up quickened—far greater flexibility achieved.

21 valid miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour is made possible FOR A SIX! Incredible smoothness at high speed is another great gift of this new design!

Startling as it may sound, smooth going AT 40 over rough cobble pavements is another!

Elimination of back-wheel "chatter" when the 4-wheel Lockheed Hydraulic brakes are quickly applied is still another!

And thanks to The Victory's low center of gravity and wide chassis frame, it is possible to turn a sharp corner with much greater safety. Swaying, skidding, tipping—each a factor of weight and its proper and improper placement—are reduced, by this design, to a new and negligible minimum.

Another New Safety Feature

Yet Dodge Brothers have taken a further revolutionary step to insure the safest motor transportation it is possible to create.

For the first time in automobile history, they have applied the so-called battleship construction to closed car design.

In other words, the body has a double steel shell, locked together, with an air space intervening—is actually TWO bodies, one within the other—yet lighter by 175 pounds—and the safest body known.

Snap a door shut and note the sound of non-metallic staunchness!

Only 8 Major Body Parts

Yet The Victory is amazingly simple in design throughout.

Splash shields are replaced by the deep, wide Victory chassis frame. Major body parts are reduced to 8—a single welded unit! Nothing to squeak or rattle. A silent body—staunch, safe, long and low.

A Car of Rare Beauty

In fact, the first and most striking thing you will notice about this car is the faultless beauty of its lines.

From end to end, not a broken panel to interrupt the eye. Color harmonies and interior appointments in exquisite taste. Deep, wide seats and extra leg-room—thanks to the new construction!

Wide, heavy-gauge one-piece fenders, drum-type head lamps, internal-expanding Lockheed Hydraulic brakes and many other advanced features.

Altogether, a charming study in fitness and fleetness—built, as every Dodge Brothers vehicle is built, to serve dependably for many years.

A new automobile so sensational as to electrify the nation! With marvelous new Fisher bodies offering all the distinction, beauty and luxury for which Fisher craftsmen are famous! With performance that is a revelation to owners of even higher priced cars! With 107-inch wheelbase—four inches longer than before! With four-wheel brakes—and many additional mechanical achievements!

And . . . prices that demonstrate again, Chevrolet's ability to provide the utmost in modern motoring luxury at the lowest possible cost!

Everywhere, this Bigger and Better Chevrolet is being hailed as the most notable achievement in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company. In advanced design as in brilliant styling, it marks an important epoch in automotive progress.

The engine is of improved valve-in-head design. Among the notable new engineering features it incorporates are alloy "invar strut" pistons . . . a distinctive feature on some of America's highest priced cars; specially designed hydro-laminated camshaft gears; mushroom type valve tappets; a crankcase breathing system; and a complete new steel motor enclosure!

The net result of these impressive engine advancements is a type of motor operation so thrilling that it must be experienced to be appreciated . . . marvelous smoothness . . . click-of-the-heel acceleration . . . and the ability to maintain 50, 55 and 60 miles an hour without the slightest sense of forcing or fatigue!

Coupled with this amazing engine performance is a type of riding and driving comfort almost unbelievable in a low-priced car. Four inches longer than the previous Chevrolet chassis . . . swung low to the road . . . and with four semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—84% of the wheelbase—the Bigger and Better Chevrolet holds the road with a surety that is simply amazing, and rides in perfect comfort at high speeds over the roughest stretches of highways.

And never before was a low-priced car so easy to drive—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout . . . even at the front axle knuckles.

All these spectacular new mechanical advancements are, of course, in addition to the notable features that Chevrolet has previously pioneered in the low-price field—such as banjo-type rear axle housing . . . modern semi-elliptic springs, set parallel to frame . . . water and oil pumps . . . Alemite pressure chassis lubrication . . . "VV" one-piece windshield . . . combination stop and tail light . . theft-proof steering and ignition lock . . . safety gasoline tank in rear, with Steward-Warner vacuum fuel feed . . . and the many others that comprise Chevrolet's famous list of quality features.

Come in and see this latest and greatest General Motors achievement. Study the grace and symmetry of the beautiful Fisher bodies—finished in alluring colors of genuine Duco. Inspect the entire chassis—and note the advanced modern engineering in every unit—the completeness of detail demanded in the world's finest motor cars. Go for a drive—as long as you like, and over roads of your own selection.

Then you'll know why this great new car is everywhere the subject of enthusiastic comment—why everywhere it is hailed as the world's most luxurious low-priced car.

130 PER CENT INCREASE OF AUTOS IN 10 YEARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Forty motor vehicles were registered in the United States in 1927 to every mile of improved highway of every type, figures compiled by the American Automobile Association show. The comparative figure for 1926 was 34 motor vehicles to every mile of improved road and in 1918 the comparative figure was 17 vehicles.

The increase during the 10-year period was 130 per cent, and with the maximum load on the improved highways in 1927, each car would have had space of only 44 yards in which to operate, as compared with 52 yards in 1926, and 103 yards in 1918.

The A. A. A. figures disclosing the gradual contraction of the available space for car operation on the improved highways of the country is based on the 1927 registration of 23,125,000 motor vehicles and a total of 575,000 miles of improved roads.

"The tremendous increase in the ratio of automobiles to the mileage of improved highways," said Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., "constitutes a situation on which national attention must be kept constantly focused if highway traffic is to move with a reasonable degree of dispatch and safety."

The A. A. A. executive declared that the time has come to bring more of the nation's secondary highways forward for the application of improvement programs to them as a means of increasing floor space and to relieve congestion on main highways.

DAYTONA SPEED TRIALS TO BE HELD IN FEBRUARY

tered in the trials will be able to do as good or even bettr than that, but the confounding question to them is: "Can the Lockhart-Stutz Special stand the gaff?"

Prediction by Duesenburg.

Fred S. Duesenburg, famous builder of Tommy Milton's racing vehicles, is not inclined to agree with other automotive experts. He recently predicted that Segrave's record would be broken within a year and by a modified stock car. He stated that there is now being tested a stock passenger car of ordinary piston displacement and weight which develops almost 400 h. p., the motor in its regular chassis being carefully streamlined. Duesenburg argues that excessive weight, failure to synchronize several units to do the work of one, friction and wind resistance are some of the factors which decrease the efficiency of larger, powerful multi-motored cars.

The races will be held under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, and, as a whole, will be a test of the speed of cars over a measured mile on a straightaway course, with four miles to start one mile to run, and four miles to slow down. The beach is as smooth and hard as a billiard table. It is straight as an arrow, 500 feet wide at low tide and when wind and the tide ocnditions are right, affords the most perfect straightaway course in the world.

Stock Car Trials.

The entire nine days of the trials, of course, are not to be devoted to "super-powered" cars. There are to be stock events for low and medium priced cars, and for those in the ultra-price class. How they vary is interesting in that in one trial a new Ford stock car is entered, while in another a Rolls-Royce and Isotta-Fraschini are among the entries. All passenger cars are to be strictly stock models, but A. A. A. rulings allow the elimination of tops, windshields and fenders.

CHANGE IN DESIGN CHIEF FEATURE OF NEW YORK SHOW

upholstery, walnut finish, vanity case and smoking set.

While the 1928 Oakland was announced some months ago, it should be noted that it has a number of interesting features, including bodies of very attractive line and coloring, greater power, the G. M. R. (General Motors Research) high-compression cylinder head, the A. C. fuel pump and filter driven from the camshaft. The car is a new design with improved features throughout.

Oldsmobile Changes Design.

The Oldsmobile is a wholly new design, with strikingly beautiful bodies of original lines and a high, deep radiator, which bears no resemblance to that formerly used. The chassis also is a new design throughout, its major features including a smooth, slender, short stroke engine of large bore, the dimensions being 3 3-16 bore and 4⅛-inch stroke. The crankshaft has four bearings, the engine is mounted in rubber, the clutch plate has a new type triangular rubber hub, the front universal joint is rubberized fabric, whereas the rear universal is a metal joint. All these features help to produce an exceptionally smooth, quiet car.

In addition to some unusual bodies unusually colored, Packard features announced some time ago include an even better road performance than formerly, due to minor changes in the six and eight cylinder engines. The cars are lower and body lines and interior appearance have both been enhanced. A feature of the line is the use of interchangeable wire, wood or disk wheels, all bolting to the same hub.

With Graham Brothers at the helm of the Paige company, the Paige line for 1928 has been completely revised, a complete set of new models being shown.

Peerless cars for 1928 have improved designs and more luxurious closed-car interiors, while the bodies are as much as one and a half inch lower. Rich upholstery, deep carpets, new instrument boards, new headlamps on some models, new two-tone lacquer colors and interior hardware in brushed silver and gold are important features.

Although the Pontiac is fundamentally unchanged it has a long list of new features, including new body types, four-wheel mechanical brakes, a new radiator core, and very attractive body lines set off by a high and narrow radiator. Water flows through the radiator from right to left instead of from top to bottom, the main advantages being reduced water evaporation and immunity from overheating due to dirt in the radiator. Other mechanical features include the GMR cylinder head with higher compression, AC fuel pump and filter operated from the cam shaft, water thermostat, new clutch, improved steering gear, heavier frame, new front axle and heavier wheels, with new hub flanges and crankcase ventilating system.

Both the Flying Cloud and the Wolverine of the Reo line are continued practically without change, but two new body models have recently been announced on the Wolverine chassis, a four-door, five-passenger sedan and a cabriolet. The standard color is a rich shade of green and the interior is upholstered in a light gray special mohair type material. The front compartment floor is covered with a felt-backed rubber mat and the rear compartment floor with a high-grade carpet. The one-piece windshield swings outward. Lights are controlled from the 17-inch walnut steering wheel.

Stearns presents six and eight cylinder de luxe chasis in numerous body styles. A feature of the de luxe line is a box section frame in pulace of the usual channel section, adopted to give maximum rigidity. The box section is obtained by riveting two telescoping channels together.

Studebaker is showing the President straight eight, a large, powerful car, with high acceleration and speed and roomy, attractive bodies. The L-head engine has a bore of 3⅜ inches and a stroke of 4⅜ inches and develops 100 horsepower. The wheel base is 131 inches. Four-wheel mechanical brakes are fitted. Bodies are roomy and have attractive lines and coloring. This car is one of the outstanding features of the company's line.

Velie is showing an eight, the Series 88, equipped with a 3¼ by 4½ inch engine, which develops 96 horsepower. The wheelbase is 125 inches. Equipment includes snubbers, automatic windshield wiper, stop light, rear mirror, gasoline strainer, oil filter, electro-ignition lock and four-wheel hydraulic brakes. Interior features include Chase Velmo mohair upholstery, walnut finish and a folding arm for the rear seat. Two six-cylinder chasis previously announced are also on exhibition.

The new Willys-Knight chassis is announced, with attractive, roomy bodies and a smooth, silent Knight engine with a bore 2 15-16 by 3⅞ inches. The wheel base is 109½ inches and the four-wheel mechanical brakes and shock absorbers are used.

THERE are no rumble seats on the snappy roadsters and coupes in Japan, according to advices from export branches in that country.

Instead, the illustrious and reverent Japanese, true to his custom of ancestor worship, has placed a seat on top of the radiator and called it the "mother-in-law" seat.

If the brakes on your car bother you—try out the "World's Best Brakes"

If your brakes do not take hold well in the mud, or after driving in the rain—try out the Reo Flying Cloud's Velvet Stop protected four-wheel brakes.

If your brakes need frequent adjustment to keep them equalized—try out the Flying Cloud, whose brakes never need equalizing adjustments.

If your brakes at times lock certain wheels while the others are free—try the brakes that always take hold of each wheel with equal pressure.

If your car has a tendency to skid on slippery pavements when you set your brakes—try the car whose brakes halt it in a straight line.

If your brake pedal is awkward to reach, if you have to use lots of strength to stop your car, try the Reo Flying Cloud, whose pedal is easily found and whose brakes are applied with the pressure of your toes.

If you want brakes that will last all the way down the long grades, that will hold you on the steepest pitch, that work equally well whether you are going forward or backing up, in wet or dry, hot or cold weather—you want a Reo Flying Cloud.

"The Best Motor Car Brakes on Earth"

The maker of the brakes on the Flying Cloud—even though he manufactures many more brakes of other types—has said that every automotive engineer and automobile manufacturer who has thoroughly tested these brakes has proclaimed them the best brakes ever developed for a motor car.

You can judge that for yourself. There's a Flying Cloud near you. Ask for a demonstration. Pick a day of dirty weather and slippery streets so that you can test it under the most unfavorable conditions.

You'll find all the speed you dare use, all the power you'll ever need, more comfort than you ever expected in a car at its price, beauty that you'll be proud to possess, economy unequaled anywhere near its price—class, and sturdy construction similar to that which has made Reo famous as America's longest lasting car. Be sure to try one out.

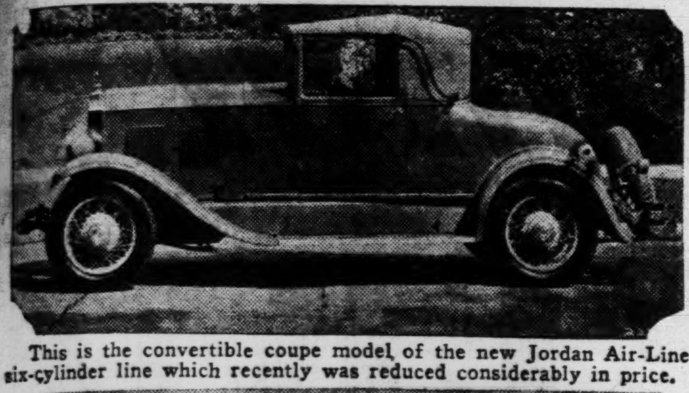
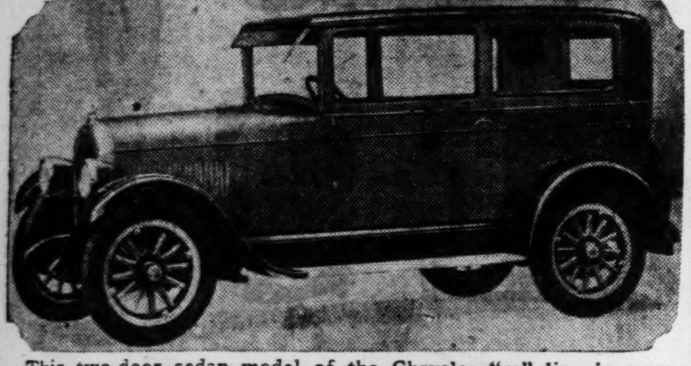
What's New in Motor Cars



This is the convertible coupe model of the new Jordan Air-Line six-cylinder line which recently was reduced considerably in price.



This two-door sedan model of the Chrysler "52" line is among the cars on which prices were reduced the past week.

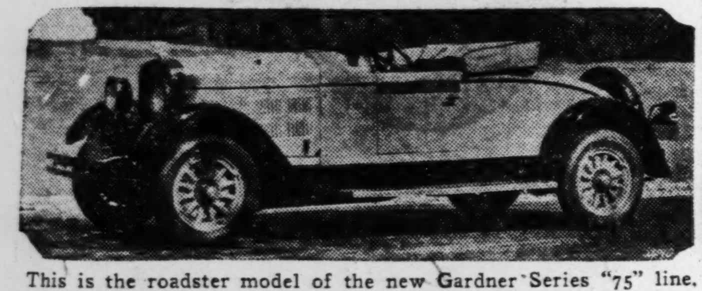
This is the sedan model of the new enlarged La Salle line, now on display by Cadillac distributers and dealers.



This is the roadster model of the new Gardner Series "75" line, which is powered by an eight-cylinder motor. Price reductions have lowered this model to $1195, factory list.

Prices Cut on All Jordan Models

Price reductions of $200 to $300 have been announced by the Archer-Mann Motor Car Co., Jordan distributer here, on all models of the air-line eight-cylinder series and the little custom six-cylinder series.

A flat reduction of $200 has been made on the eight-cylinder models, bringing the price down to $1995, factory list. The price of the line formerly was $2195.

In the little custom six series the sport salon has been reduced from $1595 to $1295, the sedan and Tomboy—illustrated above—from $1595 to $1395, and the Blue Boy from $1745 to $1495.

Chrysler "52" and "62" Line Reduced in Price

Prices on all models of the Chrysler "52" and "62," four and six-cylinder lines, respectively, were reduced the past week, according to an announcement by L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer here. The greatest reductions were on the roadster and coupe with rumble seat model of the "62" line. These cars are now priced at $1075 and $1145, respectively, a reduction of $100 over 1927 prices.

Reductions on other "62" models are as follows: Business coupe, from $1125 to $1065, two-door sedan, from $1145 to $1095; four-door sedan, from $1245 to $1175, and the landau sedan from $1295 to $1235.

Major price reductions in the "52" line was $85 on the de luxe sedan model which is now priced at $790.

Gardner Now Has Lowest Priced "8"

Slashing price reductions on its Series "75" eight-cylinder line, announced the past week by the Gardner Motor Car Co., here, place this car as the lowest-priced in the eight-cylinder class on the market.

The roadster model of the new line can be purchased at $1195, while closed models, slightly higher, are priced at $1295.

The car has a 122-inch wheelbase and mechanical advancements include duplex carburetion, larger valve ports, duraluminum connecting rods and inclosed internal expanding four-wheel brakes, hydraulically operated.

New Models in La Salle Line

Five new body models have been added to the La Salle line and prices have been substantially cut, according to the Oliver-Cadillac Co., La Salle-Cadillac distributer here. There are now 16 body models by Fisher in the La Salle line with prices ranging from $2350 to $2875, factory list, and four Fleetwood body models priced from $3000 to $4700.

Of the five new models, two, the two-passenger business coupe and the five-passenger family sedan—illustrated above—are on the La Salle 125-inch chassis. On the 134-inch chassis is the seven-passenger family sedan at $2575, the five-passenger coupe at $2625 and the five-passenger cabriolet sedan at $2675.

Peerless Cars Get Price Reduction

The De Luxe Motor Car Co., Peerless distributer here, has announced price reductions on three 1928 models of the Peerless line, ranging from $50 to $750. The reductions cover the 6-60, the 6-80, and the 8-60 lines.

BUICK PIONEERS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS IN 1928

AGNES DAVIS SINGS IN ATWATER KENT HOUR

Contest Winner to Be Soloist With Noted Violinist on KSD Tonight.

Agnes Davis, first place winner in the recent country-wide Atwater Kent Foundation singing contest, is announced as soloist with Paul Kochanski, noted violinist, for tonight's Atwater Kent hour on KSD and allied stations. She was to have sung in the Atwater Kent Hour last Sunday night, but developed a cold. The young Colorado soprano is to sing, among other numbers, the aria, "Pace, Pace Mio Dio," from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," with which she won the contest.

Kochanski, who will play his Stradivarius violin, which dates back to 1687, is returning to America for his sixth season after a tour of France, England and Spain.

It was back in 1687 that Antonio Stradivarius, most renowned of violin workers, fashioned a fine instrument for the Spanish crown. It was inlaid with ivory in the purfling with intaglio work on the sides and scroll and remained a part of the royal possessions until it was stolen early in the eighteenth century.

Lost for almost 100 years, it came eventually into the hands of Ole Bull, famous Scandinavian violinist. He brought it to this country with him. It was this "Spanish Strad," as it is called, which evoked a beautiful poem by Longfellow.

After Ole Bull's death, it passed into the hands of an English collector and was later transferred to the British Museum where it remained for two years. The protests of violinists against such a valuable instrument being removed from the musical world resulted in its return to Sarah Bull, widow of the violinist, who placed it with Hill of London for safekeeping. Occasionally it was loaned to a famous violinist for his London recitals. It was in this way that Kochanski became acquainted with the "Spanish Strad."

PROGRAM ON KSD MADE UP OF BRAHMS' MUSIC

Hans Barth, Pianist, and Orchestra to Play in Concert Tomorrow Night.

The National Concert Orchestra, with Cesare Sodero as director and Hans Barth, pianist, will present the Half Hour With Great Composers to KSD listeners tomorrow evening beginning at 7 o'clock. The program will be made up of music by Brahms.

Barth, an American pianist who is not yet 30 years old, has played throughout America and Europe and is well-known as a broadcasting artist. When he was but 11 years old, a New York critic, upon hearing him at his first appearance, wrote "He is no doubt as great a genius as Josef Hofmann." At the age of 4, Barth became interested in pianoforte and at 6 made his first concert appearance. His first public appearance as a pianist was in New York City at the age of 11.

Tomorrow evening's program might be termed a rapid review of Brahms' works. It starts with an important piano concerto, then follows a slight gavotte arranged by Brahms from Gluck's opera, "Paris and Helen."

The program follows:
Concerto in B-flat—
Piano with Orchestra.
Gavotte—Piano solo.
Hungarian Dance No. 7—
Piano solo.
Three waltzes—
Piano with Orchestra.
Three Liebeslieder Waltzes (Opus 65)—Piano solo.
Rhapsodie in E-Flat—Piano solo.

NEW RADIO WHOLESALE FIRM HAS ITS FORMAL OPENING

The newest wholesale house on St. Louis' Radio Row—the James C. Gordon Co., Inc.—has formally opened for business at its headquarters, 1213 Pine street.

The Gordon Co. has been appointed exclusive distributer of Busch receivers, speakers and units. It also handles the new Kennedy receiver.

It will be exclusively wholesale, with especial attention to set builders. To that end, a large stock of parts is carried and much special equipment has been installed for service and laboratory work. A test board, carrying 14 separate meters, is being placed. Apparatus for calibration and for matching and testing transformers and other radio parts, including a wave meter, has been installed, as well as a machine shop department.

Michael Ebinger, secretary of the firm, is to devote his time especially to the set builders and to the parts and laboratory departments. The laboratory equipment, Ebinger declares, is the most comprehensive in this part of the country. Eventually, he says, a shielded room for testing will be built on the second floor of the building occupied by the firm.

The price paid for the privilege of broadcasting the Tunney-Dempsey fight at Chicago was reported to be $100,000.

Corrosion of Battery Terminals.

To clean storage battery terminals, it will be found that ordinary household ammonia used full strength will remove any acid, corrosion or dirt which has formed. Corrosion, due to acid spray when charging, can be prevented by first cleaning terminals with ammonia and then covering with a thin film of vaseline.

Fuses in Eliminators.

When constructing any electric set or eliminator it is a good plan to put 3-amp. fuses in the 110-volt line. In case a loose wire should short the 110-volt terminals, the 3-amp. fuses will blow instead of the house fuses, and trouble can be limited to that particular piece of apparatus and repair facilitated.

Tubes Do Not Live Forever.

The life of tubes is not unlimited, and after set operation begins to provoke thoughts of "not as good as at first" it is well to make tube-checking one of the first considerations. Often the source of howls, set squeals, scratches and off-color tone quality is due to tubes that have outlived their usefulness, but the average set owner does not think of this. Circuits are foolproof; "B" and "A" supply faults are readily apparent and make themselves felt at once, and wiring troubles are readily traced on the outside; but trouble may often be found in the tubes, and it is well to trouble shoot them first—when the set has passed through several months of operation.

A dial radiophone has been invented by the United States Army Signal Corps, to help flyers talk to those on the ground.

DAMROSCH TO GIVE 'SAMPLE' SCHOOLS RADIO CONCERTS

First Scheduled for RCA Hour Jan. 21, to Show Nation What He Plans for Children.

Walter Damrosch's first experimental program, in his planned attempt to co-operate through radio in teaching music to the school children of this country, is scheduled for the RCA hour on KSD and allied stations next Saturday night. The second "sample" program is to be given from 10 to 11 o'clock in the forenoon of Feb. 10, and the third at the same hour in the morning of Feb. 17.

"Through the courtesy of the Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Co.," said Damrosch, "I have been provided with the financial support and facilities which make it possible to try out an idea that has been in my mind for years—to demonstrate a plan for the teaching of music to all the millions of children of America. This demonstration will take the form of three broadcasts.

Damrosch Explains Hopes.

"My first experimental program on the evening of Jan. 21 will be for the especial benefit of educators, supervisors of music, teachers and parents, to acquaint them with my plan. I have divided this program into two parts, the first for grammar school children and the second for high school and college students. During the broadcast I will give explanations of the compositions played, their history and general notes of interest.

"On Feb. 10 I will broadcast a morning program for grammar school children and on Feb. 17 another for high school students. These three programs will be samples of what I hope to see incorporated in the regular broadcasting schedule next winter and received by pupils in every schoolhouse throughout America.

"No means as yet has been found for financing my dream of next winter, but I sincerely hope that with the co-operation and interest of those who have been invited to witness my forthcoming demonstrations, some way may be found to finance the project."

Educators Interested.

Educators throughout the East are manifesting great interest in Damrosch's proposed demonstration, according to Frederick C. Alden, president of the Schoolmasters' Association of New York.

"Damrosch's dream of presenting music to the students of America in an interesting, and, at the same time educational manner, is far reaching in its ultimate possibilities," said Alden. "My organization is heartily in accord with his plan and well do anything in our power to further his ambition. We have written to educational associations similar to ours throughout the country and some of them have advised us that they have revised their monthly meeting dates to correspond with the broadcast of the evening of Jan. 21."

Program for Jan. 21 Concert.

Damrosch's first "sample" program for next Saturday night:

For children of the grammar schools.

1. Allegretto from Symphony No. 8 ....Beethoven
2. Entrance of the Little Fauns—Pierne
3. Scherzo from Symphony in B flat ....Glazounow

PART II.

For students in the high schools and colleges.

1. Overture to "Midsummer Night's Dream"....Mendelssohn
2. Andante from Symphony No. 5 ....Beethoven

SONG OF ANCIENT DAYS BY SEIBERLING SINGERS

Old English "Wassail" Air Revived for Chorus—Noah Swayne to Be Soloist.

An old English "Wassail Song" and a Negro folk song, "Black Sheep, Where You Left Your Lamb?" as a bass solo by Noah Swayne, will feature the program of the Seiberling Singers over KSD on Tuesday evening.

The "Wassail Song" is a fine chorus for voices unaccompanied, arranged by the writer of the "London Symphony," R. Vaughan Williams. The "Wassail Song" is of the type sung by "waits" outside the manor gate, as it contains prayers for long life and health for the master and rather pointed requests for draughts of ale.

Swayne is widely known for his interpretation of folk and dialect songs. He was educated at the St. Paul School and Yale University and trained as a business man but has had an outstanding career as an amateur singer. Now at the age of 53, he has turned to singing professionally.

The program follows:

The Jobberwocky (A ballad of the Automobility) ....Jenks
Chorus with tenor solo—orchestra and organ.
Wassail Song (Old English)—Arr. by R. Vaughan Williams
Chorus, unaccompanied.
Serenade for Strings (Opus 48)—Tschaikowsky

NEW RADIO STORE DESIGNED LIKE BROADCASTING STUDIO

The atmosphere of a broadcasting station is attained in an unusual branch store just opened by the Sampson Co. Inc., at 4909 Delmar boulevard, in the Hotel Roosevelt building.

Ceiling and walls of the display room are hung in heavy brocaded velvet, the former done in tones of orange, the latter in blue, while the furniture is in Japanese red which verges on an orange shade.

The idea on which the decorations of this new store were developed is that radio reception is peculiarly a thing of the home and a restful, esthetic atmosphere and, so, demonstration of radio sets and accessories should take place in surroundings of charm.

Julian E. Sampson, president of the Sampson Co., is a vice president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association and head of its dealer group. His brother, John C. Sampson, is vice president of the firm.

The branch store will be devoted to sales and service of one radio line, as is the Olive street store.

NEW ATWATER KENT AC SET AT RECORD LOW PRICE LEVEL

A new AC tube Atwater Kent receiver, the smallest, most compact of the type yet built, has just been introduced and has reached St. Louis. It is a companion to "36" AC Atwater Kent, and is the lowest priced AC tube set yet marketed.

It is only 17¼ inches long and 7⅛ iches high, yet it houses everything except the speaker.

All the A, B and C battery power comes from the house current through a compact power supply built in the receiver, which can be plugged into any convenient electric light or wall socket, like an electric toaster or flatiron. This arrangement and its compactness, makes the receiver available for any niche, corner, table or stand or any room.

It has true single-dial control.

Numbers do not have to be scanned closely, as the set has the full-vision dial.

The set also has efficient volume control.

The new receiver comes in a shielded cabinet.

The color feature makes the new model doubly distinctive. It is in two combinations — deep, rich brown and antique gold, or golden bronze and antique gold.

Where to Tune in Biblical Drama.

The story of Cain and Abel is the basis of the Biblical drama that will be broadcast at 9:15 tonight. It may be tuned in on WHO, WOC, WGY or WEAF.

MAKES RADIO STATIC UNHEARD

A simple, amazing device has been invented by C. H. Geppert, A-300 Hewitt Bldg., Des Moines, Ia., which filters 50 to 90 per cent of static in radio receiving sets. Not only that, but when static is not bad, you can increase your volume tremendously, bring in more distant stations, save 30 to 40 per cent on batteries, eliminate local stations from running in, give your set at least one more stage of radio reception and greater selectivity. Works on all radios; can be attached instantly by anyone without change to set. Mr. Geppert wants agents and is willing to send a no-cost sample. Write him today.

DE GOGORZA TO TEACH SINGING CONTEST WINNERS

Agnes Davis, Denver soprano, and Wilbur Evans, Philadelphia baritone, who were placed first in the recent country-wide Atwater Kent Foundation singing contest, are to be personal pupils of Emilio de Gogorza, the famous baritone. For two years, De Gogorza has promised, he will give them personal instruction at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. Evans plans to spend part of the $5000 he won in a trip to Paris with Gogorza for study next summer. Miss Evans also expects to study abroad.

Both young singers are to be heard in Atwater Kent hours on KSD and allied stations. Miss Davis was scheduled in the last Atwater Kent hour, but was indisposed when the time came. Evans is to sing with Louise Homer in the Atwater Kent hour of Jan. 22.

Ted A. Roy, the Oregon youth who placed second among the men in the contest, plans to complete his course in the Oregon State College, graduating in 1929, before taking advantage of the musical scholarship he won.

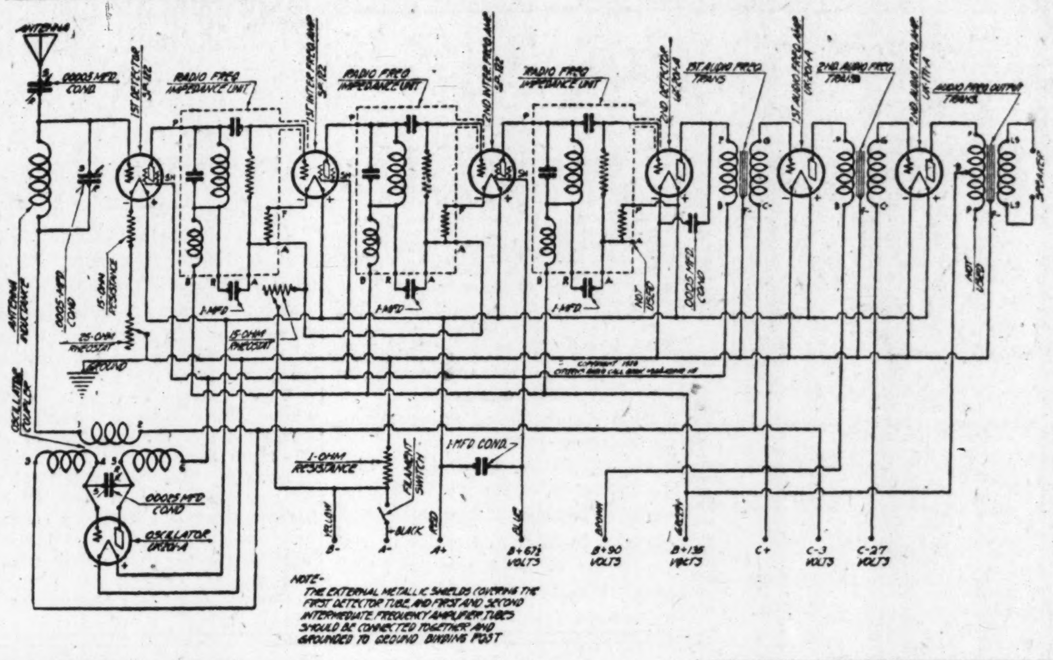
Set Uses New Shielded Grid Tubes for High Power



SCHEMATIC diagram of the new Tyrman "70" receiver, which is the first superheterodyne circuit for the new shielded grid tubes to reach St. Louis.

Interest among set builders and experimenters in the new shielded grid tubes, which amplify tremendously as compared with the 201A tubes, has become keen with the appearance of Tyrman "70," in which, through use of three of these tubes, results can be gotten with seven tubes equal to those attained with sets having 8 to 11 tubes.

This set, according to a number of St. Louisans who have built it in the last few weeks, can get KFI, Los Angeles, on a six-foot antenna. At any rate, a relatively large number of these Tyrman "70" sets have been constructed and are being built in this city.

Details of the Circuit.

The Tyrman was designed to use the Shieldplate Type SP122 shielded grid tubes, which have an amplification constant of 170, as against 8 or 9 for the 201A tube, and are said to give an actual gain of 45 to 50 in a stage of intermediate frequency amplification, as compared with 6 to 7 in previous superheterodynes. The filament of this tube draws only an eighth of an ampere at a maximum of 3.3 volts.

In conformity with the high impedance (500,000 ohms) of the shielded grid tube impedance coupled intermediate frequency is made use of. The input circuit of the Tyrman "70" consists of an antenna inductance and an oscillator coupler the frequency change being introduced into the low potential of the inductance. A bias of three volts is applied to the grid of the oscillator tube.

The antenna inductance unit consists of a two-inch diameter coil with 85 turns No. 24 wire space-wound, to gain selectivity.

The special oscillator will cover a range from 900 to 1800 K. C., thus covering the band necessary to produce the beat of 340 K. C., to which the intermediate frequency amplifiers are matched. This frequency has proven to be advantageous for single spot reception, the two beat notes being separated at 680 K. C.; thus only one beat will appear within the tuning range of the condenser.

Intermediate Writs.

The intermediate frequency impedance units consist of the tuned plate impedance, retard coil, grid coupling condenser, grid resistance and filament resistance. The latter is inserted in series with the filament control rheostat and reduces the six volt A battery current to a maximum of 3.3 volts. Its uncontrolled side also serves as C bias, making the use of a separate C battery unnecessary. Three of these units are used for stages of intermediate frequency amplification.

Shielded grid tubes are employed in the first detector and the two intermediate frequency stages. The second detector, first audio as well as the oscillator is operated with 201 A tubes, while a 171 or 171A tube is recommended for the second audio stage. However, if a 171 tube is made use of it is recommended to replace the Yaxley 4L resistance with a 5L resistance.

Special Power Unit.

For socket power operation, a specially designed Webster "70" A-B-C unit is available. This unit has a Yaxley cable which attaches to a base on the set's subpanel, and resistances in the unit are matched to give the voltages recommended in the schematic diagram. The Webster "70" unit makes possible full AC operation.

Using this unit, the aerial can be dispensed with, the ground wire being connected to the antenna post. The unit is operated by a special line switch, which makes turning of or on of the rheostat switch unnecessary. The unit has a variable control for regulation of the A voltage.

Following is a list of parts required for the Tyrman "70" receiver: 3 Tyrman type 9-90 R. F. impedance, 1 Tyrman type 9-80 antenna inductance, 2 Tyrman type 3-30 audio transformers, 1 Tyrman type 3-51 power output transformer, 7 Tyrman shielded sockets, 1 Tyrman double vernier drum dial, 1 Camfield .0005 condenser, single; 1 Camfield .00025 condenser, single; 1 Camfield type 622 oscillator coupler, 1 Yaxley 15 ohm switching rheostat 915K, 1 Yaxley 4L resistance, 1 Yaxley 15 ohm resistance, 1 Yaxley No. 669 cable, 1 Yaxley 25 ohm rheostat, 1 Yaxley pup jack, 1 hammarlund 50 mmf. midget condenser, 4 Carter 1 mfd. condenser, 1 Carter .001 mica condenser, 5 XL binding posts, 1 7x24" front panel drilled, 1 8x23" sub panel drilled, 1 pair Benjamin brackets.

'LA FORZA DEL DESTINO' NEXT OPERA OVER KSD

Verdi Opera Selected for Tabloid Performance by Company Under Cesare Sodero.

Verdi's "La Forza Del Destino" will be performed in tabloid form, under the baton of Cesare Sodero by the National Grand Opera Company for KSD listeners Wednesday night.

The cast will include: Astrid Fjelde, soprano; Devora Nadworney, contralto; Giuseppe di Benedetto, tenor; Ivan Ivantzoff, baritone; Nino Ruisi, bass.

The first act is laid in the drawing room of the Marquis of Calatrava. Don Alvaro, a Spanish noble, plans to elope with Leonora, daughter of the Marquis. The aged Marquis discovers the young couple and takes the worst view of the situation. While explanations are offered Don Alvaro's pistol is accidentally fired and the Marquis dies, calling down maledictions upon his daughter and her lover.

Story of the Opera.

The second act takes place in the kitchen of a mountain inn where Leonora has fled in male disguise. Discovering that a student, fraternizing with a priest, is her brother, Don Carlos, who has sworn to kill both Leonora and her father's murderer, she makes her way to the door of a monastery. Kneeling in the moonlight she asks protection of the Virgin in the ária, "Madre Pietosa Vergine," which rises above the chant of the monks—the "Venite." She confesses to the Abbot who procures for her a hermit's attire and directs her to a nearby cave in the mountains. There she remains for several years, still in love with Don Alvaro.

In the third act the scene is a military camp near Valletri. Don Alvaro, who believes Leonora is dead, enlists in the Spanish Army to fight Austria on Italian soil. In his loneliness he remembers his beloved and sings "Oh tu che in seno agli angeli." His reverie is disturbed by the cry of a wounded man. Although they have never met, it is his sworn enemy, Don Carlos. They become friends and in the next skirmish it is Don Alvaro who is wounded. His hurt seems mortal. At the offer of any last service Don Alvaro asks the destruction of Leonora's letters. There is a fine duet, "Solenne in quest' ora." But Don Alvaro does not die.

Tragic Finale.

In the wounded man's effects Don Carlos finds a picture of Leonora, his sister. Unable to fight a wounded man, Don Carlos threatens to seek his sister and take her life instead. Alvaro's recovery follows and a duel ensues in which Don Carlos is badly wounded. Believing that he now has a brother's as well as a father's blood on his hands, Don Alvaro decides to take the holy vows and enter a monastery.

In the fourth act, five years later, Don Alvaro, now Father Raphael, is noted for his good deeds, but Don Carlos, recovered, seeks him and taunts him to a duel in which the monk becomes again a fiery warrior. They fight on the hillside which conceals the hermitage of Leonora. Don Carlos is vanquished, this time in fair fight. The dying man begs Father Raphael to give him absolution, but this he cannot do. He calls the hermit from her cave and Leonora rushes out to find her brother dying. She sings the famous aria: "Pace, pace, mio dio (Peace, Peace, My God). Still suspicious of her complicity with Don Alvaro, Don Carlos stabs his sister as she embraces him.

Don Alvaro, Destiny's instrument for three deaths, casts himself from the crag as the monks chant the "Miserere."

HEARINGS ON SHORT WAVE REQUESTS BEGIN TUESDAY

Radio Commission Said to Have Decided on Procedure as to Broadcasters.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Having returned from inspection trips to their zones, members of the Federal Radio Commission say they were impressed by improvement in reception conditions. However, they are convinced more changes in station status will have to be made to assure good service to the enitre radio audience.

Following the hearings on short wave allocation, which are to begin Tuesday, Jan. 17, the commission will tackle the job of further clearing the broadcasting channels.

Plans of Commission.

These five methods of procedure will be the basis of the program for better radio reception during 1928:

Complete clearance of the channels from 600 to 1000 kilocycles (500 to 300 meters) and maintenance of a constant check on broadcasters to see that they remain on assigned frequencies and give quality programs.

Improvement of reception in the band from 1000 to 1300 kilocycles (300 to 231 meters) for stations giving regional service; these channels to be used by broadcasters serving listeners within a radius of 100 miles.

Use of the comparatively short wave band of 200 meters by high powered stations, thus utilizing the entire field reserved for program broadcasting.

Elimination or transfer of some stations in the chains, to be replaced by stations giving original programs or by other chains. This to prevent duplication of programs and to afford diversity of entertainment to remote listeners.

Encouragement of synchronizing of station frequencies to eliminate heterodynes and to increase the carrying capacity of the various channels.

Carrying out of the program hinges on Congress continuing the life of the commission, which expires March 15 under existing laws. Even if Congress decides to give the supervision of radio to some other governmental agency, the commission wants to make a program available for the new body which is based upon experience.

Opposition Predicted.

Radio observers here say that the program probably will be approved by the majority of listeners, but that affected broadcasters will oppose it. The National Broadcasting Co. is opposed to reduction of the number of stations broadcasting its programs.

Gen. Lee Subject of Broadcast.

The Great Moments in History broadcast at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will dramatize incidents in the life of Gen. Robert E. Lee, the great Confederate leader. It may be heard through WOW, WHO, WOC, WSAI, WEBH or WWJ.

GHIO BUILDING AT VANDEVENTER AND OLIVE SOLD

CORNER AT EIGHTH AND PINE PURCHASED

By Berry Moore.

Deals involving control of prominent Olive and Vandeventer and Eighth and Pine street corners were features of the week in the realty field. Lindell boulevard was also a center of activity.

The Ghio Building at the northeast corner of Olive street and Vandeventer avenue, owned by the Paul Brown Investment Co., was purchased yesterday by Irene Marburger for an announced consideration of $150,000. Isaac T. Cook & Co. handled negotiations in connection with the Orreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co.

The property has a frontage of 81 feet on Olive and 162 feet o Vandeventer. While only two stories, the rental return is commensurate with the consideration announced, it was stated. Strategic advantages of this intersection also were a factor in the purchase, as well as the appreciation which wil accrue to the property with the widening of Vandeventer avenue.

The building originally was owned by the Olive and Ninth Street Realty Co., of which W. K. Bixby was president. In 1924 was acquired by the late Pau Brown, who incorporated his rea estate holdings as the Brown Investment Co., through Isaac T. Cook & Co. It is to be remodele and improved with a terra cott front.

Eighth and Pine Corner Sold.

The Dollar Investment Co., was disclosed yesterday, has acquired the southeast corner o Eighth and Pine streets, formerl owned by Frank Dubinsky, president of the Dubinsky Realty Co., as part of a 15-story building project for this corner. Julius Feldman, who formerly held a 99 year lease of the property, as proprietor of the Stratford Hotel, i the moving spirit and principa stockholder of the Dollar company which is to build the new big hotel structure.

It was announced yesterday that financial arrangements had been completed with Straus Bros., nationally known investment bankers, for the capital for the erection of the new hotel building. I will replace the four-story Stratford, now occupying the site, which has a frontage of 128 feet on Pine with a depth of 60 feet o Eighth.

Plans have been made for a 300-room fireproof reinforced building. Each room will have a ti bath with shower, and will b equipped for running ice water. Seven shops will comprise the fir floor. The second floor will b given over to a large lounge an three shops. Plans also include large dining room and a coffe shop.

Subway Tunnel Site.

The building will be designed i Italian Renaissance, with exterio constructed of gray brick and terra cotta trimmings. Cost of th structure, not including the sit is estimated at $1,500,000.

Should the Eads Bridge tunn running under Eighth street ev be incorporated into a general su way system, as has been propose it would be available in connec tion with the hotel, it is pointe out by real estate men with visio and imagination.

The plan is recalled for a dow town passenger station on the Fe eral Building block, which the tu nel, it is contended, would ma feasible. Embraced in a compr hensive subway system, the tunn it is also explained, would be attractive feature on this bloc

Availability of this block for large department store is arous more than ordinary interest, n that it has virtually been plac on the market with the Gover ment in quest for a site for a n Federal Building.

Preston J. Bradshaw recently nounced plans for a 22-story ho building for the southwest cor of Twelfth boulevard and P street, to be known as the Sa Plaza. The Coronado Hotel Co. was announced, would operate t hotel.

GHIO BUILDING AT VANDEVENTER AND OLIVE SOLD

CORNER AT EIGHTH AND PINE PURCHASED

By Berry Moore.

Deals involving control of prominent Olive and Vandeventer and Eighth and Pine street corners were features of the week in the realty field. Lindell boulevard was also a center of activity.

The Ghio Building at the northeast corner of Olive street and Vandeventer avenue, owned by the Paul Brown Investment Co., was purchased yesterday by Irene Marburger for an announced consideration of $150,000. Isaac T. Cook & Co. handled negotiations, in connection with the Orreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co.

The property has a frontage of 81 feet on Olive and 162 feet on Vandeventer. While only two stories, the rental return is commensurate with the consideration announced, it was stated. Strategic advantages of this intersection also were a factor in the purchase, as well as the appreciation which will accrue to the property with the widening of Vandeventer avenue.

The building originally was owned by the Olive and Ninth Street Realty Co., of which W. K. Bixby was president. In 1924 it was acquired by the late Paul Brown, who incorporated his real estate holdings as the Brown Investment Co., through Isaac T. Cook & Co. It is to be remodeled and improved with a terra cotta front.

Eighth and Pine Corner Sold.

The Dollar Investment Co., it was disclosed yesterday, has acquired the southeast corner of Eighth and Pine streets, formerly owned by Frank Dubinsky, president of the Dubinsky Realty Co., as part of a 15-story building project for this corner. Julius Feldman, who formerly held a 99-year lease of the property, as proprietor of the Stratford Hotel, is the moving spirit and principal stockholder of the Dollar company which is to build the new big hotel structure.

It was announced yesterday that financial arrangements had been completed with Straus Bros., nationally known investment bankers, for the capital for the erection of the new hotel building. It will replace the four-story Stratford, now occupying the site, which has a frontage of 128 feet on Pine with a depth of 60 feet on Eighth.

Plans have been made for a 300-room fireproof reinforced building. Each room will have a tile bath with shower, and will be equipped for running ice water. Seven shops will comprise the first floor. The second floor will be given over to a large lounge and three shops. Plans also include a large dining room and a coffee shop.

Subway Tunnel Site.

The building will be designed in Italian Renaissance, with exterior constructed of gray brick and terra cotta trimmings. Cost of the structure, not including the site, is estimated at $1,500,000.

Should the Eads Bridge tunnel running under Eighth street ever be incorporated into a general subway system, as has been proposed, it would be available in connection with the hotel, it is pointed out by real estate men with vision and imagination.

The plan is recalled for a downtown passenger station on the Federal Building block, which the tunnel, it is contended, would make feasible. Embraced in a comprehensive subway system, the tunnel, it is also explained, would be an attractive feature on this block.

Availability of this block for a large department store is arousing more than ordinary interest, now that it has virtually been placed on the market with the Government in quest for a site for a new Federal Building.

Preston J. Bradshaw recently announced plans for a 22-story hotel building for the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Pine street, to be known as the Savoy Plaza. The Coronado Hotel Co., it was announced, would operate this hotel.

These projects are reassuring developments for this section, as adhering to the standard set for downtown Pine street with the erection of the Paul Brown and Southwestern Bell Telephone buildings east of, and the new Missouri Pacific Building under construction on this thoroughfare west of Twelfth boulevard.

Another development of significance was the establishment here by the Northwestern Terminal Co. of offices on the ninth floor of the Title Guaranty Trust Building, Seventh and Chestnut streets. The company, of which ex-Gov. Harding of Iowa is president, and Phil A. Bennett, Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri, and ex-Gov. Goodrich of Indiana, vice presidents, has big terminal properties at St. Paul, Minn. In view of the fact that it has no terminal interests in St. Louis, its object in opening offices here is a matter of speculation.

It was suggested that the concern may have plans for warehouses with terminal facilities in St. Louis. Approximately 10 city blocks in the vicinity of Second and North Market streets, owned by local banks, have been embraced in plans several times for large warehouses with terminal facilities, which have awakened more than ordinary interest.

Officers of the Northwestern company have been making overtures to the promoters of that project, which was reported to have an option on the bank properties, according to realty circles.

The Franciscus Realty Co., in connection with the Chauncey P. Heath Co., reports the sale of 70 feet on the north side of Lindell boulevard just west of Sarah street. The name of the purchaser is withheld.

ISAAC T. COOK & CO. ELECT TWO NEW OFFICERS

The Board of Directors of Isaac T. Cook & Co., Inc., has elected A. H. Fuldner vice president to succeed C. M. Turley, resigned. Fuldner remains in charge of the commercial lease department.

Will F. Shannon has been elected secretary-treasurer and will continue as operating manager. Turley resigned to take over the management of the Missouri Building and the Ambassador Building, having acquired an interest in these properties. Figures reveal that the past year has been the biggest in the company's history. A total of 234,255 square feet of office space was leased, as compared to 145,622 square feet for 1926.

In less than one year from the date of opening of the Bell Telephone Building the company tenated the structure. The demand for upstairs shops has been increasingly active, according to Cook, who also reports an increase in the demand for offices during the past 60 days.

The Central Hardware Co. will start at once the erection of a $100,000 building to be used for display, office and warehouse purposes for its lines of hardware, plumbing and contractors' supplies.

Meyer Cohen, president of the Central Hardware Co., said the location was selected because of its accessability for contractors and builders. A spur track will be laid by the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The Central Hardware Co. has been in the wholesale and retail hardware and plumbing supply business for 25 years and is at 811 North Sixth street. The company's present location is inadequate for its growing business.

This property, which is under lease at an annual rental in excess of $32,000 was purchased by Ethel Shaw for a consideration reported to be $225,000. The building consists of 42 apartments. The architecture has created favorable comment due to the indirect lighting and the stone trim.

Every apartment was leased by Epstein prior to the completion of the building. Prompted by this, Rubin & Sons have acquired the adjoining 55 feet on the east, and immediately will begin construction of a similar structure which will also be under the management of Epstein.

The building was erected by Jacob Rubin & Sons.

The St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations reports an increase from 25,000 to 40,000 stockholders, with assets of $30,000,000. The combined associations of the league financed 2100 homes during the year.

A statement of the league's progress was made at the meeting last Wednesday, when Hugh H. Stewart, secretary of the Real Estate Building and Loan Association, was elected president.

Stewart said that the ideals of the league were such that the building and loan idea could not help but prosper.

"The building and loan association," said Stewart, "offers a plan at once convenient, economical and safe and furnishes a means to the wage-earner to acquire a home on a basis that he can meet. This has resulted in a quickly increasing tendency toward home-ownership, not alone locally, but throughout the United States."

Total stock sales, 1,135,500 shares.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"Developments of the week indicate that the stock market is not in a mood to rise on news of improvement in business. A wholly unexpected increase of 518,000 tons in the Steel Corporation's unfilled orders, the largest gain since December, 1924, instead of a stimulus to buy more stock proved a signal for speculators to unload. On three different occasions already this year the volume of trading has exceeded 3,000,000 shares, but the influence for greater activity is falling prices. On rallies the market turns quiet. While each piece of favorable news is taken as an opportunity by speculators to sell, however, the plain fact is the market absorbs whatever stock is thrown upon it without dropping far.

Balance of Opposing Positions.

"The explanation lies in the balance of opposing positions held in the market, giving it technical strength, and in the wide margins that brokers have demanded from a public now heavily in the market. Underlying the alternate movements up and down in the stock market is a sentiment of uncertainty that is growing as to the safety of the loan position. Brokers' loans reported by member banks of the Federal Reserve System in New York now tower $1,028,000 above their level a year ago. Whether the increase reflects simply a natural growth in listings and a warranted rise in values or a dangerous expansion in speculation is the question to which the financial district seeks an answer. Unfortunately it is a matter largely of opinion, and conservative authorities may be found both who do and who do not look with fear upon this rapid growth.

Holdings of U. S. Securities Reduced.

"Outstanding among the items of this week's Federal Reserve statement that shed light on the money market is the decline in holdings of Government securities. When the Federal Reserve System inaugurated its easy money program last August it simultaneously began to purchase Government securities. Through its consistent purchase of governments it poured enough money into the market to keep rates down despite the tightening influences of the late 1927 gold outflow. Between the first of August and the first of January holdings of Government securities by the Federal Reserve Banks were swelled from $375,000,000 to $627,000,000. Significant is it therefore that this week's statement shows these holdings have been reduced by $82,000,000 to $545,000,000. At first blush it may appear that the Federal Reserve System has reversed its policy and now means to tighten money. The conclusion probably more accurate is that the Federal Reserve System, eager to preserve stability in the money market, has been compelled to modify its course although still headed for the same goal.

Seek Only Stability.

"Just as its open market operations during the autumn were designed to offset tightening influences on money—and keep it stable around 4 per cent—its operations at the moment are designed to offset easing influences. The return of currency after the holidays always increases the supply of available funds until about Feb. 1. Except for the Federal Reserve System's sale this month of Government securities, money rates probably would have fallen. This item of Government securities nevertheless will be closely followed from now on by all students of the money market, for through changes in the volume of Government holdings the Federal Reserve banks have it in their power to turn the balance in money. So far there has been no evidence of any change in policy. Apparently they want stability. Beyond that it is too early to draw any conclusions regarding more distant policies."

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Curtailment of production in cotton goods division continued to spread and is gradually having a stiffening effect upon gray cloth prices. Demand was in moderate proportions. The call for finished goods for spring is increasing. Raw silk was slightly off. Burlaps were quiet. In the wool goods division there was a sharply increased call for printed flannels for spring and summer wear.

SHARES SOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Total sales for the week were 13,466,700 shares, compared with 13,758,400 shares last week. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 27,418,200 shares, compared with 16,411,900 shares a year ago.

WEEK-END STOCK PRICE TENDENCY IS REACTIONARY

Pools Resume Operations, But When Standard Industrials and Rails Lag Behind, Bears Start Pressure on Number of Issues.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Pronounced reactionary price tendencies developed in today's stock market. The opening was firm as pools resumed operations in a number of specialties, which they marked up from one to three points. Standard industrials and rails lagged behind, however, and when "bear" traders sensed that the recovery lacked momentum they started to hammer a wide assortment of issues. This short selling, combined with the usual week-end realizing, wiped out most of the early gains and sent a number of issues one to seven points below yesterday's final quotations.

There was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Radio Corporation opened one and three-quarter points higher on buying, presumably influenced by the showing of the new teledivision radio device, but it lost the gain and closed two points net lower at 100⅝. U. S. Steel common opened fractionally higher at 148½ and then sold down to 146, off two and one-quarter points net.

Selling in Motors.

Despite the optimistic utterances of trade executives, motors continued under selling pressure. General Motors closed two and one-quarter points lower at 132 and Hudson, Hupp, Dodge Brothers preferred and Studebaker yielded a point or more. Willys-Overland turned upward just before the close, but the net gain was fractional.

Violent fluctuations again characterized the trading in some of the high-priced industrial specialties. Greene Cananea Copper broke 7 points to 135½ and rallied 1. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe dropped from an early high of 222¼ to 215 and rallied to 211. Case Threshing slumped 6½ points to 238. Baldwin, Dupont, Equitable Office Building common and Midland Steel Products preferred all sold off 4 points or so.

Uneasiness over credit conditions and fears of an early increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates have been factors in the liquidation of stocks during the week. Many of the conservative commission houses urged a lightening of long commitments until the future trend of the market becomes more clearly defined in their week-end market letters.

Exchange Market Steady.

Except for a rally of 7 points in Spanish pesetas, which wiped out yesterday's loss, there was little interest in foreign exchange rates, which held steady. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.87 27-32.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a deficit in reserve of $30,707,540, as against a deficit of $62,374,630 last week. Aggregate reserve totaled $638,500,000. Except for a gain of $23,733,000 in the reserve in the Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, the detailed statement of actual condition this day showed decreases in all of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments dropped $129,276,000; cash in own vaults $6,100,000; net demand deposits $78,024,000, and time deposits $4,055,000.

Review of Metal Markets.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Many factors developed during the week in the steel trade to indicate that there was continued improvement in conditions. Unfilled orders to Dec. 31, 1927, on the books of the United States Steel Corporation were slightly more than a half million tons larger than the preceding month and the total of unfinished business was the largest since March 31, 1926. There was a gain in railroad buying. Pittsburgh advices said some large mills, long idle, would resume operations soon. Prices generally were steady. Pig iron was a trifle steadier and demand a little better.

Recent export buying of copper tapered off and business generally was quieter. The smaller demand was attributed partly to December statistics showing a slight increase in refined stocks, while new high record exports for last month were thought to have supplied immediate needs of foreign consumers. In the domestic market it is reported that small lots may be obtainable at concessions from second hands, but producers are holding steady at 14½ for electrolytic delivered to Connecticut Valley points.

Tin prices were at the lowest level since June, 1925. Liquidation of holdings was apparent and in some instances sellers were reported pressing the market.

Lead was steady. Inquiry for February shipment was reported as better. It was felt that with the possibilities of increased automobile production there would be a greater demand for batteries and in turn, lead.

Zinc remained steady. Demand was fair for January shipment. Rumors were of some sharp curtailment of production seen as a result of the steady gain in surplus stocks.

INDUSTRIAL AND RAIL AVERAGES SHOW DECLINES

Number of Special Issues, However, Display Independent Strength During Week—Prices Generally Move Within "Trading Area."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Stiffening of the rates on time money and bankers' acceptance was the most significant development of the week's financial markets, immediately aroused fears of tightening of credit on securities collateral, which were reflected in a decline in stock prices and an easier undertone in the bond market.

Stability of the call money rate is expected to result, however, from the new Federal Reserve policy of adjusting the reserve position of the New York banks twice a week instead of once as heretofore. This is expected to result in banks maintaining their reserves at a uniformly high level instead of permitting them to run early in the week, and then building them up in the last few days by calling loans.

The large increase in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation last month, the continuing heavy inquiry for railroad equipment and the increased activity of the automotive industry all helped to offset the adverse money market developments.

Averages Lower.

While both the industrial and railroad averages lost ground during the week, a number of special issues showed independent strength and prices generally moved within what Wall Street describes as a "trading area." There were a few sweeping advances and a few sharp breaks, but the general list seemed to back and fill without making much headway in either direction.

Heavy imports of gold from Canada, where the American dollar is at a premium, attracted attention in foreign exchange markets, which held fairly steady. United States Steel Corporation announced an unexpectedly large increase of 518,000 tons in unfilled orders last month, and operations of the industry in general advanced to 75 per cent of capacity. President Alfred P. Sloan Jr., of General Motors, predicted that first quarter earnings and sales of the corporation would break all records. The Interstate Commerce Commission approved the St. Paul reorganization plan.

Except in a limited assortment of specialties in which the floating supply is small, efforts to stage a rise encountered large offerings of stocks on all attempts to rally industrial and railroad leaders, and "bears" were equally unsuccessful in attempting to force a reaction, as good buying orders appeared on all dips.

Possible New Developments.

There is a growing feeling in speculative circles that Washington news developments are likely at present on the possibility of an early Interstate Commerce Commission decision on the Van Sweringen merger, the Senate Committee hearings on the proposed investigation of super-power projects and public utility financing and the attitude of the Federal Reserve Board towards a further increase in rediscount rates. Improvement in business during the next few weeks is likely to be offset by the publication of some poor 1927 earnings reports, which have just started to make their appearance.

Despite optimistic utterances by the leading executives of the industry, the motor shares continued under the depressing influence of price cuts. Steels held steady, while the coppers, foods, public utilities, packing and baking shares presented points of strength. Rails moved upwards towards the end of the week after moving sideways since the first of the year.

ST. PAUL RAILROAD BONDS ARE HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The long list of bonds of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad spurted upward again in today's market, giving a little color to an otherwise dull session. The remainder of the list continued to mark time as traders kept a way eye on the probable trend of the money market.

Buying of the St. Paul issues followed election yesterday of 14 directors. Practically all the bonds, a dozen of which were quoted today, are selling 15 points or more above their lows of last year.

Sales of these issues in today's session exceeded $600,000 face value.

Other railway liens pursued the even course of the past few days, with an undertone of easiness. Erie 7c were offered in considerable amounts, but were supported a small fraction under the last closing price. Seaboard All Florida B 6s also sagged lightly.

Dominion Iron & Steel Certificate 5s again spurted upward, reaching 98½ for the first time in a year or more. This quotation compares with a low in 1927 of 47½ and a high of 79¼. Columbia Gas 5s reach new peak territory on a small turn-over, but other public utilities were dull and featureless. Convertible issues moved upward in the first hour, but subsequently fell back on profit-taking.

Moderately large offerings of Polish 7s were absorbed with little net change in price. Otherwise the foreign group attracted little attention, and prices established no definite trend.

U. S. Government obligations were inactive.

The week's new issues aggregated about $124,000,000 compared with approximately $34,000,000 last week.

Lead, Zinc and Copper.

Lead was quiet at $6.27½ per 100 pounds in St. Louis today.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Total transactions on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to $7,391,000; previous day sales, $14,203,000; week ago, $1,348,000; year ago, $9,467,000. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $134,712,000, compared with $185,502,000 same period year ago and $146,060,000 same period two years ago.

DECLINES ARE SHOWN IN WEEK END COTTON TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Early declines influenced by relatively weak Liverpool cables and talk of domestic mill curtailment, were followed by partial recoveries on trade buying and covering in the cotton market today. Contracts for May deliveries sold up from 18.91c to 19.02c and closed at 18.96c, the general market closing steady, at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The market opened steady at decline of 5 to 10 points under liquidation combined with commission house and local selling, active months showing net losses of 10 to 13 points in early trading. Offerings were not heavy or particularly aggressive, however, and appeared to be readily absorbed by a renewal of trade buying below the 19-cent level for May. After easing off to 18.80 for March, and 18.69 for July, prices stiffened up on covering. Rallies carried the market up to 18.91c for March and 18.78c for July, or within a point or two of Friday's closing quotations. This bulge met a little further week-end liquidation, and last prices were several points off from the best.

Reports that a movement to curtain mill production was under way in fine goods mills in New England came in for comment, and may have accounted for some of the early selling. There were also reports from parts of the South that holders of spot cotton were showing a disposition to sell a little more freely, which may have had a tendency to check buying, although there were also reports that the basis was holding steady. Trading was quiet, and the day's fluctuations were regarded by local brokers as reflecting the effect of small orders either way, rather than any particular change in the general situation.

Private cables from Liverpool said hedge selling there had been absorbed by covering and trade buying and that the market for cotton cloths and yarns in Manchester was steady.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The cottonseed oil market was dull today with the undertone somewhat easier on local liquidation for over the week-end and some hedge pressure in sympathy with the reaction in lard. RECORD TRADE MARKS WEEK ON CURB MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Business on the Curb Exchange today was resumed with a continuation of the heavy trading that lifted the aggregate sales during the past week to high records. After moderate gains had been registered in the general list, quotations were inclined to yield these advances.

General Baking recovered a good portion of yesterday's late reaction, but subsequently eased off a point. The "B" shares declined about a point below 9 and a similar movement was noted in the St. Paul shares. Sheaffer Pen followed yesterday's upturn with a further gain of 36 points. Swift International, Lehigh Coal and Navigation and Midland Steel Products opened higher but turned heavy in the later trading.

Selling pressure assumed wider proportions in the last hour with most leaders on the recent upturn yielding 1 to 2 points. Ford Motor of Canada sold off 19 points to 580. Among those to stem the tide of selling were Alabama Great Southern common and preferred shares, which rose 3 and 2¾ points respectively. Realty associates was up 13 points on small sales.

Oil shares also developed reactionary tendencies after a firm opening. Vacuum opened up a fraction at 148½ and dropped to 145 and a sharp gain occurred in Illinois Pipe Line which rose to 185¼, up 3⅛ points. Northern Pipe Line was up 3 points.

Public utility ranged narrowly with most issues holding firm. United Gas improvement moved up a point to 117⅝, but encountered selling which caused a drop of 2½ points from that level.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The raw sugar market had an easier tone today. While spot prices were unchanged at 4.52 for Cuban, offerings at this level were more liberal, with buyers inclined to hold off. The only sales reported were 75,000 bags of Cuban for January shipment at the quoted price.

The raw sugar futures market was weak under heavy general liquidation, promoted by increased offerings in the spot market. Grinding of the new crop starts next week, and this also caused some liquidation, as it led to expectations of rapidly increasing supplies in Cuba, with only a moderate demand from refiners. The market opened one to three points lower and continued easy throughout the session, closing at net losses of 4 to 6 points. Approximate sales 31,700 tons. Jan. closed 2.62; March 2.67; May 2.75; July 2.82; Sept. 2.90; Dec. 2.96.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.80 for fine granulated.

MATERIAL SETBACK TO CORN FOLLOWS UPTURN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Faced by increased offerings and by a cold wave likely to promote enlargement of the crop movement, corn values today suffered a material setback. Wheat gave way with corn and as a result of profit-taking on the part of holders.

Corn closed heavy, ⅝c to 1⅛c net lower; wheat ⅛c to ½c off; oats unchanged to ¼@⅜c down, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

Heavy selling developed in the corn market after an early advance that was attributed to larger corn export business. In some quarters export demand for corn was spoken of as the best so far this season, but the fact soon became evident that rural offerings had also broadened out at all markets and that predictions of lower temperatures were being widely taken to mean an impetus to the general movement of corn away from the hands of growers. Under such circumstances the effect of export demand was soon more than counterbalanced.

Virtually the day's lowest quotations for corn were prevailing at the finish. Nevertheless, friends of higher prices were strongly contending against assertions that the market had been advancing too fast. In this connection, it was pointed out that Chicago May delivery of corn closed today at 91⅜c to 91½c, against 89¾c on Oct. 20, whereas in the same period January corn in Buenos Aires has advanced 12½c a bushel.

Wheat values were largely dominated toward the last bit downward swing of the corn market. Earlier, however, wheat displayed an upward trend, general absence of snow protection over domestic winter wheat territory causing apprehension as to possible crop damage during expected low temperatures. Stormy conditions in Canada were also looked upon as tending to check the marketing of wheat.

Oats as well as wheat receded with corn, but not until No. 1 white oats had sold at 60c a bushel, the highest price since 1925.

Notwithstanding an upturn in the hog market, provisions were easier, sympathizing with grain and cottonseed oil.

GRAINS CLOSE DOWN AFTER EARLY UPTURN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 14.—Increased movement of corn with forecast of low temperature which would be favorable for shipments led to late downturn and lower close to corn market despite early report of export demand. Wheat also finnished lower after early rise.

The early range was moderate on wheat but over previous close, the same condition prevailing in corn. Liverpool wheat came unchanged. Winnipeg was unchanged to ⅛c higher early.

Wheat buying was credited to forecast of low temperature by Monday. Corn was better on report of export demand for American grain. The anticipated cold wave, however, was expected to facilitate movement.

Hard May wheat opened at $1.32; July wheat, $1.25¾; May corn, 92¾c, and July corn, 94¼c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 61,600 bushels, compared with 85,400 a week ago and 67,200 a year ago, included 36 cars local and 8 through. Corn receipts, which were 105,000 bushels, compared with 79,800 a week ago and 64,400 a year ago, included 39 cars local and 26 through. Oats receipts, which were 62,000 bushels, compared with 74,000 a week ago and 78,000 a year ago, included 28 cars local and 3 through. Hay receipts were 19 cars local and 8 through.

In the local cash grain market there was demand for sound milling qualities of soft wheat at steady prices, shippers bidding $1.52 dest wts, for track No 2 red, while a lot of 5 cars transferred through elevator for billing sold at $1.51 loading wts., and car without billing at $1.50. Garlicky grades also were in demand but damaged offerings were slow. Hard wheat was firm with good demand for heavy test blending types. There were track sales of No. 2 hard on a basis 6c to 7c over Chicago May price. Cash corn was steady to 1c lower. While there was a pretty good buying of yellow by mills and a fair shipping demand for white, supplies on whole were a little excessive. Cash oats offerings were cleaned up closely. No. 2 whites being in special demand and rose ¼c. Prices otherwise were steady to ½c lower. Shippers and local trade bought.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"Although the foreign exchange market showed a good deal of irregularity during the week, its chief features were those reflecting a renewal of Government accumulation, causing advances in many of the European rates.

Sterling was in constant demand, but the supply was so scant that it was hard to execute buying orders except on steady advances resulting in the rate on London moving up from $4.86¾ to $4.87⅝. Bids, in most cases, were believed to be inspired by Government agents, were for as much as £250,000 at a time. There is still a complete absence of offerings of cotton bills and other commercial bills are equally scarce.

"Spanish exchange again had wide fluctuations, pesetas ranging between 17.20 and 16.98. Most of movements in exchange on Spain are attributed to speculative ventures. Dutch, which was weak in the first few days, guilders then selling as low as 40.29, moved up with sterling in the last half of the week, advancing 5 points.

"French and Italian were well maintained, but trading in those documents was without special importance. Scandinavian exchanges, after showing a heavy tone in the early part of the week, moved up in yesterday's trading. Far Easterns were irregular. Japan was under pressure in the first few days, but after yen dropped to 46.68 a strong tone developed causing a rally to 47.00.

"Canadian exchange was heavy all through the week, ruling at 3-16 discount. The return movement of gold exported from this city into Canada late last year continued, but while gold moved from Montreal to this city shipments of large amounts were made from New York to South America and France.

"South American exchanges were fairly steady, although Uruguay, after a large gold movement, fell back from 103.50 to 102.75.

"The feature of the market was the increased strength in Mexican exchange, the gold peso advancing to 49 cents, coming close to parity of 49.85. The silver peso was also strong, advancing to 46¾ cents.

HOG PRICES HIGHER IN TRADE FOR WEEK

CAMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Last Yr.
Cattle and calves	22,842	19,538	24,349
Hogs	83,237	86,568	87,197
Sheep	4,401	6,383	7,565
Horses and mules	3,221	2,875	1,525
Totals	113,701	115,364	120,636

Although heavy receipts of cattle resulted in a sharp break in prices during the week's initial session the decline was regained in later week trading and with the exception of bulls and veal calves the closing trade was generally steady with the preceeding week. Quality was about an average with recent weeks, majority of steer run comprised of the lighter weight varieties and short fed kinds. Top in mature steers reached $15.25, while yearlings scored the $14 mark. A few cars of weighty individuals made $13.50 to $14.75 while a bulk of all steers was caught at $9.25 to $13.90. Several cars of Oklahoma grass steers arrived and sold from $8.75 to $9.50, numerous consignments from Southern states such as Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas included among arrivals. Sales of fat mixed yearlings centered largely in the $10 and $11 columns, top for mixed at $12.75, while straight heifers stopped at $11.75. This price was paid for three cars of fed Kansas heifers. Bulk of sales registered in a spread of $8 to $11.75 for all kinds, two cars of Louisiana heifers at $7.25 and $8. Cows suitable for beef purposes went in a range of $6.50 to $11, bulk making $7 to $8.50 over the six-day period. Cutters cashed from $5.50 to $6.75, bulk $6 to $6.50. Canners were most numerous at $5 to $5.50, although the low end dipped to $4.75 in early week trading. Best bologna bulls at $8.25 represented a decline of 25c from last week, bulk of good kinds going from $7 to $8, while heavy beef bulls and butcher animals registered up to $9 and better. Stocker and feeder steers were somewhat in excess of the previous week's supply, but demand was good and some sales showed 25c advance. Bulk cashed from $6.50 to $9.50, top feeders $10.60. Stock cows went from $6 to $7, heifers $6.50 to $8. Best veals at $15 were $1 lower for the week, first and second cut calves in proportion. Heavy calves and canner yearlings were not essentially changed. Most first cut calves brought $12 ot $13.50; next outs $9 to $11.50, and heavies $6 to $10. Canner yearlings $5.40 to $5.85.

Hog Prices Uneven.

Receipts for the past week's hog trade totaled approximately 83,237, as compared with 86,568 the previous week and 87,197 the corresponding period last year. Quality for the week averaged fairly good. Hog prices the current week were uneven, usually maintaining a strong position, however. Receipts were rather large the first few days, but gradually fell off later in the week. Shippers usually featured a good demand and as the most demand was on light and handy-weight hogs, 170 to 220 pounds, this class worked up to a top basis. Weighty hogs at the close were being discounted from light hogs. Shippers and butchers proved a good outlet for quite a number. Although the runs were large early in the week, holdovers were not allowed to accumulate as is usually the case. Packers bought rather free and good clearances were effected each day. Top hogs for the period made $8.75, with the bulk at $8.45 to $8.70. Today's trade was mostly $8.60 and $8.65 for desirable hogs, light hogs claiming top prices. As compared with a week ago, desirable hogs were 10c to 20c higher, with extremes 25c up. Pigs and light lights followed an unsatisfactory trend most of the time, however, closing the week 25c higher. Bulk of desirable lights, 140 to 150 pounds, sold for the period at $7.75 to $8.50, with the bulk of good pigs, 90 to 130 pounds, at $6.75 to $8. Light pigs were difficult sellers. Most sales ranged from $6 to $6.75. Sows were not exceptionally good movers, although trading was fairly good. As compared with a week ago, they are 10c to 15c up. Top sows made $7.50, with the bulk at $7.25 to $7.40. Light and medium stags bulked at $7 to $7.50, with extreme heavy stags down to $6.

Sheep Receipts Smaller.

Despite a decrease of 2000 head in sheep and lamb receipts the past week the market took a downward trend in the late sessions of the period. Prices held up good early in the week but a curtailed demand caused declines in subsequent sessions. Buyers were fairly well stocked up and bought the offerings during the week in a leisurely fashion. City butchers furnished little competition only buying a few odd lots now and then, paying $13.00 to $13.50 for them. Top early in the week was $13.25 but at the close $13.00 was drove of lambs had to take this price droveof lambs had to take this price too. The supply was mostly fed lambs weighing from 76 to 87 pounds that bulked for the week at $13.00 to $13.25. Heavy lambs weighing over 90 lbs. sold down to $10.50. Culls cashed principally at $9.50 to skips down to $6.00. Local feed lots furnished a choice drove of 467 that weighed 83 lbs. at $13.00. Ewes were in light supply and no strictly choice kinds were offered. The bulk, such as they were, made $5.00 to $6.00. Cull sheep brought $2.00 to $4.00. Wethers were in fair supply early in the period but practically none were received late in the week. One drove of yearlings weighing 91 lbs. made $10.50 and another drove weighing 90 lbs. made the same figure. A few plain kinds sold down to $10.00. Odd lots of aged and 2-year-olds, brought $7.00 to $9.50. Quotations: Slaughter stock: Fed Western and native—Good to choice lambs $12.50 to $13.00, medium to good $12.00 to $12.50, plain to medium $11.00 to $12.00, cull and common $9.00 to $10.50. Good to choice yearling wethers $10.00 to $10.50, medium to good $9.50 to $10.00, plain to medium $9.00 to $9.50, cull and common, $8.50 to $9.00. Good to choice aged Western wethers $8.00 to $9.00, good fat Southern kinds $7.00 to $8.00, thin to fair kinds $4.00 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes $5.50 to $6.50, medium to good $5.00 to $5.50, plain to medium $4.30 to $5.00, choppers and bucks $3.00 to $4.00, fair to good kids $4.00 to $7.00, thin to fair kids, $1.50 to $3.00.

Horses and Mules.

Generous receipts in mules and a right fair showing of horses here the past week met with ready reception from buyers and trade was active with prices strong on practically all grades, fat good haired cotton mules especially in demand. Mules coming in the class to command $75 to $125 were in too small supply in comparison with the demand and those commanding $140 to $160 were strong to possibly higher. Even the big plain mules sold readily, prices not essentially changed from previous weeks.

Arrivals in horses were more numerous than for some time and demand was good. Inquiry was chiefly for good chunks and sound work horses with some call for southern mares also. Prices were fully up to the previous week's selling with a good clearance effected for all kinds.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

GENTLEMAN.—The article about the opening of the new Missouri Hotel in Jefferson City was in the Post-Dispatch Dec. 8, 1927.

RABBITS.—Write the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., also the Bureau of Biological Survey of the same department.

TWENTY-YEAR READER.—The dime of 1849 is valued at 10 to 20 cents, the large cent of 1836 at one to five cents only. See Saint Louis telephone directory under "Coins" for list.

C. B.—The system used by proofreaders is illustrated in an unabridged dictionary which you may see in libraries. There are many women in the trade. For details apply to the local Typographical Union.

OLD SUBSCRIBER.—The type of automobile you mention will run 20 to 30 miles for each gallon of gasoline, depending on speed. It will need oil renewed every 500 or 600 miles, until it has been used for some time, when it may need oil renewed about every 1000 miles. Aside from this it is not practical to say what your expenses will be as the experience of different people with the same make of machine varies greatly. The details of upkeep, including insurance features, will be gladly furnished without obligation to buy, if you call the sales office as listed in the telephone directory, and ask for the agency nearest you.

N. B. S.—Chop Suey: One and one-half pounds of beef tenderloin, three stalks celery, three tablespoons of Chinese sauce, one heaping tablespoon of cornstarch, one level tablespoon of sugar, and one cup of dried mushrooms. Soak the mushrooms in a little cold water for an hour, drain and stem. Chop the meat in half-inch pieces and fry in an iron pan until brown; add some chopped onion and the chopped celery, then add the mushrooms, stirring the mixture constantly. Stir smooth in a little water the cornstarch and sugar, and add it to the meat mixture. Serve the thickened chop suey with rice. More of the Chinese sauce may be added when serving. This sauce can be bought at grocery stores. Chinese water chestnuts and bamboo shoots may also be bought in cans, and added to the chop suey. Pork, chicken, duck, turkey, fish or oysters may be used instead of beef.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

R. Z.—Consult a reputable patent lawyer.

IT.—Some Indians are citizens and some are not. If they are citizens they may vote.

MAGDELANE.—You may be able to sue the contractor and recover your $60 loss from him. Consult a lawyer.

O. K. M. N. X.—You can sue in connection with such an accident as mentioned, at any time within five years. Consult a lawyer.

M. O.—You can be sued on a bill which is outlawed, but you can plead the statute of limitations as a defense. Consult a lawyer.

MR. M. R.—If your husband died first, leaving no will and no children, you could obtain one-half of all his property, including the farm.

A WORRIED PARENT.—You can prevent the selling of alcoholics by persons you say are protected by reporting the facts to the Prohibition Enforcement Office in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

C. W. I. A.—The necessity of a local improvement association notifying its members of its meetings would depend on the by-laws of the association. There is not State law on this.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

TROUBLED.—The foreign brand of the product mentioned is considered by many to be better than the American product, and doubtless justly so in this case.

M. H.—For dandruff: Resorcin, one drachm; ether, one drachm; olive oil, one drachm; alcohol, six ounces. Mix, shake and apply to the scalp night and morning, rubbing it well in with the finger tips. Diet has little or no influence in producing dandruff.

MRS. X. Y. Z.—Taking a two to five grain tablet, three times daily of caroid and bile salts will stimulate the liver action and so should give a certain measure of relief in your case. Diet is very important and you can be provided with proper diet list if you send stamped, addressed envelope, repeating the statement of why you want this. For sleeplessness, take a hot bath at bedtime and a 10-grain Trional powder.

J. A. J.—Certain glands in the body such as the sweat glands and the sebaceous, or fat, glands, in some persons have an odor associated with their excretions, perhaps inherited, and not due to a lack of proper cleanliness. This may be increased or produced by a lowered vitality or some systemic infections, constipation, etc. The best that can be done is to diminish the quantity of excretion by local astringents, raise the standard of general health, correct constipation, etc. A teaspoonful of the milk of magnesia in a teacup of hot water before breakfast is helpful in correcting constipation. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for diet if desired, and such astringent as may be used. Refer to J. A. J.

HOPEFUL.—For the information wanted a dentist should be consulted. Such a scar as described can be removed completely and without danger when done by a capable and expert operator, preferably a plastic surgeon. Names would have to be mailed to you, in stamped, self-addressed envelope which you may send.

T.—The following may suffice to correct the skin trouble: Precipitated sulphur, one drachm; powdered camphor, 10 grains; powdered tragacanth, 10 grains; lime water, two ounces; rose water, two ounces. Mix, shake and apply night and morning after steaming the face and drying thoroughly. There is no apparent advantage in oatmeal bags over steaming or hot compresses, or plain water. The only safe and reliable method of removing superfluous hair permanently is the electric needle. If you wish to employ this method you may send stamped, addressed envelope for name of operators.

SPECIALTY MEN—To sell coin-operated phonographs.

To those who will work hard every day an income in excess of $400 a month will be paid.

This is evidenced by men now making this amount, now with this company. Some have made as high as $1200 in various parts of the country.

The Electramuse, a coin-operated phonograph, is the only specialty that can be purchased on time payment that the merchant can depend upon his customers to pay his installments.

Unlike other specialties, the monthly installments payments are paid by the machine itself.

Men who have sold cash registers, advertising, store fixtures and any other line that has been difficult to sell, will find this easier to sell, and the commission larger.

This is the only specialty that has a cash register that tells to the last coin the actual profit to be made in owning an Electramuse.

Order takers and part-time men need not apply. Others who are financially able and willing to give this a thorough tryout for 30 days, will make an income that few salesmen today are getting.

For interview, see Mr Jenkins, 713 N. Euclid av.

TWENTY THOUSAND MILES in a TEN-TON BOAT—ALONE

Alain Gerbault and ex-Queen Marautaaroa of Tahiti.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PAPEETE, Tahiti.

SOMEWHERE in the Indian Ocean, the Hermit of the Sea is on his way home. Alain Gerbault boasts a well-earned right to that picturesque title. Since June 6, 1924, when he set sail from Cannes, France, alone on a small sailing yacht, this quaint voyager has navigated three of the earth's five oceans. With nothing approaching nearer human companionship than books and a phonograph, he tossed for 101 days on the stormy Atlantic. For other weeks on end he traveled down the American coast from New York to Panama. A lonely tour through the Pacific islands consumed the succeeding months and now, at last, he is heading back to France by way of the Suez Canal and Mediterranean Sea. To date he has voyaged something in excess of 20,000 miles, navigating his craft, manipulating his own sails, preparing his own food. He is owner of the 10-ton yacht, the "Firecrest," and he is navigator, captain and crew as well.

A strange picture the Sea Hermit made on his arrival at this port. Travelers pausing here on a trans-Pacific journey watched with growing amazement as the tiny sail boat appeared on the dark ocean and floated silently into the blue harbor. Their amazement was still greater when a bareheaded, barefoot figure, the only one aboard, cast anchor and, lowering a collapsible canvas boat, rowed to shore. He was dressed like a native and his skin was as brown as that of any islander, but for all his bronze coloring it was apparent that he was a white man, or at least had been one originally before the equatorial sun and wind had got in their work. He presented an athletic figure and the bearing of a sailor as he approached the small crowd which had gathered on the beach to greet and question the solitary wanderer.

SOMEBODY thought of the Firecrest and asked if perhaps this small craft could really be that long-expected boat. It was. But it was so much smaller than expected. Could it be possible that this tiny craft had crossed two oceans and weathered their storms? Such was the case, the voyager informed the curious listeners, and besides, he added, he had enjoyed a very successful trip. That said, the interview was at an end so far as the traveler was concerned. He maneuvered his way out of the crowd and left it gazing at his yacht.

Hermits as a rule have no love for crowds and the Sea Hermit, Alain Gerbault, is no exception. Even after months of ocean solitude he avoids them. Indeed, it is said it was his dislike for crowds and too much society that prompted him to undertake this strange voyage around the world. This and his love for the sea.

Although he is now only 32 years old, Gerbault long ago reached the point where he had his fill of thrills of the usual sort. A member of an old and wealthy family of France, he was reared in luxury. He never had to work. All he had to do was to pursue thrills and they were easy to find. The World War found him just old enough to join the infantry. He fought in the trenches awhile and later joined the French aviation service as a man in quest of thrills might have been expected to do. In that service he turned in a remarkable record, as a number of citations for bravery attest. He won laurels, too, as a sportsman in civilian life. He became one of the greatest tennis players of France. He traveled in aristocratic circles. For several years he was a welcome guest in the most exclusive drawing rooms on the Continent and was a dandy of the boulevards as well. But he got tired of it all. So he abandoned his life of ease and pleasure to become a wanderer on the solitary spaces of the oceans, scrubbing his own decks, cooking his own food.

Gerbault spent 101 days on the first leg of his trip, from France to New York, and 70 of those days were stormy ones. Scarcely was he out of sight of land when the Atlantic tempests fell upon him and his valiant little yacht. During the first week his sails were torn to shreds by the almost constant gale. His boat was tossed and buffeted. On that rigorous voyage for the first two months he spent nearly every waking moment sewing together the tattered strips into something resembling a sail again. There were other troubles, too. With his craft being tossed backward and forward and carried out of its course, the trip consumed more time than he had anticipated. Weeks stretched into months. His water supply ran low and with that came illness. Even the most rugged constitution could not stand up indefinitely against such hardships. He came down ill from exhaustion and was unable to prepare his meals. For the last three weeks he was able to allow himself but one cup of water a day and his only food was milk.

THAT was a voyage more trying than any Columbus ever made. Flying fish fell on the deck as if inviting him to a welcome change of diet but he was too weak to cook them. Finally, when he was approaching a state of desperation akin to that suffered by the Ancient Mariner, famishing for water on a boundless ocean, the wind storms abated and rain fell in torrents, bringing him a fresh supply of drinking water. With plenty of water, he recovered and was in good physical condition when he reached New York.

With all the hardships, he declared, he had not for a moment considered turning back. When things looked blackest he was too ill to turn back had he wanted to. And when he got better he was nearer America than France, so what was the use? He kept on sailing westward and in so doing broke the record of Captain Slocum, who spent 71 days on the Pacific in a similar boat.

Shortly after news of his landing in New York became known friends hurried to offer him help, expecting to find a mere shadow of a man after such an experience, but they found him on a tennis court playing an expert game. He was feted and wined and dined in New York and a thousand invitations were showered on him, but as soon as the Firecrest's storm damage was repaired he quietly slipped out of the harbor and was gone. Nobody heard of him again until he turned up at the Panama Canal, where the American Navy squadron gave him the greatest welcome he had ever received. Gerbault was very proud of this reception.

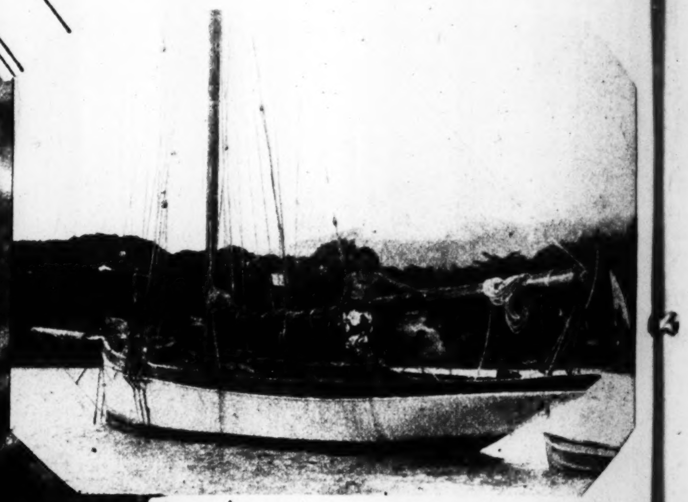
Casting off from Panama after a brief sojourn, he showed up next in the Marquesas, just below the equator and nearly 5000 miles to the west. He tarried there for weeks, caught by the exotic beauty of the islands and the charm and hospitality of a dying race. He feasted with the inhabitants on two-year-old popoi, which most Europeans or Americans would consider as great a feat as crossing the ocean in a yacht. Popoi is not exactly a delicacy according to European standards, though it is regarded as a treat in the islands. It is nothing more nor less than breadfruit that has been buried in the ground until fermented and a bit mellow. It requires an educated taste to be appreciated, but it was the best the natives had to offer, or they thought it was, and the guest of honor could not refuse for fear of offending his hosts.

ONE hospitable island after another bobbed up in the Firecrest's course during the remainder of the trip across the Pacific. The next stop was Mangareva of the Gamier group. Here the Sea Hermit found the climate and society so enchanting that he left off being a hermit for nearly two months. From there on through the "Dangerous Archipelago" sailed the little yacht to Mekemo.

After leaving the Marquesas behind, Gerbault encountered new difficulties—new, that is, for the Pacific. The cyclone season had set in and there was constant danger of being carried up, boat and all, into the clouds. Even without cyclones the Paumotuan waters are feared by experienced mariners for the sudden and terrific squalls, for racing currents and counter-currents and the million or more of jagged coral reefs whose edges are always waiting to rip the bottom out of passing vessels. There are hungry sharks, too.

But in spite of all these hazards, it was here on one of these remote islands that the Sea Hermit found his favorite cave, his retreat of rest to which he says he will return when his round-the-world voyage is completed. He will not name the place, but his eyes shine when he speaks of the palm-covered beach, enclosing a lovely blue lagoon, from which the sea is visible in all directions. His face brightens when he speaks of the kind, simple natives, who swarmed around his boat when he first arrived. They beheld him in awe for having come alone in a boat to visit them, traveling for days and weeks from Ameriti, as they call America. Daring seamen themselves, they realized what hardships this meant to a lone navigator. They offered their choicest possessions—amulets, tikis, wreaths of rare shells, braids of human hair, pearls and mother of pearl—and they felt hurt when Gerbault would not accept all. But he felt hurt, too, when they refused to partake of his scanty supply of canned food. So all were even on that score. They refused because they realized that he had another long and risky voyage ahead of him and would need it all.

A trained linguist, he was soon able to converse with the natives in their own tongue and the old legends of their isles, which they love to recite, delighted him more than the sophisticated talk of a "boulevardier."



Alain Gerbault and the Firecrest.

These people were cannibals within memory of living men, eating vanquished enemies and strangers, because all strangers were enemies then. Today they are civilized and their hospitality and kindness to strangers is proverbial. Fortunately for them, the islands are in dangerous waters and professional exploiters will not brave the danger.

Here Alain Gerbault loitered, adapting himself to their mode of living, playing their games, often excelling in their sports, and he gained special respect when he introduced the swimming stroke of Johnny Weissmuller. The people of the Paumotus are famous swimmers, spearing their fish food under water and often outswimming the sharks which dispute their rights to the fishing grounds.

It is perhaps natural that swimming should be a favorite sport of a Sea Hermit. Many of his admirers in the tennis world have wondered how he keeps in such perfect condition during his long trips, as the Firecrest is too small for running or even jumping exercises.

This is the secret. Whenever the boat is in quiet water, he jumps overboard and swims around it. Sometimes a breeze comes up, and the danger of his boat leaving him adds spice to the exercise.

GERBAULT, beset by a thousand questioners when he puts into port, answers with simple words.

"I love the sea and I love solitude," he says. "My trip is a personal affair not undertaken for a bet, or bravado, or gain, or notoriety. The Firecrest is a seaworthy boat and I feel as safe on her in midocean—and safer—than ashore. I learned to handle boats, when a boy, along the coast of Brittany. All my vacations were spent there on my father's yacht. The only thing I liked better was to go with some fishermen in a small boat. I doubt if there are better sailors in the world than the Brittany fishermen, and the Brittany coast is no place for fair weather yachtsmen. They taught me to handle boats—and to handle them in emergencies. These men love the sea, as a mountaineer loves his hills, with a passionate love and understanding, as anyone must who knows the sea. One cannot fear what one loves."

After leaving Tahiti the Firecrest struck a reef near the Austral Islands and the French Government sent a gunboat to repair the damage done. Now Gerbault is homeward bound for France. There he will build a new boat of his own design, even smaller than the Firecrest, and return to his favorite island in Polynesia. Late press dispatches have it that the islanders have chosen Alain Gerbault king, and the high esteem in which he is held by the French Government makes it a possibility that the republic may allow him the crown.

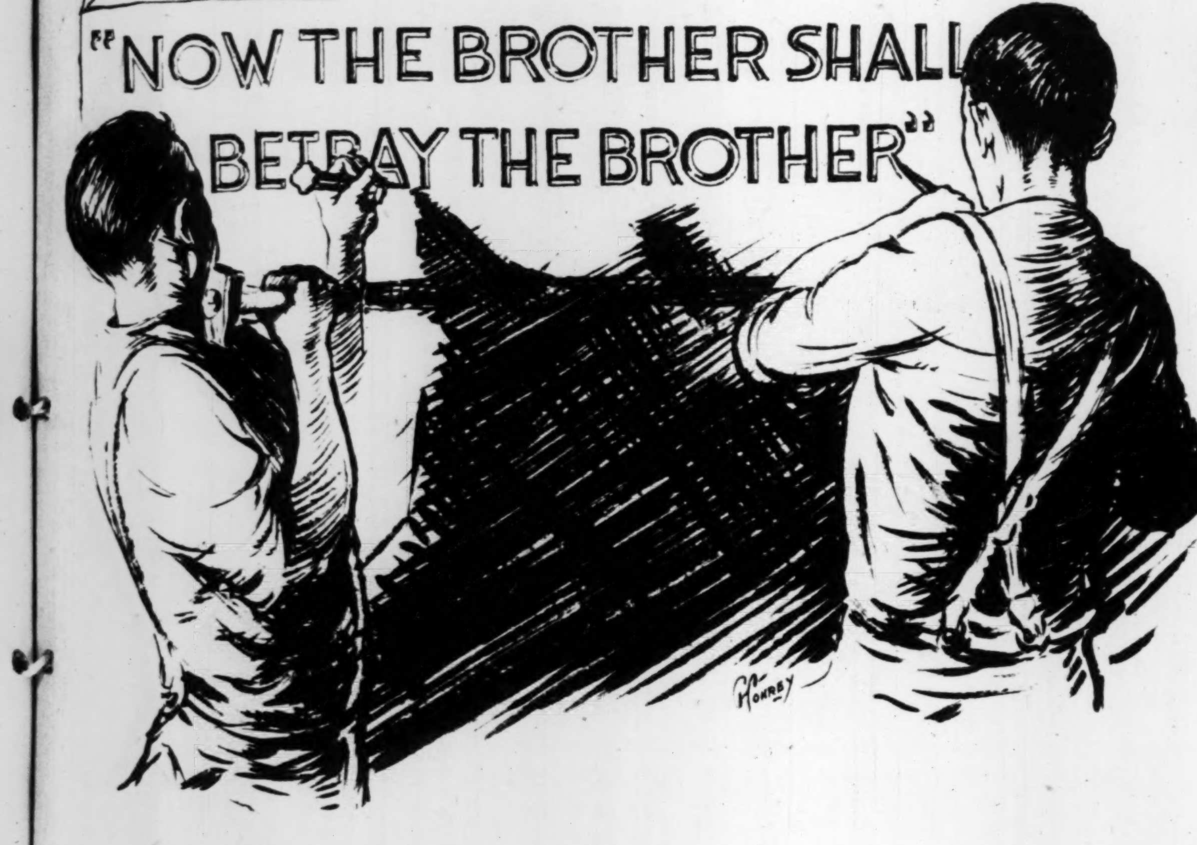
Loved One Brother—
MARRIED ANOTHER

Now After Fifteen Years Mrs. Dora Rothwell Is Suing Her Husband—Who Says He Has Been Betrayed —for Divorce.



"NOW THE BROTHER SHALL BETRAY THE BROTHER"
Rooney

Mrs. Dora Rothwell with three of her four children.

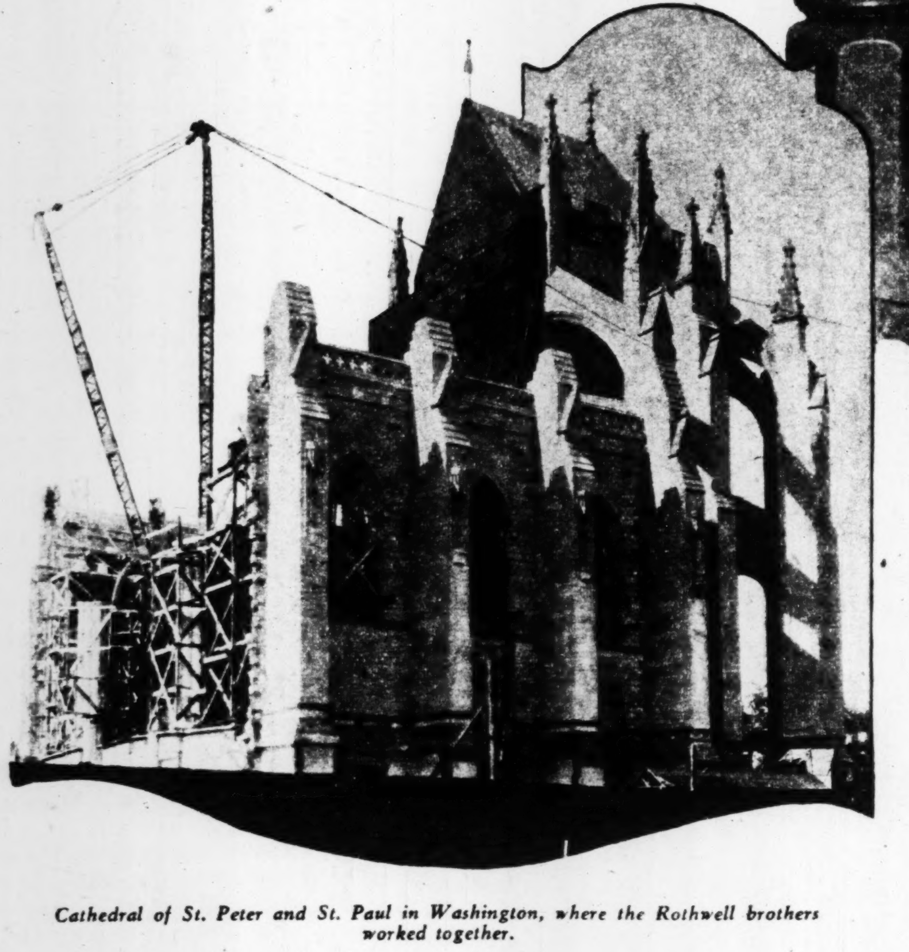
WASHINGTON.

IT was a childhood romance in the beginning, and harmless as childhood romances go. Robert Rothwell, as a small boy, was enamored of Dora Wilson. And Dora Wilson was enamored of Robert. She liked his brother, Franklin, too, but Robert was her particular hero. The three were playmates. The Rothwells and the Wilsons lived only a stone's throw apart in Georgetown, the old port town on the bank of the Potomac which is now a part of Washington proper. The children went to the same school and used to romp together around the locks of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal which George Washington built as one of his first engineering ventures. They were together most of the time. And it was generally conceded in juvenile circles that Dora was Robert's "girl." All of this was 20 years ago.

Now the romance of Dora Wilson and Robert Rothwell is attracting attention again. Much wider attention this time, and the circumstances are not so pleasant as in the old days when the two played along the banks of the historic C. & O. canal. The trouble now is that she isn't Dora Wilson. Not exactly. She is Mrs. Franklin Rothwell and the mother of four children. Fifteen years ago, after Robert had left the home of his youth and was not heard from again, she married the brother in the hope of finding Robert's qualities in Franklin. She remained secretly in love with Robert and when he returned a few months ago she speedily and openly transferred her affections back to the suitor of her childhood. At least, such were the facts set forth in Franklin's recent divorce petition in which he named his brother, Robert, as co-respondent.

IT isn't clear now what happened to Robert's affections in the days when he still might have pursued his romance without violating the home of his brother. There may have been a quarrel. Or, it may have been that Robert didn't take his youthful love affair so seriously as Dora took hers. Anyway, he left Georgetown about 1908 and sought his fortune in other regions without so much as leaving Dora or Franklin his address. Years passed and no word came from him. Franklin and Dora now were thrown together without the presence of a third party and Franklin took up the romance where Robert left off. That was agreeable to Dora because Franklin was a good deal like Robert anyway.



Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul in Washington, where the Rothwell brothers worked together.

Indeed, the Rothwell brothers had similar tastes in other matters than romances. Their talents also ran in the same direction, as evidenced by the fact that after they were separated they both took up the same occupation—that of stone-cutting. And, pursuing their separate ways, each became more or less famous in building circles for the delicate quality and grace of his work. Both became prosperous.

Eventually, Robert was seized with the desire of the wanderer to visit again the scenes of his childhood. Perhaps the memory of Dora Wilson and curiosity had something to do with that. Maybe not. Maybe he resolved upon a trip home without even a thought of her. Certainly she had no hint of his coming. Neither did her husband until he arrived.

The reunion was a pleasant occasion and the occasion for several surprises, as it turned out. Robert was interested to learn that his brother was still living in the old family home which had become his after the death of his parents. It was with greater surprise that he learned he and Franklin had chosen the same occupation. He expressed interest, too, upon being informed Franklin had married Dora Wilson. But not too much interest. Evidence of the degree of interest he really felt was to come later. He was glad to see Dora and there the matter rested.

In the days immediately following his return, it seems, Robert Rothwell took more interest in his brother's choice of occupation than in his choice of a wife. He himself had remained a bachelor and wasn't quick to become romantic anyway. But he was a good stone cutter and was quick to see that a business partnership with his brother might be highly profitable. Franklin Rothwell was equally enthusiastic over the possibilities, so they soon decided upon a stone-cutting partnership.

The pact was signed and sealed, and the partnership turned out to be even more than was expected. So excellent was their work and so rapidly did their renown spread that they were chosen to do the intricate cutting on the interior stone work of the magnificent Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, then being erected in Washington on heights overlooking the Potomac. They set to work and among the many inscriptions which they cut into the stone was this one:

"Now the brother shall betray the brother."

That quotation, taken from the thirteenth chapter of the gospel of St. Mark, was to be strangely prophetic. Within three months its truth had come home to the brothers themselves. Here is how it happened.

Since Robert was a bachelor, Franklin thought it would be an act of brotherly affection to share his own home with the wanderer. Accordingly, he took Robert in as a sort of permanent guest. Apparently it never occurred to him that the old romance of school days might be revived. He supposed it had been entirely forgotten, and even if it hadn't been forgotten, he assumed, it would mean only a tie of friendship.

Of course, it caused no suspicion on his part when he observed that his wife and Robert seemed to be on exceedingly friendly terms. Indeed, far from being jealous, he considered it fortunate that the two were able to get on so well together.

AS THE months passed, however, there occurred several little things which caused the husband to wonder whether, perhaps, he was not placing too much confidence in the two. One thing led to another until finally, when his suspicions had run so wild that he was no longer able to control himself, he flew into a fury and accused his wife of being unfaithful to him. Here he was to get a surprise.

He had expected his wife, quite naturally perhaps, to deny everything, and to vow that it was he and only he whom she loved. He had, as a matter of fact, pictured the whole scene to himself beforehand, he later related, and assured himself that it was the only certain way to rid himself of the doubts that were torturing him.

Mrs. Rothwell, he told the Court, listened to his charges in silence and then, when he had finished his tirade, answered.

"I'm sorry, Franklin," she is reported to have said to him. "It is true that I don't love you. Not only that, but I never have loved you. I do love Robert, and always did. When he wandered away as a boy I married you because I thought I might find in you the things I loved in him. Now he has come back."

The next day the great stone-cutting partnership was dissolved. It collapsed and fell in a heap. Contracts were canceled and work on the carving of the interior of the National Episcopal Cathedral was suspended until someone else could be found with sufficient skill to carry on the undertaking. The job had been abandoned with some inscriptions only half made. To say nothing of a broken home and the alienation of brothers, this little rejuvenated love affair had meant the ruin of two careers. All over a woman!

Franklin and Robert Rothwell, however, made no declaration of hostilities. There was no man hunt conducted by an outraged husband. No weapons at all were brought into the dispute. Not even fists were used. And there were no curses or vows of eternal hatred. The brothers conducted themselves as gentlemen. They met quietly and talked the matter over, reaching at last the decision that it would be best for both to leave Dora and the children in the old home and betake themselves to other quarters. They agreed that both would leave the city. In this, the husband was true to his agreement. Broken in health, he left his home and became an exile. He installed himself in a shack on the lower Potomac and there spent several months seeking recovery from his shock and grief. Robert, on the other hand, instead of leaving Washington as he had agreed to do, remained in the city, living here and there and picking up whatever small jobs offered.

IN SEPTEMBER Franklin came back, hoping his absence had contributed toward solution of the problem. He attempted to effect a reconciliation with Mrs. Rothwell, but to no avail. Then, suddenly embittered, he went about the neighborhood in quest of testimony that might be used as evidence against her in a divorce action. And he was not long in finding it.

Several acquaintances living nearby, he told the Court, informed him that the brother had visited the wife often during his absence. On several occasions, they related, Robert Rothwell had been seen leaving the place at 7 o'clock in the morning. That seemed to be enough, so Franklin took these facts to a lawyer and began drawing up a divorce petition. Dora, however, had thought of that also.

Before he and his attorney could file the action, he himself was served with notice of a suit against him. Dora asked for a limited divorce, charging cruelty.

His own charges of infidelity, therefore, were made in the form of an answer to the suit of his wife, Rothwell asking for the divorce in his own right. There the matter rests for the present. And no matter which way the Judge decides the case when it comes to trial, the effect will be substantially the same—a family disrupted because Robert Rothwell didn't take his romance seriously until his childhood "girl" had become his brother's wife.

Disaster Again Snares the SUBMARINE

Death List Mounts in the American Service but the Navy Department Still Rejects Safety Devices.

PROVINCETOWN, Massachusetts.

SETTLING down in the ooze offshore here is another steel coffin, the shell of the submarine S-4. The 40 men who went down with it brought the death list from United States submarine disasters since the war to 111.

With the spring, the S-4 may be raised by that long, costly process, already begun, which was used in bringing the rammed S-51 to the surface.

When the S-4 sank, civilians raised the familiar cry: make the submarine safe. Congressmen issued statements and householders shuddered at the agony of the six men in the only compartment that remained watertight after the crash, dying, ratlike, in a steel trap.

But the Navy, with that stubbornness which is sometimes called fatalism, said, in substance, this:

The submarine cannot be made safe. It is a branch of our navy, a hazardous branch, and the various safety devices and provisions that have been suggested are impractical if the submarines are to be prepared for warfare. There will inevitably be disasters, just as there are disasters—accidents—in connection with the operation of cruisers and destroyers. Naturally, there will be more disasters, proportionately, in the submarine branch than in any other arm of the service.

It was with a similar resignation that the sailors who man these submersible sardine cans accepted the news of the disaster. The Government allows extra pay to the amount of $1 a dive, up to 15 dives a month, with $5 extra for washing oily dungarees, to men in the submarine service. You bet a dollar that you'll come up again, these men say. The crew of the S-4 lost their bets.

IN THE navies of the world, from accidents not attributable to the World War, 422 men have bet and lost in the last 12 years. And this total does not include minor mishaps, such as frequent explosions, in which only two or three have been killed. The major disasters have been rather evenly divided, with one or two exceptions, between Great Britain, Japan and the United States as follows:

November 25, 1918—A new British submarine sank in Gaerloch Lock, near the Clyde; 31 lives lost.

September 26, 1921—United States submarine R-6 sank in San Pedro harbor, California; two lives lost.

October 28, 1923—United States submarine O-5 sank after a collision with United Fruit steamer near Atlantic entrance to Panama Canal; three lives lost.

December 17, 1927—United States submarine S-4 sank after a collision with the cruiser Paulding; 40 lives lost.

When the news is flashed that a submarine has gone down, with life believed to be preserved on board, certain ideas occur to nearly everyone. Why don't they cut a hole in the side and let them out? That is one of the most frequent questions asked, for it is known that a torch has recently been invented which will cut steel under water.

In most instances there is a good reason why this means of rescue cannot be employed after the position of the sunken submarine has been obtained, often a difficult enough undertaking in itself. It is the tremendous pressure of the water. At the depth to which the S-4 sank, for example—102 feet—the pressure is more than three tons to every square foot of surface. It is as though a column of water weighing a little over three tons were pressing down on every square foot. If a hole was to be cut in the side and the water admitted, even gradually, the survivors in the compartments that had remained watertight would be crushed like eggshells.

WATER pressure is the answer, too, to the question always asked: Why don't the men escape through the torpedo tubes or one of the hatches? There is one instance on record, when a new British submarine went to the bottom of the Gaerloch Lock, a depth of 90 feet, of escape through the conning tower hatch. The imprisoned men—42 remained alive while 31 were drowned instantly — were trapped and it was necessary to get some word of their fate to the surface. Captain Goodhart volunteered for the attempt. High-pressure bottles of compressed air were brought into use and the Captain endeavored with their aid to be projected through the conning tower hatch against the great force of the water. He was shot forward, but his head struck a beam and he was killed. Another officer volunteered and was fortunate enough to reach the surface, where he gave the alarm which eventually enabled the 40 men who remained entombed in the boat to be rescued.

But such an escape is very rare and very lucky. It might be possible, if the submarine was at a depth of not more than 70 or 80 feet, to escape through the torpedo tubes, either forward or aft, granted that the compartments from which the tubes could be entered had remained watertight. Only the strongest and most heroic of men could effect such an escape, for it would entail being shut into the tube, with the entrance to the submarine compartment closed after you, following which the outer door would be opened and the water would rush in. Holding your breath, it would be necessary to crawl the 21 feet through the grease-lined tube, withstanding a tremendous pressure, after which, because of this same force, you would be shot to the surface of the water as though hurled from a catapult.

Another question the civilian asks at the time of a submarine disaster is: Why do they wait so long before trying to bring the submarine up and why is there always so much delay in getting an emergency airline to the imprisoned men?

It is first necessary to locate the submarine on the bottom, and this is often difficult, particularly when the craft has gone down from some cause other than a collision. At one time the navy had emergency telephone and light buoys which could be released from the interior. These bobbed up to the surface and a siren began automatically to sound. These are no longer part of the submarine's equipment, however, as during the war it was found that they were often released accidentally, which, in the presence of the enemy, was disastrous.

Then, rescue craft, bearing divers, must be summoned from a distance. Arrived at the scene of the disaster, the divers cannot go down unless the weather is nearly ideal. And during the fall and winter months off the coast here there is scarcely one ideal day in 10. Nearly always there are delays while the rescuers wait for storms to abate. Although the effect of the wind and waves is not felt by divers at a depth of more than 50 feet, it is impossible to go ahead with operations in a storm because the rescue ships are so tossed about that the divers' air and communication lines cannot be secured. Even under ideal conditions diving work below 80 feet is very slow and dangerous.

The time consumed in raising a submarine of the American Navy has varied from nine months to a year and a half. Navy men point out that there is one salvage ship, the Kearsarge, equipped with cranes having a lift of 100,000 tons, which might have raised the S-4 in comparatively quick time after chains had been put around the submersible. But the Kearsarge, following the S-4 disaster, chanced to be out on the Pacific coast. There has been some agitation for giant crane ships stationed at various points along both coasts. But nothing has come of it.

CONSIDERING these things, it is not surprising that navy men, when they hear a submarine has gone down, abandon hope almost at once. They tend to regard the rescue operations that follow as so much window-dressing for the benefit of civilians. Particularly is this true if the craft has gone to a depth of more than 80 feet, since there is really no means of speedy rescue at this depth.

Navy men are skeptical, too, of the agitation for safety devices which invariably follows a disaster. There are several safety devices, most of them American inventions. Lifting rings, to be placed at various points about the sides of the under-water craft, is the most commonly urged proposal. On the large S type and the larger V type boats these would have to be fastened to a special band, which would girdle the ship.

"The smaller submarines did have an eye for towing and lifting," Rear Admiral J. D. Beuret, Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, said in a statement issued following the S-4 disaster, "but with the coming of the larger S type vessel, weighing 750 tons or more, this precautionary measure was abandoned. For the large ships an ordinary eye would be worse than useless. It would pull out immediately. A whole series, with their weight distributed throughout the vessel, would be required. There we come upon a matter of judgment. Weight is at a premium on a submarine and we must consider the wartime problems. To have effective eyes, other weights, some of them extremely necessary in war, would have to be discarded."

And that, in effect, is the answer given to all proposals for safety devices. Representative Anthony J. Griffin, Democrat, of New York, is the inventor of a detachable steel raft, to be housed between the outer and inner walls of the submarine. It is designed to fit flush with the deck so that it offers no resistance to the ship's motion. Upon the Navy Department's objection that it might chance that the raft would be situated over a compartment that was flooded, Representative Griffin replied with a demand that the lifeboat or a similar emergency device be placed in or above every compartment. Griffin has been one of the severest critics of the Government's submarine policy. He denounced the Navy Department following both the S-51 and the S-4 disasters.

ANOTHER safety device is that worked out by Simon Lake, one of the inventors principally responsible for the modern submarine. This, his newest invention, on which he has offered the patent rights free, consists of a diving compartment in the front and stern of each submarine. The diving compartment consists of two chambers—an airlock and an escape compartment, with doors opening out from the submarine, so they act like a check valve in preventing water from entering. Air is first pumped into the escape chambers until it equalizes the pressure of the water outside of the vessel. The door of the escape chamber is then opened and the person going out enters it.

Here he finds a diving dress. He also finds a buoy with a hose attached to it which he sends up to the surface. In the buoy is a telephone. It is marked so that any vessel seeing it will recognize it as coming from the submarine. On it they will find directions telling what to do.

When the vessel finding the buoy telephones down to the submarine, those inside know that someone is at the surface ready to receive them. One man slips on the diving suit and goes out through a trap door in the bottom of the escape chamber, the air pressure from within preventing the water from entering. The man in the diving suit ascends along the line to the buoy slowly to avoid a sudden change in pressure; and when he is picked up at the surface gets out of the diving suit. His arrival is telephoned back to the submerged submarine and a second man pulls back the diving suit. The process is repeated until all have escaped.

There are many other proposals, but to all the Navy Department gives this answer, contained in a bulletin issued by the Bureau of Construction and Repair:

"Since a submarine is constructed principally for use as a military vessel, any features not of military value which detract materially from the military value of the vessel cannot be installed."

It is the aim of the Navy Department to keep the submarines always on a war basis. That is why suggestions, frequently made, that submarine maneuvers be conducted in isolated waters, where a single craft may operate, cannot be considered. The United States Navy operates its submarines on a policy of offensive warfare and there-

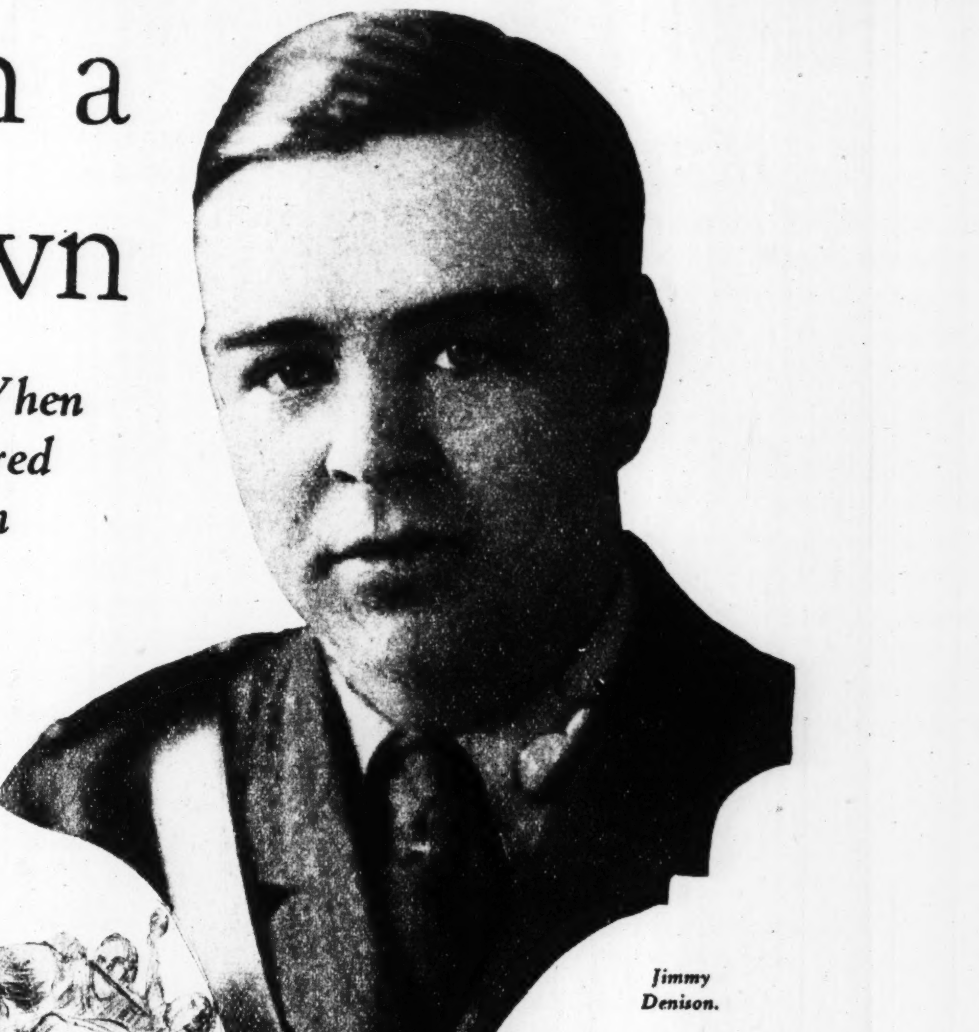
The Riot That Split Open a Nebraska Town

It Was a Dull Sunday Afternoon When the Young Bloods of Kearney Declared War on a Neighboring Syrian Colony—Now Most of Them Are in Jail.

John Shada.



Jimmy Denison.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

KEARNEY, Nebraska.

THE repression of Puritanical blue laws, castoff hatreds left by the once active Ku Klux Klan and the irrepressible energy of the young bloods of this Nebraska town all combined on a dull Sunday afternoon of last summer in a tragedy to which the sequel is being written today. The passions of that afternoon have crystallized into inflexible hatreds, neighbor is at odds with neighbor, and most of the town's young bloods, members of the most respected families of Kearney, confront the reality of long jail sentences.

There really is nothing to do in Kearney on Sunday—nothing that is legal, anyway. After church in the morning, and the heavy dinner at noon, time drags very slowly. Baseball is forbidden by the blue laws. So are the movies and the band concerts that formerly afforded a social focus for the life of the town.

It's not so bad for the older people. They can sleep off the effects of their dinners, or drowse indolently over a magazine. But for the younger generation, particularly for the boys, the boredom and dullness become unendurable. After you've driven up and down Main street a few times there is nothing else to do.

It was on such a Sunday afternoon —August 28—that three boys, Ernest Noble, Victor Nutter and Otis Nyles, were looking, desperately, for something to do. They chanced to see Alla Yanne, a young Syrian boy. Now ever since the Ku Klux Klan waxed strong in Kearney, inflamed racial hatreds and then dwindled to comparative unimportance, it has been considered good sport to bait the Syrians who live in and around here. What better diversion for this exceedingly dull Sunday afternoon? They called out the taunt of taunts as they passed Yanne, the taunt that is to a Syrian a challenge to battle. "Hi there, wop!" "Oh dago, dago!"

IT was several years ago that a band of Syrians traveling across the country stopped at Kearney. They liked the look of the country and of the town and they decided to stop and make their homes here. Others followed. They brought with them their customs and their religion and they prospered after the ways of their race. Meek-eyed, mild, to a certain extent a persecuted people, they had a capacity for hard work and a facility at minding their own business.

They acquired truck farms and gardens and a few small shops in the town, eventually spreading to neighboring communities and altogether seemed destined to become recognized citizens of the land. They were of the Greek Orthodox or the Roman Catholic faith. Then came the Klan. There were persecutions. And the Syrians did not always accept these docilely Particularly the younger men were often inclined to strike back. There was some tension for a time but when the influence of the Klan waned, things seemed to stand just about as they had before. Except—and it was this exception which brought tragedy—that the young men and boys in Kearney persisted in their dislike and hostility toward the Syrians long after the organized movement toward hundred per cent Americanism had become negligible. And the young Syrians remained on their guard against those taunting cries of "Wop!"

Just so was Yanne. At the taunt and the threat of a pursuit Yanne drove his car up an alley, got out, doubled up his fists and waited. The fight that followed was slightly uneven — three against one—and Yanne came off considerably the worse in the scuffle, beating a retreat at the first opportunity. Fleeing, he hurled back a threat that he would bring back help to make the fight more even.

He went directly out to the Gabriel Shada farm where the Syrians were celebrating their annual baptismal festival, a day of great importance. Some seven or eight hundred had gathered for the fete. The big feast was in full sway when Yanne arrived. Accepting the counsel of the elders and forgetting his anger in the gaiety of the occasion, he allowed the quarrel to pass.

But the three young Americans still had the terrible Sunday boredom confronting them. They followed Yanne to the Shada farm and sought him out. Before hostilities could be renewed, however, one of them, Noble, got mixed up with another Syrian, and was obviously getting the worst of it. This was the signal for the other two, Nutter and Nyles, to retreat, leaving Noble to the mercies of the enemy.

They went back to Kearney as fast as they could and there they began to organize a mob, rounding up all their friends that they could find. They hadn't, of course, the faintest idea that they were forming a mob; they were simply going forth to an impassioned battle which was a very welcome diversion.

The word spread rapidly. At the leading hotel they found the Denison boys—Jimmy, 22, Arthur, 25, and Toots, 18—and four others. The elder Denison owns the hotel and it had become something of a gathering place on drab Sunday afternoons. Here were five very willing recruits, Arthur, the oldest Denison, declining to go.

When almost the whole town had been canvassed, there was a small army of 60 to 75 boys and men, ranging in age from 15 to 25. They piled into several trucks and autos and went forth to battle.

NOW Noble had come off a very second best in a man-to-man encounter with the Syrian youth, having been bruised and battered up considerably. But when the fight stopped, the Syrians took him into the farmhouse, and helped him to restore his normal appearance. They started to take him back to town.

The two factions met not far from the Shada farm. When Noble's friends had taken him out of the car, they hurled a couple of bricks at the enemy and the fight was on in earnest.

Two Syrians made their way back to the farm to sound the alarm and bring assistance. It was not long before new forces came rushing onto the scene, in true Syrian fashion, women and children first, the men close behind. Cries and screams were heard, clubs and bricks flew everywhere.

The Syrians got the worst of the battle at every turn. They had been unprepared for the fray. Dozens of them received blows over the head with clubs and others were painfully hurt with bricks. However, they managed to retaliate a bit and several Kearney boys suffered minor bruises.

The road for several hundred yards was filled with a fighting, milling, cursing mass of humans. Several lay unconscious and were trampled underfoot.

Then, from the midst of the melee, came the report of a revolver. John Shada fell, clutching at his throat and crying, "I've been shot, I've been shot."

Almost at once the army from Kearney began to retreat, still shouting and hurling an occasional remaining brick or two. It was a short time afterward that the road was cleared and only a litter of clubs, sticks and stones and an occasional splotch of blood remained to indicate where the riot had been.

THE victorious army was cut off in its retreat by police from Kearney who had had word of the riot. When they learned a man had been shot, they rounded up every possible suspect and the city jail was soon filled with a very collegiate and aristocratic host, many of the rioters having been undergraduates home from the University of Nebraska for the summer vacation.

It was all just a good joke, this going to jail stuff, and many were the valiant boasts of prowess in the day's battle. "Well, the dagos got their's this time." That was what everyone felt.

And then they learned that John Shada had died, three hours after the riot. This news had a very sobering effect. The protestations of innocence were as loud as the boasts had been.

The State charged Jimmy Denison with the shooting. It was a crushing blow to his father, E. J. Denison, who is known pretty much throughout the state as a wealthy sportsman, a humane and very kindly type of man. Jimmy was to have been a sophomore at the University at Lincoln in the fall, his second year at pre-medic work. As a freshman he had won a place as guard on the football team and had distinguished himself in several games.

But there was no returning to the university. He had to face trial on a charge of manslaughter. The prosecution based its case largely on the testimony of Charles Shada, a brother of the murdered man, who said he saw Denison pull the gun from his pocket and shoot, despite his warning: "Dennison, don't shoot! I know you."

Mrs. Rose Miller testified that her car was stopped by the Kearney boys and that Denison jumped on the running board, gun in hand, saying: "We won't kill you, dago, but see this, we're going to kill a lot of those dagos down there," pointing to the Shada farm. John Shada did not identify Denison before he died.

Testimony offered by Mrs. Charles Shada also was damaging to Denison. She testified that she was watching the riot from the road. Denison was fighting and hitting her countrymen over the head with a club with reckless abandon, she said. Then the club was wrested from his grasp and she said she saw him take a revolver from his pocket but did not see the shooting that followed. Cross-examination failed to shake the testimony of the Syrians.

But the case for the defense was strong, too, and as the trial progressed lines of hatred and prejudice were laid down among the townspeople, themselves. Ten witnesses were introduced for Denison, five of them friends, who had taken part in the riot. The five were unanimous in their testimony that Denison was fighting in a ditch at the side of the road when the shot was fired. Glen Peaker, brother of Harold Peaker, University of Nebraska football star, was specific in his testimony that Denison was not in a position from which he could have fired the shot.

The defense introduced three witnesses who testified that the fatal shot was fired by Sam Shada. They claimed they saw Shada fire a small revolver in the air and that a Kearney youth pulled his arm down, with the result that the shot struck John Shada. The witnesses testified that they saw Shada fire three times in the air before his arm was jerked down by one of the rioters.

Throughout the trial John Shada's widow, his brother and sister-in-law and two cousins wept frequently. This, the defense claimed, had a marked influence on the jury. One of the principal aims of the defense was to distinguish between general rioting for which no one could be held responsible and the firing of a murderous shot with which Denison was charged.

The intense interest in the trial created a tension that was felt throughout the entire town. Several arguments grew into fist fights that threatened on one or two occasions to become new riots. Even religion played a part. Members of the Episcopal church, to which the Denisons belong, were openly hostile toward those who took sides against the accused youth. The Rev. A. H. Marsden, rector of the church, and many of the women members of the congregation attended every session of the trial and made pleas for Denison.

After 17 hours of deliberation, when all the evidence had been presented, the jury came in to announce a verdict of guilty. They based their decision, one juror revealed, on the belief that Denison's friends were lying to save him and that Charles Shada was telling the truth. Judge J. P. Hostettler sentenced Denison to seven years at hard labor.

There was an emotional outburst that approached hysteria with the announcement of the decision. Mr. and Mrs. Denison wept openly and bailiffs had great difficulty in keeping sympathizers from Denison's side. Defense attorneys are still undecided whether they will appeal.

Although young Denison has borne the brunt of the consequences, he is not the only sufferer. Nutter and Noble are still held on murder charges but the county attorney has indicated that the charge will be changed to manslaughter. They have been offered light sentences if they will plead guilty, but they have refused, claiming that not one of their members had a gun in his possession. Six other rioters have been given jail sentences ranging from 10 to 30 days and fines up to $100. They are all under 22 years of age. Six others are awaiting sentence and a number of others are still to be arrested and will face trial during the February term of court, it is said. The county attorney has warned parents to bring their sons in to face the music rather than wait for them to be arrested.

Denison accepts his fate good naturedly enough. "I'm innocent," he insists. "I would never have the heart to shoot a man."

He has given up hopes of being a doctor, he says. He will be 29 when he leaves the penitentiary, or, with good behavior, 27. He feels that the best years of his life will be spent behind prison bars—just on the outskirts of Lincoln where he was once a student at the university—making shirts or brooms.

Feeling in Kearney is still very strong. Those who have supported the Denisons look the other way when they pass Judge Hostettler on the street. They say that at the next election he will find out how popular his sentence was. But, as far as known, the Judge and the jurors feel that they did their duty, however disagreeable it may have been.

MADE a SOLO FLIGHT
at the Age of THIRTEEN

Remarkable Exploits of Cozette Parker and Her Family—the Flying Parkers of Indiana.

Farnum Parker.

ANDERSON, Indiana.

THE citizens of Kankakee, Illinois, saw an airplane zooming over their heads the other day, and they did just as anyone any place else would do under the same circumstances: they stopped in their tracks and craned their necks. The usual conjectures, surmises and comments were then engaged in: "Wonder who it is?" "Is it an army plane?" "No, you can always tell army planes; they've got red and white stripes on the rudder." And so forth and so on, and many were the guesses, and all of them were wrong. For the "intrepid birdman," as some of the more rhetorical are wont to describe those who sail through the air, was no "birdman" at all; this flyer was not even a "birdwoman"; she was a "birdgirl," and a 13-year-old one at that.

And when the 13-year-old saw fit, she brought her plane to the ground, the while stretching necks gradually lowered their elevation; she got out of her machine, and she went to see her grandfather, Mr. Gustave Poitras, who lives at Kankakee. Cozette Parker had completed her first solo flight.

Cozette's home is here in Anderson. Anderson is 138 miles from Kankakee. Cozette, then, had flown 138 miles the first time she took a ship up with no other companion than the ship itself. And what is usually considered a very good solo flight is one of 15 minutes, with the flying field never out of sight.

THE results of young Miss Parker's flight were as American as Kankakee. She received several thousand congratulatory, laudatory and effusive letters. Many were the proposals which, despite her tender age, poured in upon her, and four cinema manufacturers signified their willingness to enlist her in their celluloid ranks. And despite these evidences of the young lady's fame and fast-spreading popularity, her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parker, wondered just what was so unusual about a 13-year-old girl flying 138 miles by herself. For the Parkers are what might be termed a flying family; that is, Mr. Parker has been flying for 20 years, Mrs. Parker flies, Cozette's 15-year-old brother, Farnum, flies, and her younger brother, Bobby by name, and aged 12, expects to make his solo just as soon after he is 13 as possible.

As we just related, Cozette's father has been flying for 20 years. He was one of the pioneers of the air; in the early days of flying he was connected with the now historic Wright brothers, and the past two decades have seen Parker devoting himself entirely to the business of the airplane.

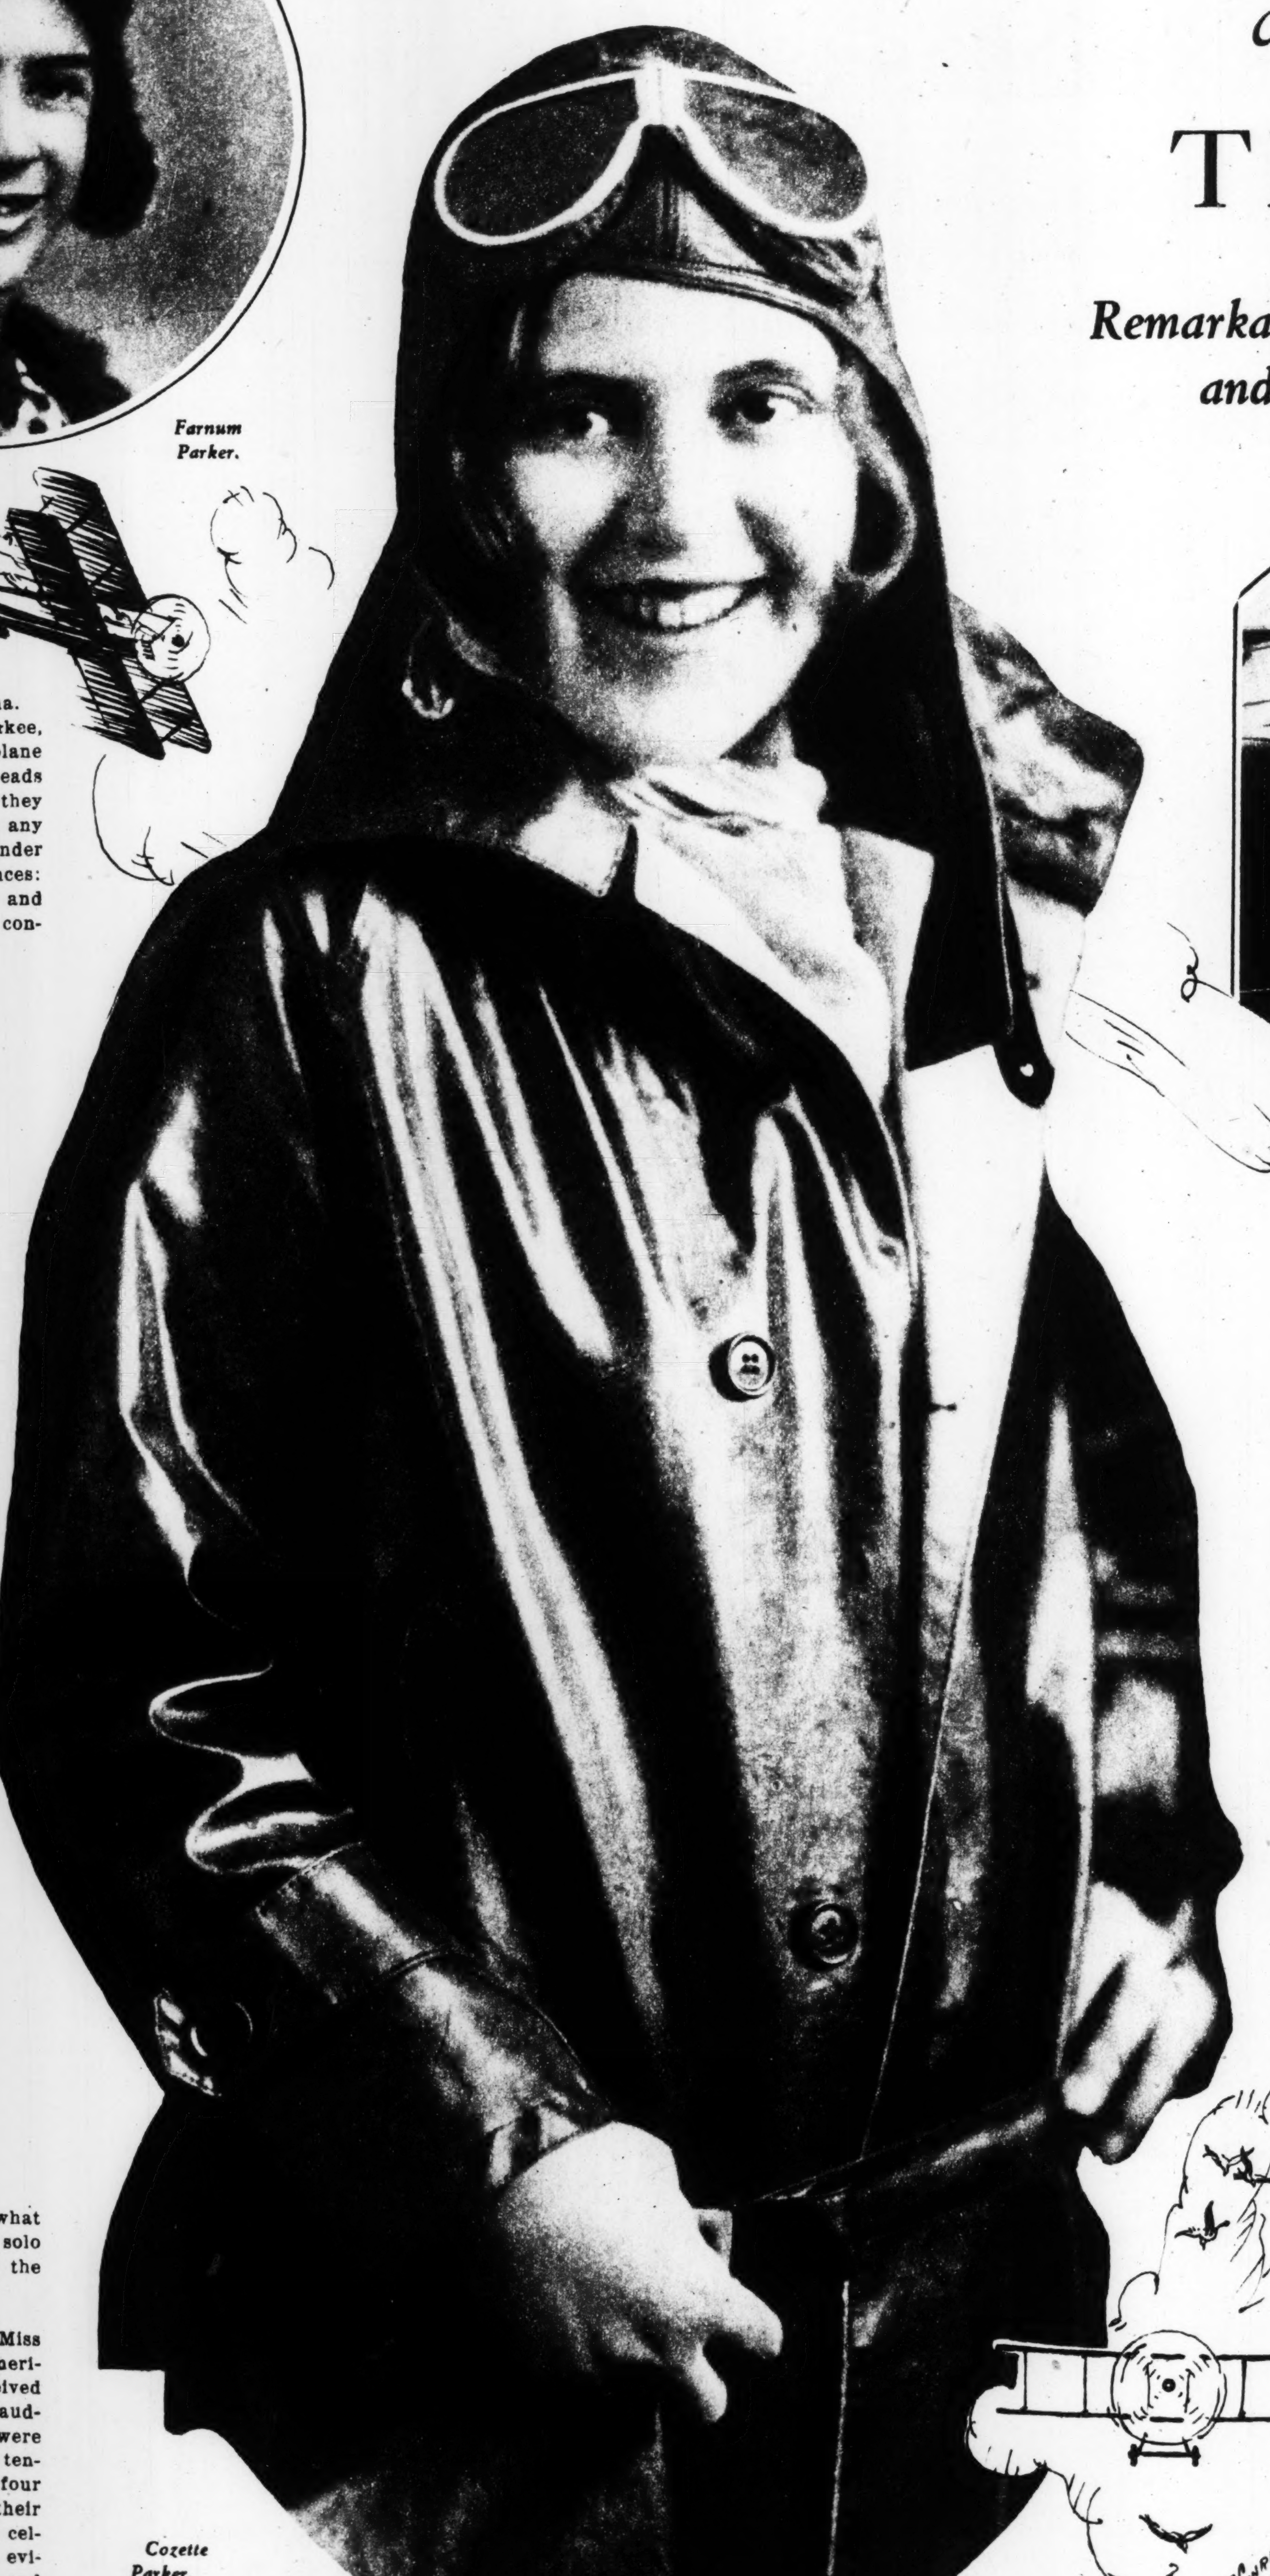
When he was 22 he built his first flying machine, and that plane excited much attention, the principal reason being that it flew. It negotiated the tremendous height of 140 feet above the ground and it stayed in the air for the then remarkable time of eight minutes.

Those were tempestuous days for the aviator and for anybody or anything else in the vicinity. The general appearance of what was then conscientiously termed an "aeroplane" was that of a huge box kite, and when the ungainly-looking thing got into the air it wriggled along with all the grace of something suffering from St. Vitus' dance. It dipped, it bucked, it jerked.

The frames of those old contraptions were made of spruce and ash, while the great open spaces between the sticks were covered with unbleached muslin. They weighed about 800 pounds, these machines, and they were not bothered by such things as wheels; a wooden landing gear sufficed. Sometimes they worked themselves up to a speed of about 40 miles an hour, while the pilot, and anyone who had the temerity to ride with him, sat on tiny seats, their feet sticking out in front of them. When the machines came down—a feat which they found no difficulty in accomplishing—they landed plump upon their lethargic skids, and stood shiveringly still while a cloud of dust encompassed them.

But since those flying days, Mr. Parker has had considerable experience in the air, for he has thousands of flying hours to his credit and he has taken up hundreds and hundreds of passengers. Most of the money that came his way in the old days went right back into air machines; whenever he made a thousand or two out of a plane or netted a tidy sum from his passenger flights, he then went out and borrowed an equal sum. Whereupon he invested the money in a new plane or another workshop. Now he is experimenting with an air-cooled motor, while recently in Ohio he has been testing a large monoplane which is thinking about setting off on a very long nonstop flight. Mr. Parker may, so the story goes, pilot the machine on its journey.

Mr. Parker has never had an accident. In fact, none of the flying Parkers have ever had an accident. They take no unnecessary chances with the air. Parker has had near-accidents; often has he averted them and often has he escaped death, but these near-disasters were never the fault of carelessness.



Cozette Parker.

The Parkers do most of their traveling by machine. It was more than 13 years ago, when Farnum Parker was a baby of 2, that Parker and Mrs. Parker and young Farnum were flying southward, making their way along the Mississippi River. It was night and something went wrong; a forced landing was necessary. But Parker achieved it, and not one of them was injured.

It was on another occasion that the aeronautical father had a rather different and a bit more painful experience. It is implied above that Parker never suffered injury. That is not quite true, for on this occasion he did, and in a most amazing manner.

Parker had sold a plane to two young men, and they had gone into the business of taking passengers who desired the experience of aerial travel up into space. Some weeks after the purchase, Parker was piloting the plane for these young men. It was a busy afternoon, but the engine was not working properly, and Parker attempted to dissuade its owners from taking it up until it could be properly resuscitated. It seems the owners had hardly kept it as fit as it was when Parker delivered it to them.

But what with it being a busy afternoon and business being good, the partners prevailed upon Parker to try it again, and so he did, though much against his will and judgment. He took off, this time his passenger a rich young banker, and up they went into the air. But when they had gotten to some altitude the motor caught fire; the flames spread to the fuselage and the wealthy passenger, convinced, perhaps, that while death awaited him if he jumped from the machine, that would not be so dangerous as remaining where he was, chose the former course and started to jump.

But Parker saw him, grabbed at him and held him with one hand while he attempted to land the ship with the other. Strangely enough, as this drama of the air was speedily progressing toward a tragedy of the air, the young banker, possibly in an effort to show his displeasure or in an attempt to express himself, sank his teeth into Mr. Parker's arm with such vigor that the unfortunate member, unable to withstand the attack, liberally bled. As it is quite unnecessary to relate, the pilot suffered appreciable pain, but notwithstanding the handicap, he landed his machine safely and perfectly.

As before stated, the Parkers use an airplane to do most of their journeying about the land. Mrs. Parker knew how to fly long before she could drive an automobile. "And so," she says, "it seems odd to us that such a fuss should be made over the children because they can fly alone. We have taken them up in a plane as soon as they were able to be dressed adequately. They often complain because we nearly always travel by air; they say they never get to ride on a train. Why, it's just as natural for our children to fly at an early age as it is for some garage man's or automobile agent's child to drive a car at an early age."

Now, Farnum, Cozette's 15-year-old brother, has 900 hours in the air to his credit. He has made 140 parachute jumps. It seems as though he might be called one of those veteran aviators that one hears so much about.

Well, maybe Mrs. Parker is right, after all. For her children have just about been cradled in an airship, and the motor's throb has been to them their nursery lullaby.

AND Cozette, talking about her recent and solitary air journey, explains: "It surely gives you a thrill when you hop off on your first solo flight. After I got the plane several hundred feet up into the air it felt natural and it was much easier than driving an automobile. There weren't any stop and go signs, and I didn't meet any other planes.

"Mother was driving the automobile and tried to follow me. I got two good laughs when she had to detour twice.

"It didn't seem a bit hard, and I'm anxious to get my new plane which father has promised me. Next summer I hope to make my first parachute jump. I wanted to do it this summer, but mother and dad wouldn't let me."

Cozette is an athletic young lady. She likes hunting and jumping and baseball and a host of other sports. She has a shotgun, just like every other one of her family has, and it is not at all strange to see the Parkers, each armed with his or her shotgun, get into a plane and go off a-hunting. Cozette, as may be suspected by the alert reader, does not spend all of her time running around in flying machines; she attends the high school here, where she is a freshman.

And as for her leisure—well, Cozette hasn't any these days, not since her 138-mile visit to her grandfather. She spends all her not otherwise occupied time answering laudatory letters.

TALES OF REAL DOGS

CAMP: Sir Walter Scott's Famous Crossbreed.

HIS sire was a black-and-tan terrier. His dam was a brindled bulldog. Their crossbreed son was named Camp. He was the favorite dog of Sir Walter Scott and for 12 years he was the great author's chum and inseparable companion.

Camp was not beautiful, nor even distinguished-looking, if one may judge from his several portraits. Yet famed painters worked with their utmost skill over his various pictures; some of Camp alone, others of Camp standing or sitting or lying beside his illustrious master. Few human celebrities have been oftener painted.

Moreover, he seems to have had a hair-trigger temper. His chief joy in life was to pick quarrels with every strange dog he happened to meet during his walks with Scott or while he was acting as escort on his master's lone horseback rides. The strain of bulldog made him a dangerous adversary.

These constant fights of Camp's caused untold annoyance in the Scott household. Complaints kept pouring in, as well as demands for cash damages for chewed ears and bitten paws. When Camp wasn't in trouble with one dog he was in trouble with another. He tackled them all, big or little.

Scott worked over him, with as much genius as if the crossbreed dog were a character in one of the Waverly novels. At last, through sheer mastery, he taught Camp to stop in the middle of a fight, at a single word from his master. But all Scott's genius could not keep him out of fights when the author was not there to check him.

Crossbreed dogs are known as "mutts" and as "curs" and as "mongrels." All these terms are insults to the gamest and cleverest dog in the world. Many a crossbreed has more brain and more stamina and better looks than the average thoroughbred.

It is no disgrace to own and love a crossbreed. It is only a disgrace not to bring to the surface all the wisdom and other high qualities which are latent within him.

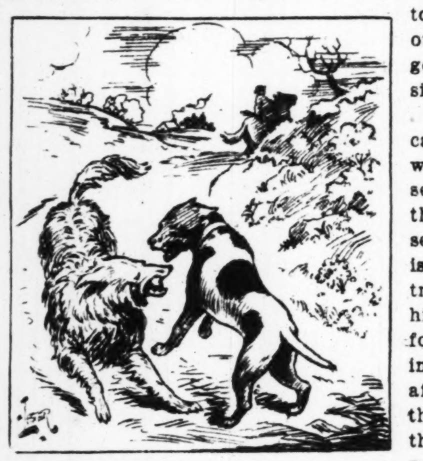
Camp, for instance, had an almost uncanny wisdom of his own. Scott was wise enough to cultivate this trait. Here is a tribute Sir Walter paid, in one of his writings, to his crossbreed's intelligence:

"He was the wisest dog I ever saw. I taught him to understand a great many words; insomuch that I am positive that the communication betwixt the canine species and ourselves might be greatly enlarged.

"Camp once bit the baker, who was bringing bread to the family. I beat him and explained the enormity of the offense. After which, to the last moment of his life, he never heard the least allusion to the story, in whatever tone of voice it was mentioned, without getting up and retiring into the darkest corner of the room with every appearance of distress.

"Then, if you said the baker was well paid, or that the baker was not hurt after all, Camp came forth from his hiding place and capered and barked and rejoiced.

"When he was unable, toward the end of his life, to attend me on horseback, he used to watch for my return. The servant would tell him the master was coming down the hill or through the moor; and, though he did not use any gesture to explain his meaning, Camp was never known to mistake him, but either went out at the front to go up the hill or out at the back to get down the moorside."



His chief joy was to pick quarrels.

We are likely to care more for those we perform great services for than for those who do great services for us. That is a queer human trait which Scott himself shared. His fondness for Camp increased greatly after he had nursed the crossbreed through a long and painful and dangerous illness and had made him well again. During the time Camp was so sick, Sir Walter neglected his own work and his social engagements; and was at the suffering dog's side, day and night, until at last his ceaseless and skilled nursing had pulled the crossbreed out of danger and had made him as healthy as ever.

That is one of the many advantages a crossbreed has over a thoroughbred. Too often a sick thoroughbred presently becomes a dead thoroughbred. But a sick crossbreed has the mighty stamina and wiriness to fight off the effects of the average disease.

For example, distemper kills about 50 per cent of the thoroughbreds that contract it; while a crossbreed seldom gets it and far seldomer dies from it. (Score one more for the crossbreed!)

But even the stanchest and hardiest crossbreed cannot live forever. When Camp was 12 years old he fell victim to an illness from which not even Sir Walter's skill and patience could cure him. For old age was ranged against the gallant little dog, now; and old age is the most incurable of maladies. A 12-year-old dog is as old as a 70-year-old human.

Strive as he would, Sir Walter could do nothing for his stricken chum. Nor could the best veterinary surgeons in Scotland save him. Scott was living at the time in his town house, on Castle street, in Edinburgh. And there Camp died.

Scott buried the faithful dog himself, in a sunny corner of the garden, just outside the study window—a patch of turf where Camp had been wont to lie, watching his master at work, through the open window, or trying to lure the author out for a walk or a romp.

All the family gathered around the little grave. Scott's daughter wrote afterwards that her father stood there "with the saddest expression I had ever seen on him."

There was to be a formal dinner party that night, at which Scott was to have been the guest of honor; and to which many of the notables of the region had been invited. It was an event of much social importance.

But, when Camp died, the author had no heart to mingle with society or indeed to do anything except shut himself in his study and there to brood over his loss. So he dispatched a servant to the man who was to give the dinner, along with a brief note which has become historic.

The note declared that Scott would be unable to attend the dinner because of "the death of a dear old friend."

* * * *

"H'm!!" said Moe Mitzic to me as we walked down the street. "Didja ever see her big handsome son? Well, he just fits under a chewin'-gum slot standin' up. His wife hasta cut his collars in de back an' sew 'em togedder to fit 'im. He wears suspenders on his sox to keep 'em up and he kin toin around' in his shoes widout dem movin'. In general he's built like a test tube and plus all o' dat he's a drunk. What's woise is when he's geezed he insists on goin' aroun' swingin' at cops and taxi-drivers. I'm cartin' him aroun' one night after hittin' every bar from Tottenville to Spuyten Duyvil. Around eleven o'clock I manage to git him inside of a beanery... Me back aint toined a minute when he falls face foist into a mocha-tart, knocks over a stand fulla knives and forks an' ketchup bottles—den heaves a bowlful of sugar up in de air an' starts singin' 'Jingle Bells'.—

"Den widout a woid he dives outa de door an' when I git outside he's sparrin' off wid a plate glass window. I git a toehold on his collar an' start yellin' for a cab. By de time it gits dere I'm hanging on to his empty coat an' he's acrost de street startin' to undress an' take a bath in a old empty horsetrough. I grab him on me back, hobby-hoss, an' start runnin' wid his pants half off an' a cop after us.

"When de cop gits troo, I git some court plaster an' git Frank's face pasted togedder as best as I could an' figger to call it a night. It's daylight when we hit his block.

"A pretty picture we made in de mornin' sunlight! De Spirit o' France bearin' de Wounded Soldier —wid a lot o' people an' stenogs on his block goin' to woik lookin' us over... I roll him into a bed an' he insists on me sleepin' wid him.

"A flower pot drops on his dome over de transom—

"'Dat's Ann for you! !' sez Frank. Always clownin'! !' Wid dat we hear a coat rack beginnin' to batter down our fortifications. Frank gits serious.

"'It seems,' he says, 'dat I'll have to take dat woman in hand!' So he sneakily toins de key in de lock an' gits himself all set fer a wallop.

"A fine powerful picture he made. F. Peabody Grubnick, fodder of tree children—his mudder's pride an' joy—wid nottin' on but a undershoit, tiptoein' on his skinny pins over to de door to take a poke at his wife. He pulls it open suddenly—let's fly one wild jab an' shuts it quick—but he's so fast dat he shuts it on his own wrist... By de time he drags his wing in again she's got four fingors an' a half a tumb almost chewed off.

"I hop in a closet an' hide in a dress. When de noise o' de rumpus finally died down—I peep out—. Needer of dem wuz to be seen. Dat place was a sight. It looked like de back room of a police station. Dere wasn't a edge or a corner or a point o' somethin' dat his bean hadn't bumped... Chairs was toined upside down, pillows an' tings scattered, de chifferobes was dumped over an' footsteps wuz running' straight up de wall in places where his awful frenzy carried him tryin' to get away from de moiderous vixen of a wife of his.

"I duck out o' de foist window an' head acrost de lots fer a subway station. About noon I pull into de office lookin' like somethin' that escaped from Devil's Island. Bertie Changes His Mind

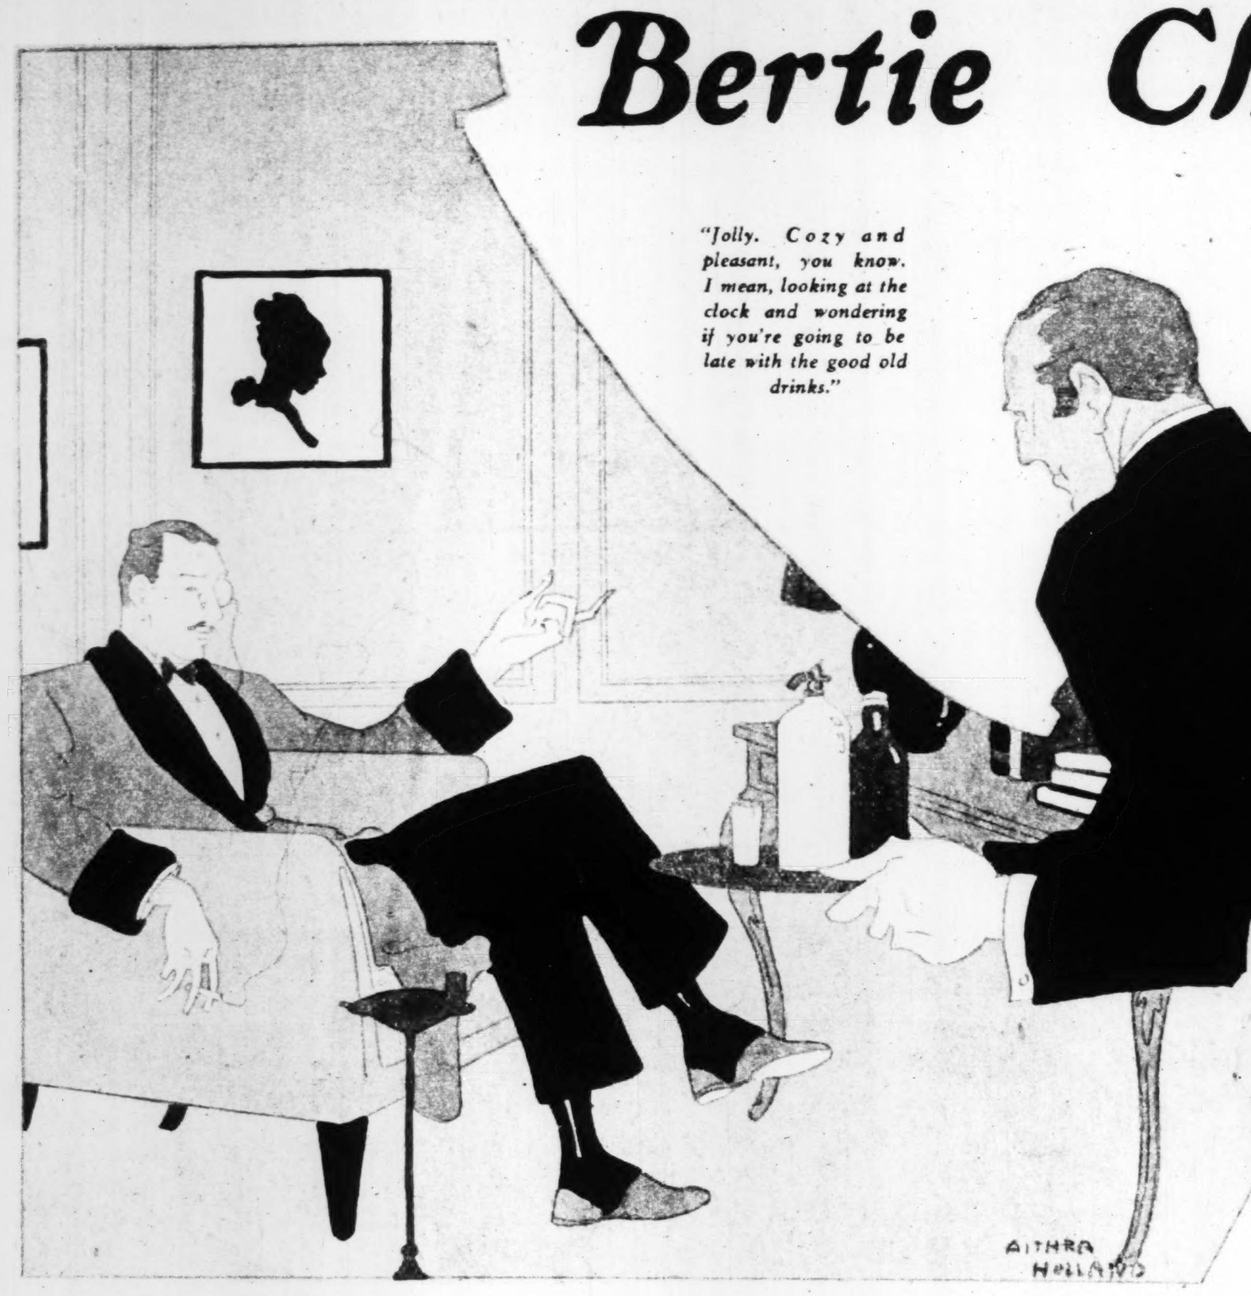
By P. G. WODEHOUSE



"Jolly. Cozy and pleasant, you know. I mean, looking at the clock and wondering if you're going to be late with the good old drinks."

IT HAS happened so frequently in the past few years that young fellows starting in my profession have come to me for a word of advice that I have found it convenient to condense my system into a brief formula. "Resource and tact"—that is my motto. Tact, of course, has always been with me a sine qua non; while as for resource, I think I may say that I have usually contrived to show a certain modicum of what I might call finesse in handling those little contretemps that are inevitably in the daily life of a gentleman's personal gentleman. I am reminded, by way of an instance, of the episode of the school for young ladies near Brighton—an affair that commenced one evening at the moment when I brought Mr. Wooster his whisky and siphon, and he addressed me with such remarkable petulance.

Not a little moody Mr. Wooster had been for some days—far from his usual bright self. This I had attributed to the natural reaction from a slight attack of influenza; and, of course, took no notice, merely performing my duties as usual, until he exhibited this remarkable petulance, when I brought him his whisky and siphon.

"Oh, dash it, Jeeves!" he said, manifestly overwrought. "I wish you'd put it on another table for a change."

"Sir?" I said.

"Every night, dash it all," proceeded Mr. Wooster morosely, "you come in at exactly the same old time, with the same old tray, and put it on the same old table. I'm fed up, I tell you. It's the bally monotony of it that makes it all seem so frightfully bally."

I CONFESS that his words filled me with a certain apprehension. I had heard gentlemen speak in very much the same way before, and it had almost invariably meant that they were contemplating matrimony. It disturbed me, therefore, I am free to admit, when Mr. Wooster addressed me in this fashion. I had no desire to sever a connection so pleasant in every respect as his and mine had been, and my experience is that, when the wife comes in at the front door, the valet of bachelor days goes out the back.

"It's not your fault, of course," went on Mr. Wooster, regaining a certain degree of composure. "I'm not blaming you. But, you must acknowledge—I mean to say, I've been thinking pretty deeply these last few days, Jeeves, and I've come to the conclusion that mine is an empty life. I'm lonely, Jeeves."

"What's the good of friends?"

"Emerson," I reminded him, "says a friend may well be reckoned the masterpiece of nature, sir."

"What I want—Jeeves, have you seen that play called—I forget its dashed name?"

"No, sir."

"It's on at the What-d'you-call-it. I went last night. The hero's a chap who's buzzing along, you know, quite merry and bright, and suddenly a kid turns up and says she's his daughter. And he says, 'Oh, all right, then, if that's the way you feel!' and he takes the kid and goes off with her. Well, what I'm driving at, Jeeves, is that I envied that chappie. Most awfully jolly little girl, you know, clinging to him trustingly and whatnot. Something to look after, if you know what I mean. Jeeves, I wish I had a daughter. You can adopt kids, you know, Jeeves. But what I want to know is how you start about it."

"The process, I should imagine, would be highly complicated and laborious, sir. It would cut into your spare time."

"Well, I'll tell you what I could do, then. My sister will be back from India next week with her three little girls. I'll take a house and have them all to live with me. Jeeves, I think that's rather a scheme, what? Prattle of childish voices, eh? Little feet pattering hither and thither, yes?"

I CONCEALED my perturbation, but the effort to preserve my sangfroid tested my powers to the utmost. The course of action outlined by Mr. Wooster meant the finish of our cosy establishment, if it came into being a practical proposition; and, no doubt, some men in my place would at this juncture have voiced their disapproval. I avoided this blunder.

"If you will pardon my saying so, sir," I suggested, "I think you are not quite yourself, after your influenza. If I might express the opinion, what you require is a few days by the sea. Brighton is very handy, sir."

"Are you suggesting that I'm talking through my hat?"

"By no means, sir. I merely advocate a short stay at Brighton as a physical recuperative."

Mr. Wooster considered.

"Well, I'm not sure you're not right," he said. "I am feeling more or less of an onion. You might shove a few things in a suitcase and drive me down in the car tomorrow."

"Very good, sir."

"And, when we get back, I'll be in the pink and ready to tackle this pattering feet wheeze."

"Exactly, sir."

Well, it was a respite, and I welcomed it. But I began to see that a crisis had arisen. Rarely had I observed Mr. Wooster more set on a thing. Indeed, I could recall no such exhibition of determination on his part since the time when he had insisted, against my frank disapproval, on wearing purple socks. However, I had coped successfully with that outbreak, and I was by no means unsanguine that I should eventually be able to bring the present affair to a happy issue. Employers are like horses. They require managing. Some gentlemen's personal gentlemen have the knack of managing them, some have not. I, I am happy to say, have no cause for complaint.

I found our stay at Brighton highly enjoyable, and should have been willing to extend it; but Mr. Wooster, still restless, wearied of the place by the end of two days, and, on the third afternoon, he instructed me to pack up and bring the car round to the hotel. We started back along the London road at about five of a summer's day and traveled perhaps two miles when I perceived in the road before us a young lady, gesticulating with no little animation. I applied the brake and brought the vehicle to a standstill.

"What," inquired Mr. Wooster, waking from a reverie, "is the big thought at the back of this, Jeeves?"

"I observed a young lady endeavoring to attract our attention, sir," I explained. "She is now making her way towards us."

Mr. Wooster peered.

"I see her. I expect she wants a lift, Jeeves."

"That was the interpretation I placed upon her actions, sir."

"Hallo-allo-allo!" said Mr. Wooster, as the child reached us. "Do you want a lift?"

"Oh, I say, can you?" said the child, with marked pleasure.

"Where do you want to go?"

"There's a turning to the left about a mile farther on. If you'll put me down there I'll walk the rest of the way. I say, thanks awfully. I've got a nail in my shoe."

She climbed in at the back. A red-haired young person, with a snub nose and an extremely large grin. Her age, I should imagine, would be about 12. She let down one of the spare seats, and knelt on it to facilitate conversation.

"I'm going to get in a fearful row," she began. "Miss Tomlinson will be perfectly furious."

"No, really?" said Mr. Wooster.

"It's a half-holiday, you know, and I sneaked away to Brighton, because I wanted to go on the pier and put pennies in the slot-machines. I thought I could get back in time and that nobody would notice I'd gone, but I got this nail in my shoe, and now there'll be a fearful row. Oh, well," she said, with a philosophy I admired, "it can't be helped. What's your car? A Sunbeam, isn't it? We've got a Wolseley at home."

Mr. Wooster was visibly perturbed. As I have indicated, he was at this time in a highly malleable frame of mind, tender-hearted to a degree where the young of the female sex was concerned. Her sad case touched him deeply.

"Oh, I say, this is rather rotten," he observed. "Isn't there anything to be done? I say, Jeeves, don't you think something could be done?"

"IT WAS not my place to make the suggestion, sir," I replied, "but as you yourself have brought the matter up, I fancy the trouble is susceptible of adjustment. I think it would be a legitimate subterfuge, were you to inform the young lady's schoolmistress that you are an old friend of the young lady's father. In this case, you could inform Miss Tomlinson that you had been passing the school and had seen the young lady at the gate and taken her for a drive. Miss Tomlinson's chagrin would, no doubt, in these circumstances be sensibly diminished, if not altogether dispersed."

"Well, you are a sportsman!" observed the young person, with considerable enthusiasm. And she proceeded to kiss me—in connection with which I have only to say that I was sorry she had just been devouring some sticky sweetmeat.

"Jeeves, you've hit it!" said Mr. Wooster. "A sound, even fruity, scheme. I say, I suppose I'd better know your name and all that, if I'm a friend of your father's."

"My name's Peggy Mainwaring, thanks awfully," said the young person. "And my father's Professor Mainwaring. He's written a lot of books. You'll be expected to know that."

"Author of the well-known series of philosophical treatises, sir," I ventured to interject. "They have a great vogue, though, if the young lady will pardon my saying so, many of the professor's opinions strike me personally as somewhat empirical. Shall I drive on to the school, sir?"

"Yes, carry on. I say, Jeeves, it's a rummy thing. Do you know, I've never been inside a girl's school in my life."

"Indeed, sir."

"Ought to be a dashed interesting experience, Jeeves, what?"

"I fancy you may find it so, sir," I said.

We drove on a matter of half a mile down a lane, and, directed by the young person, I turned in at the gates of a house of imposing dimensions, bringing the car to a halt at the front door. Mr. Wooster and the child entered, and presently a parlor maid came out.

"You're to take the car round to the stables, please," she said.

"Ah," I said. "Then everything is satisfactory, eh? Where has Mr. Wooster gone?"

"Miss Peggy has taken him off to meet her friends. And cook says she hopes you'll step round to the kitchen and have a cup of tea."

"Inform her that I shall be delighted. Before I take the car to the stables, would it be possible for me to have a word with Miss Tomlinson?"

A moment later I was following her into the drawing room.

STRONG-MINDED—that was how I summed up Miss Tomlinson at first glance. She had a penetrating glance and an air of being reluctant to stand any nonsense.

"I fear I am possibly taking a liberty, madam," I began, "but I am hoping that you will allow me to say a word with respect to my employer. I fancy I am correct in supposing that Mr. Wooster did not tell you a great deal about himself?"

"He told me nothing about himself, except that he was a friend of Professor Mainwaring."

"He did not inform you, then, that he was the Mr. Wooster?"

"The Mr. Wooster?"

"Bertram Wooster, madam."

I will say for Mr. Wooster, that, mentally negligible though he no doubt is, he has a name that suggests almost infinite possibilities. He sounds, if I may elucidate my meaning, like Some One—especially if you have just been informed that he is an intimate friend of so eminent a man as Professor Mainwaring. You might not, no doubt, be able to say offhand whether he was Bertram Wooster the novelist, or Bertram Wooster the founder of a new school of thought; but you would have an uneasy feeling that you were exposing your ignorance if you did not give the impression of familiarity with the name. Miss Tomlinson, as I had rather foreseen, nodded brightly.

"Oh, Bertram Wooster!" she said.

"He is an extremely retiring gentleman, madam, and would be the last to suggest it himself, but, knowing him as I do, I am sure that he will take it as a graceful compliment if you were to ask him to address the young ladies. He is an excellent extempore speaker."

"A very good idea," said Miss Tomlinson decidedly. "I am very much obliged to you for suggesting it. I will certainly ask him to talk to the girls."

"And should he make a pretense—through modesty—of not wishing"—

"I shall insist."

"Thank you, madam. I am obliged. You will not mention my share in the matter? Mr. Wooster might think that I had exceeded my duties."

I drove around to the stable and halted the car in the yard. As I got out, I looked at it somewhat intently. It was a good car, and appeared to be in excellent condition, but I seemed to feel that something was going to go wrong with it—something serious—something that I would not be able to put right again for a couple of hours.

One gets these presentiments.

IT MAY have been some half-hour later that Mr. Wooster came into the stable yard as I was enjoying a quiet cigarette.

"No, don't chuck it away, Jeeves," he said, as I withdrew the cigarette from my mouth. "As a matter of fact, I've come to touch you for a smoke. Got one to spare?"

"Only gaspers, I fear, sir."

"They'll do," responded Mr. Wooster, with no little eagerness. I observed that his manner was a trifle fatigued and his eye somewhat wild. "It's a rummy thing, Jeeves, I seem to have lost my cigarette case. Can't find it anywhere."

"I am sorry to hear that, sir. It is not in the car."

"No? Must have dropped it somewhere, then." He drew at his gasper with relish. "Jolly creatures, small girls, Jeeves," he remarked, after a pause.

"Of course, I can imagine some fellows finding them a bit exhausting in—en"——

"En masse, sir?"

"I must confess, sir, that that is how they used to strike me. In my younger days, at the outset of my carer, sir, I was a page in a school for young ladies."

"No, really? I never knew that before. I say, Jeeves—er—did the—er—dear little souls giggle much in your day?"

"Practically without cessation, sir."

"Makes a fellow feel a bit of a fool, what? I wonder if they usedn't to stare at you, from time to time, eh?"

"At the school where I was employed, sir, the young ladies had a game they were accustomed to play when a male visitor arrived. They would stare fixedly at him and giggle, and there was a small prize for the one who made him blush first."

"Oh, no, I say, Jeeves, not really?"

"Yes, sir. They derived great enjoyment from the pastime."

"More deadly than the male, sir."

Mr. Wooster passed a handkerchief over his brow.

"Well, we're going to have tea in a few minutes, Jeeves. I expect I shall feel better after tea."

"We will hope so, sir."

But I was by no means so sanguine.

I had an agreeable tea in the kitchen. The buttered toast was good and the maids nice girls, though with little conversation. The parlor maid, who joined us towards the end of the meal, after performing her duties in the school dining room, reported that Mr. Wooster was sticking it pluckily, but seemed feverish. I went back to the stable yard, and I was just giving the car another look over when the young Mainwaring child appeared.

"Oh, I say," she said, "will you give this to Mr. Wooster when you see him?" She held out Mr. Wooster's cigarette case. "He must have dropped it somewhere. I say," she proceeded, "it's an awful lark. He's going to give a lecture to the school."

"Indeed, Miss?"

"We love lectures. We sit and stare at the poor dears, and try to make them dry up. There was a man last term who got hiccoughs. Do you think Mr. Wooster will get hiccoughs?"

"We can but hope for the best, miss."

"It would be such a lark, wouldn't it?"

"Highly enjoyable, miss."

And she scampered off. An engaging child. Full of spirits.

SHE had hardly gone when there was an agitated noise, and round the corner came Mr. Wooster. Perturbed. Deeply so.

"Jeeves?"

"Sir?"

"Start the car!"

"Sir?"

"I'm off!"

"Sir?"

Mr. Wooster danced a few steps.

"Don't stand there saying sir! I tell you I'm off. Bally off! There's not a moment to waste. The situation's desperate. Dash it, Jeeves, do you know what's happened? The Tomlinson female has just sprung it on me that I'm expected to make a speech to the girls! Got to stand up there in front of the whole dashed collection and talk! I can just see myself! Get that car going, Jeeves, dash it all! A little speed, a little speed!"

"Impossible, I fear, sir. The car is out of order."

Mr. Wooster gaped at me. Very glassily he gaped.

"Out of order?"

"Yes, sir. Something is wrong. Trivial, perhaps, but a matter of some little time to repair." Mr. Wooster being one of those young gentlemen who will drive a car, but never take the trouble to study its mechanism, I felt justified in becoming technical. "I think it is the differential gear, sir. That or the exhaust."

I am fond of Mr. Wooster, and I admit I came very near to melting as I looked at his face. He was staring at me in a sort of dumb despair that would have touched anybody.

"Then I'm sunk! Or"—a slight gleam of hope flickered across his drawn features—"do you think I could sneak out and leg it across the country, Jeeves?"

"Too late, I fear, sir." I indicated the approaching figure of Miss Tomlinson.

"Ah, there you are, Mr. Wooster."

He smiled a sickly smile.

"Yes—er—here I am!"

"We are all waiting for you in the large schoolroom."

"But, I say, look here," said Mr. Wooster, "I—I don't know a bit what to talk about."

"Why, anything, Mr. Wooster. Anything that comes into your head. Be bright," said Miss Tomlinson. "Bright and amusing."

"Oh, bright and amusing?"

"Possibly tell them a few entertaining stories. But, at the same time, do not neglect the graver note. Remember that my girls are on the threshold of life, and will be eager to hear something brave and helpful and stimulating—something they can remember in after years. But, of course, you know the sort of thing, Mr. Wooster. Come. The young people are waiting."

I HAVE spoken earlier of resource and the part it plays in the life of a gentleman's personal gentleman. It is a quality peculiarly necessary, if one is to share in scenes not primarily designed for one's co-operation. So much that is interesting in life goes on apart behind closed doors that your gentleman's gentleman, if he is not to remain hopelessly behind the march of events, should exercise his wits, in order to enable himself to be—if not a spectator—at least an auditor, when there is anything of interest toward. I deprecate as vulgar and undignified the practice of listening at keyholes, but without lowering myself to that, I have generally contrived to find a way.

In the present case it was simple. The large schoolroom was situated on the ground floor, with commodious French windows. As the weather was clement, they remained open throughout the proceedings. By stationing myself behind a pillar on the porch or veranda that adjoined the room, I was enabled to see and hear all. It was an experience I should be sorry to have missed. Mr. Wooster, I may say at once, indubitably excelled himself.

Mr. Wooster is a young gentleman with practically every desirable quality except one. I do not mean brains, for, in an employer, brains are not desirable. The quality to which I allude is hard to define, but perhaps I might call it the gift of dealing with the unusual situation.

In the presence of the unusual, Mr. Wooster is too prone to smile weakly and allow his eyes to protrude. He lacks presence. I have often wished that I had the power to bestow upon him some of the savoir-faire of a former employer of mine, Mr. Montague-Todd, the well-known financier, now in the second year of his sentence. I have known men to call on Mr. Todd with the express intention of horsewhipping him and go away, half an hour later, laughing heartily and smoking one of his cigars.

To Mr. Todd it would have been child's play to speak a few impromptu words to a schoolroom full of young ladies; in fact, before he had finished he would probably have induced them to invest all their money in one of his numerous companies; but to Mr. Wooster it was plainly an ordeal of the worst description. He gave one look at the young ladies, who were all staring at him in an extremely unwinking manner, then blinked and started to pick feebly at his sleeve. His aspect reminded me of that of a bashful young man who, persuaded against his better judgment to go on the platform and assist a conjurer in

TONY TOMMY, self-styled "Great Chief of the Seminoles," has again retired with his little band of lower east coast Indians into the fastnesses of the Everglades to let his proud and haughty spirit recover from the wounds of chagrin.

Tony has been imbued with two ideas. He has gloried for years in the belief that he was the Great Chief and recently he came to believe that his people had played the part of "holdouts" long enough and that he should go to Washington, smoke the pipe of peace with the White Father and take the oath of allegiance for his people.

In no uncertain terms the Seminoles have informed Tony that he is the chief only of his own little band and that they cherish their independence as greatly as did their forefathers. his entertainment, suddenly discovers that rabbits and hard-boiled eggs are being taken out of the top of his head.

The proceedings opened with a short, but graceful, speech of introduction from Miss Tomlinson.

"Girls," said Miss Tomlinson, "some of you have already met Mr. Wooster, Mr. Bertram Wooster, and you all, I hope, know him by reputation." Here, I regret to say, Mr. Wooster gave a hideous gurgling laugh and, catching Miss Tomlinson's eye, turned a bright scarlet. Miss Tomlinson resumed: "He has very kindly consented to say a few words to you before he leaves, and I am sure you will all give him your very earnest attention. Now, please."

SHE gave a spacious gesture with her right hand as she said the last two words, and Mr. Wooster, apparently under the impression that they were addressed to him, cleared his throat and began to speak. But it appeared that her remark was directed to the young ladies, and was in the nature of a cue, for she had no sooner spoken them than the whole school rose to its feet in a body and burst into a welcoming chant.

Mr. Wooster recoiled a couple of steps and flung up an arm defensively. Then the uproar died away, and an air of expectancy fell upon the room. Miss Tomlinson directed a brightly authoritative gaze upon Mr. Wooster, and he blinked, gulped once or twice, and tottered forward.

"Well, you know," he said.

Then it seemed to strike him that this opening lacked the proper formal dignity.

"Ladies"——

A peal of laughter from the front row stopped him again.

"Girls!" said Miss Tomlinson. She spoke in a low, soft voice, but the effect was immediate. Per-

And When Chief Tony Tommy Recently Wanted to Take the Oath of Allegiance to the Flag He Was Severely Rebuked.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

JACKSONVILLE, Florida.

TONY TOMMY, self-styled "Great Chief of the Seminoles," has again retired with his little band of lower east coast Indians into the fastnesses of the Everglades to let his proud and haughty spirit recover from the wounds of chagrin.

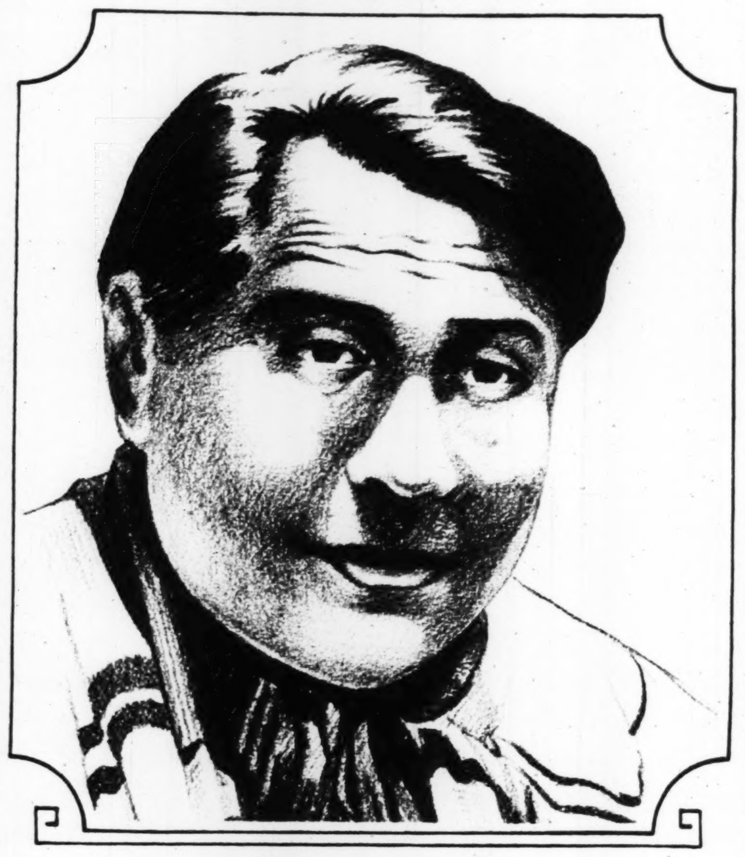
Tony has been imbued with two ideas. He has gloried for years in the belief that he was the Great Chief and recently he came to believe that his people had played the part of "holdouts" long enough and that he should go to Washington, smoke the pipe of peace with the White Father and take the oath of allegiance for his people.

In no uncertain terms the Seminoles have informed Tony that he is the chief only of his own little band and that they cherish their independence as greatly as did their forefathers. They further informed him that they enjoy the distinction of being the only unconquered race on the North American continent and the only independent people within the confines of these United States, and that they purpose to continue in the enjoyment of that distinction.

It took the United States Army seven years and cost the Government $17,000,000 to round up 20 dugout canoes and capture 50 Seminole Indian braves. We lost 3000 soldiers and settlers, while the Seminoles lost only about 500.

Who won the war?

And the Seminoles stayed where they were and went on doing the same old things in the same old way. More than that, they didn't swear allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. They haven't done it yet and, to all appearances, they never will.



Chief Tony Tommy, who is not so powerful with his tribesmen as he once was.

THIS was in 1835, which year promised a particularly cold winter in the North. Naturally, the Generals, the Majors, the Colonels, Captains and all the rest clamored for assignment to duty in sunny Florida, where the fishing was good, hunting excellent and real fighting problematical. Officers and men who were sent in pursuit of the savage Seminoles considered themselves fortunate.

In 1819 the United States acquired Florida from Spain and then the whole nation set to work with a grim determination that the Seminoles must be got out of Florida. Inasmuch as treaty-making with the Indians was then a popular outdoor sport, the Seminole chiefs were got together and it was finally agreed that the whole tribe should be transported to Arkansas. The officers did have the decency, however, to consent to allowing a few Seminole inspectors to visit the new country and see how they liked it.

The delegation was sent off on horseback, and a sort of ferry service was provided for them across the widest and deepest rivers. Otherwise they were left to rattle around loose as best they could. Somehow they finally got to their destination and were warmly received by the Pawnees, who killed one or two of them, stole their horses and the rest of their meager possessions and kicked them out of the country.

The Seminoles made their way back to Florida as best they could and reported that they didn't like Arkansas one little bit! They announced they would stay where they were. They decided they preferred to fight white men in Florida rather than go to Arkansas and be murdered by Pawnees.

THEN came news of the Dade massacre. The North was highly incensed and demanded vengeance on the cursed savages.

When the Seminoles fled into the wilderness to avoid the danger of being murdered by the dread Pawnees, the only thing to do was to send the army after them to kill them off or round them up for another disposal pow-wow. General Clinch was then at Fort King, now known as Ocala, and Major Dade was at Fort Brooke, now known as Tampa. Clinch ordered Dade to join him at Ocala. Major Dade sallied forth to battle with a party of 110. Shortly after crossing the Withlacoochee River the unseen Seminoles opened fire on the approaching enemy and shot so effectively that only two of the original 110 escaped.

Instead of reporting to Washington that a force under command of Major Dade engaged the enemy on the banks of the Withlacoochee and had been annihilated, the story went North that Major Dade's command had been ambushed and massacred. References were made to the "gallant Dade" and all that sort of thing and they even named a county in Florida after him.

The distorted story served to freshen the popularity of keeping the army after the Seminoles, which pleased the soldiers immensely, and they indulged in much jocular comment about spending their winters in the Sunny South at Government expense. Of course, the Dade affair showed that wintering in Florida could have its serious side, but greater care in the future would prevent recurrence of such unfortunate incidents. Evidently greater care was taken, because no serious killings occurred during the rest of the Seminole War, which finally ended down near what is now Fort Lauderdale with the seizure of the 20 dugout canoes and the 50 braves who said they weren't doing anything, anyway, and were allowed to keep on doing it.

A reservation was set aside for them south of Lake Okeechobee and they moved on to it, and then moved off again. Congress has appropriated money at different times for different benefits for the Seminoles, the building of schools and the like. The Seminoles hang around and help build the buildings and then disappear as though by evaporation during the night before school is supposed to open. The Seminoles, proud and haughty after the manner of all Indians, scorn charity and invariably point out some settlement of poor whites somewhere upon which to bestow the Government's generosity.

After the hurricane of September, 1926, had destroyed the huts in their settlement out back of Fort Lauderdale, Chief Tony Tommy led his followers out of the inundated, storm-torn edge of the of mess the clumsy way the working ou Chief Tommy led back where they had c None of his people suffered from the storm. They got wet, be sure, but that was about all. By the time a relief party could get out to them to look them over they were going about their business as usual.

A FEW weeks ago Chief Tommy announced that he thought the white man had progressed to a point where he could be trusted and that he thought he and his people might add a little distinction to the American nation by becoming a part of it. He again voiced his willingness to go to Washington and hold a big talk with the White Father and sign up. But groups of Seminoles all over Florida protested loudly. N-o-t-h-i-n-g d-o-i-n-g! Chief Tommy and his backsliders could surrender if they wanted to, but Chief Tommy might just as well know now that he is not the great chief of the Seminoles. There is no great chief and there has been no great chief since Woxo-mic-co was killed by a crazed camp follower in 1891.

Today the subchiefs are merely leaders of independent bands, who choose to hang together more for company than anything else. When Chief Tony Tommy voiced his ambitious scheme it was impressed upon him in no uncertain terms that he was only a band leader and the proposition has not been taken up since.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acrid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

Bertie Changes His Mind

The proceedings opened with a short, but graceful, speech of introduction from Miss Tomlinson.

"Girls," said Miss Tomlinson, "some of you have already met Mr. Wooster, Mr. Bertram Wooster, and you all, I hope, know him by reputation." Here, I regret to say, Mr. Wooster gave a hideous gurgling laugh and, catching Miss Tomlinson's eye, turned a bright scarlet. Miss Tomlinson resumed: "He has very kindly consented to say a few words to you before he leaves, and I am sure you will all give him your very earnest attention. Now, please."

SHE gave a spacious gesture with her right hand as she said the last two words, and Mr. Wooster, apparently under the impression that they were addressed to him, cleared his throat and began to speak. But it appeared that her remark was directed to the young ladies, and was in the nature of a cue, for she had no sooner spoken them than the whole school rose to its feet in a body and burst into a welcoming chant.

Mr. Wooster recoiled a couple of steps and flung up an arm defensively. Then the uproar died away, and an air of expectancy fell upon the room. Miss Tomlinson directed a brightly authoritative gaze upon Mr. Wooster, and he blinked, gulped once or twice, and tottered forward.

"Well, you know," he said.

Then it seemed to strike him that this opening lacked the proper formal dignity.

"Ladies"——

A peal of laughter from the front row stopped him again.

"Girls!" said Miss Tomlinson. She spoke in a low, soft voice, but the effect was immediate. Perfect stillness descended upon all present.

I fancy that Miss Tomlinson had gauged Mr. Wooster's oratorical capabilities pretty correctly by this time and had come to the conclusion that little in the way of stirring address was to be expected from him.

"Perhaps," she said, "as it is getting late, and he has not very much time to spare, Mr. Wooster will just give you some little word of advice that will be helpful to you in after-life, and then we will sing the school song and disperse to our evening lessons."

She looked at Mr. Wooster. He passed a finger round the inside of his collar.

"Advice? After-life? What? Well, I don't know"——

"Just some brief word of counsel, Mr. Wooster," said Miss Tomlinson firmly.

"Oh, well—— Well, yes—— Well"—— It was painful to see Mr. Wooster's brain endeavoring to work. "Well, I'll tell you something that's often done me a bit of good, and it's a thing not many people know. My old Uncle Henry gave me the tip when I first came to London. 'Never forget, my boy,' he said, 'that, if you stand outside Romano's in the Strand, you can see the clock on the wall of the Law Courts down in Fleet street. Most people who don't know don't believe it's possible, because there are a couple of churches in the middle of the road, and you would think they would be in the way. But you can, and it's worth knowing. You can win a lot of money betting on it with fellows who haven't found it out.' And, by Jove, he was perfectly right, and it's a thing to remember. Many a quid have I"——

Miss Tomlinson gave a hard, dry cough, and he stopped in the middle of a sentence.

"Perhaps it will be better, Mr. Wooster," she said, in a cold, even voice, "if you were to tell my girls some little story. What you say is, no doubt, extremely interesting, but a little"——

"Oh, ah, yes," said Mr. Wooster. "Story? Story?" He appeared completely distraught, poor young gentleman. "I wonder if you've heard the one about the stock broker and the chorus girl?"

"We will now sing the school song," said Miss Tomlinson, rising.

I DECIDED not to remain for the singing of the school song. It seemed probable to me that Mr. Wooster would shortly be requiring the car, so I made my way back to the stable yard, to be in readiness.

I had not long to wait. In a very few moments he appeared, tottering. Mr. Wooster's is not one of those inscrutable faces. On the contrary, it is a limpid pool in which is mirrored each passing emotion. I could read it now like a book, and his first words were quite what I had anticipated.

"Jeeves," he said hoarsely, "is that car mended yet?"

"Just this moment, sir. I have been working on it assiduously."

"Then, for heaven's sake, let's go!"

"But I understood that you were to address the young ladies, sir."

"Oh, I've done that!" responded Mr. Wooster. "Yes, I've done that."

"It was a success, I hope, sir?"

"Oh, yes. Oh, yes. Most extraordinarily successful. Went like a breeze. But—er—I think I may as well be going. No use outstaying one's welcome, what?"

"Assuredly not, sir."

I was about to start the engine, when voices made themselves heard. At the first sound of them Mr. Wooster sprang into the tonneau, and, when I glanced round, he was on the floor, covering himself with a rug.

"Have you seen Mr. Wooster, my man?"

Miss Tomlinson had entered the stable yard, accompanied by a lady of, I should say, judging from her accent, French origin.

"No, madam."

The French lady uttered some exclamation in her native tongue.

"Is anything wrong, madam?" I inquired.

Miss Tomlinson in normal mood was, I should be disposed to imagine, a lady who would not readily confide her troubles to the ear of a gentleman's gentleman, however sympathetic his aspect. That she did so now was indication of the depth to which she was stirred.

"Yes, there is; Mademoiselle has just found several of the girls smoking cigarettes. When questioned, they stated that Mr. Wooster had given them the horrid things." She turned. "He must be in the garden, or in the house. I think the man is out of his senses. Come, mademoiselle!"

It must have been about a minute later that Mr. Wooster poked his head out.

"Jeeves!"

"Sir?"

I applied my foot to the self-starter.

"It would perhaps be safest to drive carefully until we are out of the grounds, sir," I said. "I might run over one of the young ladies, sir."

"Well, what's the objection to that?" demanded Mr. Wooster, with extraordinary bitterness.

"Or even Miss Tomlinson, sir."

"Don't!" said Mr. Wooster, wistfully. "You make my mouth water!"

"JEEVES," said Mr. Wooster, when I brought him his whisky and siphon one night about a week later, "this is dashed jolly."

"Sir?"

"Jolly. Cosy and pleasant, you know. I mean, looking at the clock and wondering if you're going to be late with the good old drinks, and then you coming in with the tray, always exactly on time, never a minute late, and shoving it down on the table and biffing off, and the next night coming in and shoving it down and biffing off, and the next night—I mean, gives you a sort of safe, restful feeling. Soothing! That is the word. Soothing!"

"Yes, sir. Oh, by the way, sir"——

"Well?"

"Have you succeeded in finding a suitable house yet, sir?"

"House? What do you mean, house?"

"I understood, sir, that it was your intention to give up the flat and take a house of sufficient size to enable you to have your sister, Mrs. Schofield, and her three young ladies to live with you."

Mr. Wooster shuddered strongly.

"That's off, Jeeves," he said.

"Very good, sir," I replied.

fore they must maneuver with the fleet. Great Britain and Japan have a similar policy. France and, to a certain extent, Italy conduct submarine maneuvers in specially reserved waters, set apart for a single boat, and have had few or no disasters. So, too, did Germany before the war.

THERE is one safety device which even navy men approve of. That is the oscillator, which, reduced to its simplest terms, consists of a microphone set into a "blister" in the steel side of the submarine. This microphone picks up the slightest sound—the turning of a ship's screw or even the tapping of a hammer against the side of a ship—at distances varying from one to five miles. These are adapted also for cruisers and destroyers. Vessels equipped with them are able to pick up a submarine's rising signal from a great distance. Likewise, the submarine commander with this device is able to hear a vessel in the immediate vicinity and avoid a collision by submerging. That is the way they work in theory, at least. Had the Paulding, with which the S-4 collided, been equipped with an oscillator, the disaster would never have occurred, according to Prof. Reginald A. Fessenden, inventor of the device.

Naval officers go even further than this. If only one important safety precaution was observed there would never be another submarine disaster, they maintain. That is: shut off your motors before you come to the top and stand by your microphone: if there's a ship in your vicinity, don't come up. But, in the navy as elsewhere, familiarity breeds contempt, and this rule is more commonly ignored than observed, it is admitted.

England first made the proposal in 1922 at the Washington arms conference that all submarines be abolished. The other nations regarded this suggestion with a cold eye. They attributed self-interest to England. They made the claim that the submarine was the only type of vessel which England really feared and that therefore she wanted the undersea craft abolished. England countered by saying that she had withstood a submarine warfare of four years' duration, which was a pretty good indication that she could stand another siege.

THE proposal is regarded now as just another one of those Utopian disarmament projects. Several nations are concentrating on submarine construction. A German inventor has plans for a larger submersible vessel than has hitherto been considered possible, to weigh 7000 tons, but under the peace treaty, of course, Germany can construct no war vessels.

The United States now has 75 submarines in active service, with a personnel of 274 officers and 2785 enlisted men. This year 400 more enlisted men will be needed. They will be obtained, as in the past, by calling for volunteers among men already in the navy, with two or three years of experience behind them. Officers in the submarine service receive no extra pay and at various times the navy has found it difficult to keep the submarine school at New London, Connecticut, filled. This is attributed to the fact that an officer must spend seven years in the submarine service before a transfer can be effected.

With time the agitation for safety devices, which has broken out anew, will subside. The Navy Department maintains its position, unmoved. And the 3000 men who go down to the sea in pigboats—which is one of the few printable nicknames that men in the service have given to submarines—will be forgotten. Forgotten until the next disaster.

Care of Babies

This baby has never had a day's sickness and never a cross or fretful spell that lasted an hour. And what do you suppose is responsible for this healthy, happy condition? Not diet, for he has eaten just about anything and everything a child could eat. Not drugs, for he has not been dosed with opiates; he has never had a drop of paregoric. Nor has his sensible mother ever made him taste castor oil. Yet his nerves are sound and his little bowels are strong, and when he does seem the least restless or wakeful, or out of sorts—or likely to be—his mother has him all serene again in ten or fifteen minutes!

The secret of this complete freedom from the many ills and upsets so common to infants? Plain old-fashioned Castoria. A million and more mothers swear by Castoria, and no wonder! A few drops and an approaching fever, colic, diarrhea or constipation seems to vanish in thin air. Castoria is purely vegetable; that is why physicians tell parents they may use it freely with children of any age—the youngest infant. And how they love the taste!

One word of warning; get the pure, real Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is the original. It is the kind doctors specify. And with every bottle comes a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" that is worth its weight in gold to any mother or prospective mother so remember; tell your druggist you wish Fletcher's Castoria.

"General" Sutton Launches Huge Engineering Scheme in Canada

"General" Frank Sutton.

Famous Soldier of Fortune Reappears as Promoter After Hazardous Exploits in China

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VANCOUVER, British Columbia.

IT MUST be Frank Sutton. That's what his friends always conclude now when rumors spread abroad from somewhere about the empire of an English adventurer engaged in some mysterious enterprise, surrounded with secrecy, his identity closely guarded, millions of dollars involved in projects of one kind or another.

And they are usually right. For Frank Sutton—"General" Frank Sutton—loves adventure and he loves an atmosphere of mystery. He sets the stage to his own liking and then directs the scenario with himself as hero. This was the prelude to his new $25,000,000 venture here.

He stepped from a Pullman car of the Canadian Pacific transcontinental train recently and drove to the principal hotel, where he engaged the largest suite.

He remained in Vancouver for some days, making occasional motor car and steamship trips. He attracted little more atttention than would any traveler on his way to the Orient until one morning the newspapers appeared with the announcement that the mysterious stranger had bought one of Vancouver's most imposing skyscrapers, a group of mines and an island in the Gulf of Georgia.

A FEW days later, after spending a weekend on the American side of the border, he landed in Vancouver in an airplane. He encountered difficulties with the authorities on the ground that he could not maintain an unlicensed American machine in Canada without the payment of a heavy duty. His abrupt reply was that he would establish a hangar for it in Seattle and fly it when he chose over Canadian territory. And this was the end of the dispute.

But no sooner had interest in this, his second spectacular exploit to engage public attention, died away than one morning the principal newspaper in the Canadian West announced his sudden disappearance from a camp at Hudson Hope.

"It is feared," ran the story, "that he has fallen into a canyon of the Peace River, where the stream is a raging torrent." Of course, he had not. For this d'Artagnan, endowed as always with a charmed life, turned up smiling after a 24 hours' absence, with the casual explanation that he had only lost his way in the bush for a day or so. That was in October. Then—only the other day—reports suddenly associated his name with a gigantic engineering scheme involving between £4,000,000 and £9,000,000 for the exploitation of the untold riches of the bleak Peace River country. People in Canada began to wonder! Who was this picturesque stranger, whence had he come and what precisely were his motives? No one knew. Almost in a night he had come to be known as the mystery man of the Canadian Northwest.

Then it was, with the proper dramatic flourish, that, through the agents who had been acting for him, he disclosed himself as the famous General Sutton, last of Mukden, Manchuria. It is said that no British subject is more widely known east of Suez, with the possible exception of Lawrence of Arabia.

This is the picture which an acquaintance gives of the Manchurian episode:

"I MET Sutton in the summer and, though I saw him only for a moment between trains at his arsenal in Mukden, I was able to gauge something of the extraordinary personality of the man. Three revolvers lay by his side as he told me, briefly, the story of his remarkable friendship with the war lord, Chang-tso-Lin—three revolvers because at least a dozen attempts had been made on his life.

"It was, indeed, not long after this meeting that I heard of the sale of his arsenal and then of his departure for Europe."

The war found him in South America. A few months later he was tramping the hot sands of Gallipoli. It was here that he lost his right hand. He returned to England as an invalid, only to proceed when well again on a propaganda mission to America.

He went next to Shanghai, afterwards to Hankow, and eventually to the rich province of Szechuan, rich in its resources but impoverished by years of civil strife. Yan Sen was now fighting to capture the province for the all-powerful Wu-pei-fu. Here Sutton saw his first real opportunity in China. He decided to make munitions that would settle the combat. His offer to Yan Sen was accepted.

The interpreters placed at his disposal, however, were—as he was to discover later—chosen for their utter lack of scruples, and it was not long before he found that, though he turned out the munitions, he received "everything" in payment but hard cash for further commitments.

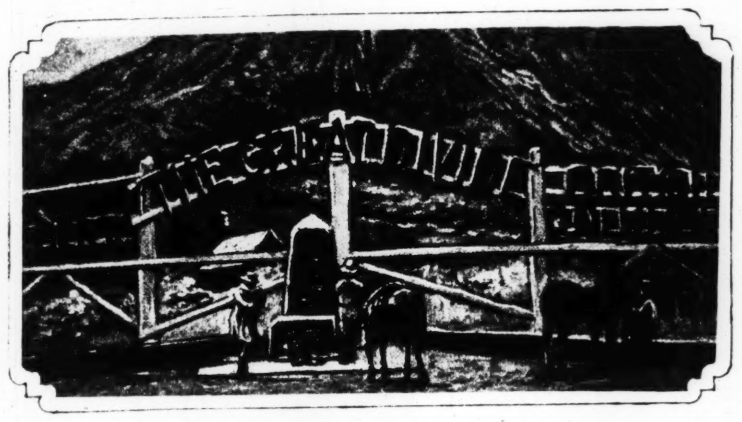
THE day came for a settlement. For his part, he had fulfilled his contract. But Yan Sen, to avoid the embarrassment of payment, decided on a course not uncommon in those remote parts of China's dark hinterland. He ordered Sutton's execution. An officer and two soldiers arrived at the house late one night, ostensibly with the object of an interview. One of the soldiers, in his stupidity, dropped the hint that the trio had been sent to shoot him.

Sutton, in a flash, thundered the order, "Ground arms!" The half-witted trio obeyed. Then, whipping out his revolver with his single hand, he fired it and bolted through a secret door in the compound.

He made his way over the open countryside to the river bank, traveled many miles in his flight in an open sampan, and finally again by the stroke of luck that always favored him, managed to board a small British steamer just as she was about to sail away.

Late in the summer he went again to Shanghai, then to Tientsin, and on to Mukden. Here he sought and obtained his first interview with Marshal Chang-tso-lin. He told him of his experience in the South. The little dictator listened with marked interest. Sutton offered to manufacture him a gun simple enough to place in the hands of any Chinese soldier.

The Chinese generalissimo seemed impressed, but bade Sutton stand back while he examined the proposals of two others who had come on a similar mission. The dreamy Chang seemed likewise attracted by their inventions.



Boundary between Alberta and British Columbia.

He demanded that they all give trials outside. But here Sutton's wits came to his rescue, for he promptly informed the Marshal that a fortune teller had proclaimed the day unpropitious for experiments. This plea is valid in China, so the trial was postponed.

Two days later Sutton turned up alone with his weapon. The Marshal, already struck by his personality, was pleased. Sutton was then and there decorated and instructed to build an arsenal in the city.

No time was lost in apprising the country of his industry, for not more than 10 guns were turned out at his hands before Chang-tso-lin ordered the cinematographers to get busy. They photographed the 10 field pieces and the first handful of shells. The films were duplicated hundreds of times, until soon the unsuspecting populace were made to believe that guns were belching from the factory in thousands every week.

He promptly launched his munitions plant, however, and soon his mortars and shells were being dispatched to every unit of the Northern Chinese forces. His artillery was given credit for the capture of two inaccessible mountain passes near Shanhaikwan, while, with their aid, Chang-tso-lin's armies, now well inside the Great Wall, soon smashed their way to Pekin.

Sutton was made a General in the Chinese army and in other directions was generously rewarded for his services.

With his unfailing luck, he next won £20,000 in a horse race sweepstakes.

He remained for a further period, but finally, in March of last year, he determined definitely to leave China forever.

COLOR is deceptive. A color that is becoming to one is unbecoming to another. This is true of powder and rouge as well as of dresses and hats.

The colors you wear should blend with your skin rather than with your hair and eyes. For hair and eyes do not determine your type—but the tone of your skin does.

The crescendo from the fairest type of blonde to the darkest brunette is as delicately graded as the chromatic scale—and each note has its distinct color tone!

Every woman has some little individuality of coloring that makes her different. And this coloring should determine the tones of powder and rouge that she wears—the shades of her dresses and hats.

Sophisticated women accent their natural coloring and individualize their type by wearing those colors that most become them, and by using a shade and tone of powder and rouge that blend with their own skin coloring.

Pompeian Beauty Powder and Pompeian Bloom have that enviable virtue of natural shades and tones to match the various types of skin. The Powder comes in five primary shades from which, by mixing various combinations, fifteen other beautiful shades can be created. The Bloom—in five lovely natural tones—blends with the Powder in perfect harmony.

Among the shades of Pompeian Beauty Powder and tones of Pompeian Bloom there are the exact complements for your skin. Use them to accent your natural coloring and you will achieve your utmost loveliness.

Fat Went

Ask Slender Folks
to Tell You

For 20 years, slender women have been telling others the easy, pleasant way to reduce. It is the right way, based on a modern discovery made by able scientific men. It has proved so efficient that for two decades it has held the top place in this field. Now you can see the results wherever you look. Slender figures are the usual, fat is the exception.

That right way is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. It is a substance employed in the body to regulate nutrition. Its purpose is to turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat.

There are no secrets about it. The formula appears in every box, also the reasons for results. Thus users know just why it acts, and they have no fear of harm. The use requires no abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. People simply take four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal in a natural way.

Consider what Marmola has done for so many and so long. See what it has done in your own circle, because one user tells others. Now learn what it means to you. Watch the new beauty that it brings, the new vitality and health. You owe that to yourself. Order it now—before you forget it. Don't longer suffer an abnormal figure when so many have found a corrective.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Instant Sleep

without drugs

Make This 3-Day Test!

From tonight on, you can be sure of getting instant, deep sleep—without the use of drugs. You will awaken each morning fairly tingling with healthy vigor.

No drug can ever refresh you in that way. For, while drugs may put you to sleep, they always leave you "logy" and befuddled when you awaken.

But science has developed a wonderful food-beverage that brings sound, restful sleep in a natural way. It is called Ovaltine. It puts you to sleep instantly. And as you sleep, its special food properties restore your tired mind and body—building up new vitality and energy.

Morning finds you a new man. Fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant. You have the energy to carry you right through the day and into the evening.

The 3-day test we offer here will prove all we claim. Note, most carefully, how good you feel when you get up in the morning.

Why Ovaltine brings restoring sleep

Authorities agree that digestive unrest is the main cause of sleeplessness. Ovaltine overcomes this condition in two ways:

First—It digests very quickly itself. Even in cases of impaired digestion.

Second—It has the unusual power of digesting 4 to 5 times its weight of other foods you eat. Hence, it aids your digestion which goes on speedily and efficiently. Frayed nerves are soothed. Sound sleep follows.

And as you sleep, the special food properties of Ovaltine also help to restore your tired mind and body. (One cup of Ovaltine has actually more food value than 12 cups of beef extract, 7 cups of cocoa, or 3 eggs.) That is why, after drinking a cup of hot Ovaltine at night, you awaken in the morning so completely refreshed—abounding with new-found vitality and tireless energy. Note the unsolicited testimonials below.

Hospitals and Doctors recommend it

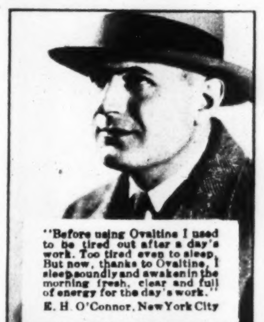
Ovaltine has been in use in Switzerland for over 30 years. Now in universal use in England and her colonies. During the great war it was served as a standard ration to invalid soldiers.

A few years ago Ovaltine was introduced into this country. Today hundreds of hospitals use it. More than 20,000 doctors recommend it. Not only for sleeplessness, but because of its special dietetic properties, they also recommend it for nerve-strain, malnutrition, underweight and delicate children, nursing mothers and the aged.

Make this 3-day test

Just make a 3-day test of Ovaltine. Note the difference, not only in your sleep, but in your next day's energy. You tackle your work with greater vigor. You "carry through" for the whole day. You aren't too tired to go out for the evening. There's a new zest to your work; to all your daily activities. It's truly a "pick-up" drink—for any time of the day.

All druggists and grocers sell Ovaltine in 4 sizes for home use. Or get it at the soda fountain. But to let you try it, we will send a 3-day introductory package for 10c to cover cost of packing and mailing. Just send in coupon with [illegible]



"Before using Ovaltine I used to be tired out after a day's work. Too tired even to sleep. But now, thanks to Ovaltine, I sleep soundly and awaken in the morning fresh, clear and full of energy for the day's work."
E. H. O'Connor, New York City

"I took Ovaltine for sleeplessness and found that I slept better and felt about 50% better. I feel as good after a hard day's work as I do in the morning."
A. Z. McCauley, Henry, Ill.
